AFTER INTERSTATE THIEVES... Detective Cox Institutes a Crusade Against the Omaha-Council Bluffs Gang... REQUISITION IN A PETTY LARCENY CASE... LINCOLN, Sept. 2.—(Special).—Detective Cox of Omaha applied today to Governor Holcomb for a requisition for John Malone, who is now under arrest at Council Bluffs, charged with the larceny of a suit of clothes in Omaha of the value of $13. The requisition was granted, in the face of the fact that that petty larceny is not a felony. The requisition for Malone is a congressional and punishable, but as I desire to make an example in this case and break up what seems to be an interstate thieves' association with headquarters in this city and Council Bluffs, I trust I shall receive your co-operation in the matter.

Yule, L. W. Colby, Thomas H. Baker and Julius A. Smith. The State Banking Board today received notice of the suspension of the State Loan and Trust company of Omaha, and Bank Examiner Decker was sent up to take charge of the institution. The capital stock was $25,000, H. L. Gould, president. The institution was not a state depository. ELATED OVER VERMONT. The news of the surprising republican majority in Vermont set the republicans wild with enthusiasm today, and the free silver democrats are correspondingly downcast. The result was totally unexpected, as Vermont is an agricultural state with no large cities, and a state, too, that has been claimed by local free silverites as bound to be the action of the excise board in discharging Mrs. Gallagher, the police matron, is awakening a great deal of criticism among the citizens of Lincoln. The affair has now reached an acute stage, when the discharged matron threatened to sue the city under an agreement she had made with her employer. Economy is the excuse offered for her dismissal, but this is in the face of a statutory enactment which provides that a matron shall be an adjunct of the police force of cities of the Lincoln class. SECRETS OF WHITE PILLS... Doctors of the Missouri Valley Continue Their Deliberations. ATTENDANCE SHOWS A SLIGHT INCREASE... Disiples of the Homeopathic School of Practice Discuss Papers of Interest to the Profession. The attendance at the convention of the Missouri Valley Homeopathic Medical association had increased yesterday morning over Tuesday, and the proceedings of the morning session were of a nature designed to greatly interest the members of the association. Among those who arrived were a number of noted specialists of national reputation, who have come prepared with papers on subjects of lively interest to the profession, and their discussions upon the papers read by members of the association forms a striking and very instructive feature of the proceedings, bringing out, as they do, many advanced ideas in practice. The morning session was taken up by the bureau of surgery, of which Dr. A. A. Foote of Omaha is chairman. The papers were well prepared and all were listened to with the closest attention. The first paper was read by Dr. Foote, the subject being "Homeopathy and Surgery." He combated the proposition advanced in some of the papers that these two branches of practice were diametrically opposed to each other, and contended that they were closely related, but both must be used with discretion, and the wise surgeon must know when to apply the knife and when to refrain from its use. There were many cases, he said, where the knife was the only remedy, but he discouraged the indiscriminate cutting away of tissue. The paper was discussed at some length. Dr. L. C. McElwee of St. Louis read a paper on "Home Surgery," showing the practicability of taking all cases to a hospital and referring to many drawbacks to the quick recovery of a patient under the changed conditions by which he was necessarily surrounded in such a place. The paper showed great ingenuity in detail in the method of performing operations in the home of the patient, and went very fully into the materials which might be utilized in the operation with success. The speaker dwelt at some length upon the advantages of careful attention which the patient would receive at home as compared with the divided attention of the nurse at a public institution. The paper was very generally discussed, especially by the doctors from the smaller towns, all of whom said they had received a great many helpful hints from it and who referred to the difficulties under which they labored in not having hospitals to which patients might be taken. USE OF THE KNIFE DISCUSSED. Dr. W. H. Hanchette of Omaha read a paper on "Appendicitis." He took strong grounds against the use of the knife in all cases where this disease was indicated, but advocated the use of remedies. He contended that many cases might be cured without the use of the knife, although there were some cases, he admitted, where an operation was necessary, but he deprecated the too free use of the knife and advocated the use of medicines, citing a number of cases in his own practice where this method had been successful. "Hernia, Its Surgical Treatment and Rad ical Cure" was the subject of a paper by Dr. William Davis Foster of Kansas City. This paper was a lengthy and technical document, going minutely into detail in the treatment of cases of this nature and attracting the closest attention from all present. The noon hour had been reached before his reading was completed and a recess was taken. A discussion of the paper being deferred until this afternoon. In one of the ante-rooms opening off the convention hall the members of the association held a conference between the reading of papers. The case in hand is a most interesting one and seems to require almost constant attention on the part of many of the physicians. It is presented to their attention in most attractive form, being profusely decorated and arranged in an artistic manner at one side of the room. The "case" is labeled "Mr. X's Case" and none of the doctors have been entirely successful in diagnosing its symptoms, but this is not due to any lack of effort on attention on their part, as they have given the matter a great deal of attention and have been afforded every facility for investigation by the presence of a number of cases in which he had the case to their inspection. OF INTEREST TO THE PROFESSION. At the afternoon session yesterday Dr. E. B. Finney of Lincoln read a paper on "Pelvic Abscess and Its Treatment," giving the history of a number of cases in which he had performed operations, giving the details and the results. He frankly admitted that his treatment had not always been successful, and asked for suggestions from others. The paper was very generally discussed, and the discussion developed many methods of practice. "The Morals and Ethics of Specialism," by Dr. James G. Gilchrist of Iowa City, discussed the specialist from all sides, both pro and con. The alleged specialist, who jumps into the arena as soon as he has secured his diploma, is handled without gloves, and the necessity for wide experience in general practice was emphasized. The bureau of gynecology was taken up and two papers on this branch of practice were read. Dr. O. R. Runnels of Indianapolis read one on "Puerperal Infection," and Dr. John W. Streeter of Chicago one on "Treatment of Retroversion of the Uterus." Both papers were highly instructive, filled with suggestions and technical procedure, and both were followed by animated discussions. The program of official surgery was taken up next, the chairman, Dr. L. G. Van Sooyce of Kansas City reading a paper on "Orificial Philosophy." A paper by Dr. A. E. Neumeister of Kansas City on "Orificial Surgery Results" was read by a member of the association. Dr. Neumeister sending word that he was unable to be present. DOCTORS IN ATTENDANCE.
