UNITED STATES COURT CONVENES Judge Woolson Opens the Autumn

Term of the Federal Tribunal, Judge John S. Woolson convened the sutumn term of the federal court yesterday. The day was chiefly spent in preparation for the work of the term. The grand and petit juries were called and sworn, and the former sent to work to investigate the complaints that have been lodged against the men and women who have offended Uncle Samuel by violating his simple laws. The latter class of cases is not numerous. The cr docket is the lightest for many years. The criminal charged with the offense of selling whisky without a government license is the crime most greatly in evidence. The civil docket is unusually slim. The prospects are ex-cellent that the term will be closed within a fortnight.

A part of the day was devoted to calling locket. In the afternoon the case of Nellie Healey against the Chicago & Great Western Railroad company was called. The case comes from Taylor county and has been pending for the last two years. Mrs. Healey is the wife of a conductor who was killed in an accident while in the employ of the company. The usual terms of settle-ment were rejected by the widow, and she brought suit for $20,000 damages. The jury was called and the preliminary work of the trial gotten well under way when it was dis-covered that the attorneys for the railroad company we e not in cour. Celly Hough in Jail.

Celly Hough contributed sixteen days of his time to the city a month or more ago as a guest of the city jail on a light diet of cold water and dry bread. It was the first unpleasant experience that Celly had ever had with the city officials, and it was con-fidently believed, even by Celly himself, that one dose would be sufficient to cure him of his penchant for coming to town and un-dertaking to run things to suit himself. To make it doubly sure when he was discharged he was given a suspended sentence of eleven days upon the condition that he should keep out of town. He stayed away until yesterday About noon the fact was reported to the offi-cers that he was taking charge of one of the Upper Broadway saloons and getting himself. luto condition for plenty of trouble. Officers were sent to hunt for him, but he kept out of their way until nearly 4 o'clock, when he fell into the arms of Officer Peterson. He was booked at the city jail to serve his sentence on bread and water, and that will be his temporary disposition, unless Judge Mc-Gee makes another order this morning.

SPEECHES AND RESOLUTIONS.

Then there was a long wait for the report of the conference committee. Colonel Whittlessy read a fairy story from some Indiana paper, telling of a wonderful scheme that had been cooked up by Hanna to prevent the American people from eating pie and to compel them to take to a rice diet. Judge Davis of Creston was called and made a flowery talk on the silver question and finally after a lot of skirmishing by committees Lew T. Genung, the fusion candidate for congress, was brought into the hall and made a speech. He paid a tribute to Samuel J. Tilden, whom he represented as the greatest dead democrat, and said W. J. Bryan was the greatest living democrat. was the greatest living democrat. His only desire was to be as good a demo-crat as Samuel J. Tilden was and W. J.

After Mr. Genung's talk the committee n resolutions presented the following, on resolutions present which were adopted;

which were adopted:

We democrats of Pottawattamie county Iowa, in convention assembled, endorse and reaffirm the platform enunciated by the national democrate party at Chicago and the platform adopted by the democratic state convention at Ottumwa.

We condemn the policy of the republican party in its efforts to enhance the purchasing power of money by contracting the volume thereof to a rold basis, thereby towering the price of all commodities as well as the price of all commodities as well as the price of labor, and we believe that if such a policy is pursued it will result in disaster to the farmers, laborers and producers of the entire country, such policy being wholly in the interest of monopolics ducers of the entire country, such polle-being wholly in the interest of monopolic and the money power.

All of this work had been purely prelimthe thing up. Finally Frement Benjamin, as a member of the committee, presented his report. He said the committee and had something of a time. There were good populists who wanted to get a nomination who were not acceptable to the democrata and there were good democrats in line for office that caused shivers to run up and down the populist back when their names were mentioned. Fremont did not put it in just that language, but the convention drew that inference before the squabble was over. The conference committee recommended the division of the ticket as follows: H. H. Ware, democrat. for county attorney; E. P. Brown of Neola, populist. attorney; E. P. Brown of Neola, populist, for auditor; L. O. Williams, free silver republican, for clerk of the court, and W. H. Schming of Avoca, democrat, for member of the Hoard of Supervisors. The committee had not been able to agree upon a candidate for recorder and had decided to let the conventions fight it can be the conventions fight. conventions fight it out in their own way.

Jason R. Lewis' great headgear got into operation and he saw a way out of it. He moved that the report of the committee be received and that the convention act on the candidates serriatem. A gentleman from Keg Creek wanted to know what Mr. Lewis meant by "Sarah At 'Em," and Jason started in to explain. Jase's long suit is in explanation, and there was need of more light in the room when he got through. It was finally decided that the convention would receive nominations for county attor-ney, and W. H. Ware, W. F. Patton, S. B. Wadsworth of Council Bluffs and Riley Clark of Neola were placed in nomination Mr. Ware fell a few votes short of the nomi nation on the first ballet, but he was named

About this time messengers began arriving with reports of the action of the democratic convention, and the delegates formed themselves into a ratification meeting and swallowed the pills that Dr. Tobey sent down without any great kick. Mr. Patton and a few members grew somewhat obstreperous, but the majority grinned and bore it. The wise ones said that they had not expected the democrats to keep faith with them, but they had done so much better than had been expected that it was deemed wise to put up with the changes made in the conference slate, at least not to make any open fight on it in the convention. The result was that the populists formally ratified all the nominations made by the democrats and adjourned as soon as the string had been played out.

EXPRESS COMPANIES NOW COMPLAIN

Iowa Commission Trying to Arrange a Scale of Rates. DES MOINES, Sept. 15 .- (Special Telegram.)-The State Railroad commission today began a long series of hearings on the revision of express rates in the state. Under a law of the last legislature the commission is required to prepare a schedule of maximum express rates. The States and Pacific companies were represented by their general officers at the meeting tolay. They argued at length any material reduction of rates could any material reduction of rates could not be borne by the companies. They say they pay to the railroads 45 cents out of every dollar they collect. They are not allowed by the roads to charge low rates; that would compete with freight. They say their business has in recent years been cut seriously by the fast freight service of the roads, which has taken from them the whole of the fruit business. The postal service also competed with them and takes much business. The Iowa Swine Breeders' association was represented by a delegation that pro-tested against the regulations inder which swine are carried in crates. They represented that the companies always route such property by the longest routes and charge accordingly, and that the shippers are required to sign contracts which de-prive them of any opportunity to recover in case of damage to the property. The companies agreed to change their regulations at once in this regard. The commission will be in session for a long time, at work on the new schedule.

Siespalmost impossible, and under such a strain rare scarcely responsible for what they do, years the writer rolled and tossed on troubled sea of sexual weakness, until it was question whether he had not better take a d of poison and thus end all his troubles, providential inspiration came to his aid in shape of a combination of medicines that only completely restored his general health, enlarged his weak, emachated parts to naturally and vigor, and he now declares that a man who will take the trouble to send his mand address may have the prescription of a wonderful remedy free. Now, when I say free mean absolutely without cost, because I we every weakened man to get the benefit of experience.

BILL CUPPY STARTS THE FIREWORKS.

The report did not strike the convention with any too much favor. Your Uncle Bill Cuppy of Avoca yelled. Hold on there, Mr. Presiding Officer. I won't stand this. This convention delegated the authority to a committee to tell the populists that they might name the candidates for one of two offices, but this convention did not delegate the power to the committee to name the candidates. In the name of high heaven and justice I kick on such action. I won't

The meeting was under the auspices of the Swedish-American Garfield club and was called to order by John Norberg, president of the club, who introduced John Steel as chairman of the evening.

The Norden Singing society, under the direction of Prof. Edgren, sang several vocal selections and Miss Mueller sang a solo with male chorus.

P. O. Hedlund and A. S. Churchill, can didates, respectively, for state auditor and attorney general, were introduced by the chairman and made very brief talks, after which the speaker of the evening, Prof. Swenson, was introduced. Prof. Swenson was greeted with prolonged applause and cheers and was compelled to wait for several seconds before he could make himself heard. He commenced by expressing his surprise at the size of his audience. shippers all over the state the following when such crowds greeted speakers. Then with the request that answers he caused several very audible smiles by remarking that the Swedes did not usually take an active part in politics, but preferred to remain at home attending to their private usiness.

Launching out into his subject the speaker traced the patriotism of the Swedes to the interest of their adopted country back to the old Viking spirit which had carried their interest of their which had carried their old Viking spirit which had carried their forefathers to this country hundreds of years before the Spaniard, Columbus, ever heard of it. Paxton, superintendent of the Union Stock Yards company, has returned from a trie through a trie through the standard as a man, but expressed the firm conviction that ing of the black slaves, as it had been in that early campaign, but the issue involved the liberty and perpetuity of American in-stitutions and prosperity. Prof. Swenson said the hard times in the west had been charged to the Rothschilds, but he held that the financial depression is due to the "booms" with which these west ern states endeavored to elevate themselves to the level of the older and more prosperous states of the east. Money had been borrowed to an unlimited extent and beyond the ability of the borrower to pay and the result was inevitable. It was not due to the Roths-

The whole solution of the difficulty which confronts the country he declared lay in the tariff laws. The business men of this country, he said, have to pay for the privilege of doing business here and there was no justice in allowing the foreigner to come in and take all the business away from the home producer and not require the foreigner to bear any portion of the burden of maintaining the government.

Taking up the silver question, the speaker denounced the charges of the opposition that the St. Louis convention was controlled by Wall street. He recalled the fact that he was a member of the committee on resolutions and told his hearers the story of the

CHEAP MONEY EXPERIMENT wrestling in that committee with the free

FREE COINAGE OF COPPER. FREE COINAGE OF COPPER.

He then discussed the free coinage question and illustrated its practical operation by producing a doltar coined in Sweden in 1716 during the reign of Charles XII, under free coinage laws. The doltar was of copper and was about 5x6 inches in size and nearly half an inch in thickness. It weighed about two pounds, and had a hole in one corner by which it might be strung on a circ for carrying. This money was coined he order to make up for a shortage in the royal exchequer and was designed as a substitute exchequer and was designed as a substitute for silver for circulation among the common people, the silver all being gathered up by the king, except what was spirited out of the country or hidden in the cellars. Although the dollar had six stamps of the government on it, it was not accepted at its face value, fifty of them being required to buy one yard of cloth, which sold for $4 in silver. The of cloth, which sold for $4 in silver. The speaker explained the actual operation of the free coinage laws of Sweden at that period and drew a lesson from that experience, showing what might be expected in this country if the free silver theorists should gain the day.

Prof. Swenson was frequently interrupted sympathy with his views. At the conclusion of the meeting a banquet was tendered Prof. Swenson by the Garfield club at the rooms of the Commercial club and the club and its honored guest spent a merry hour at the banquet board. SHERMAN TO BLAME FOR IT ALL.

Free Silver Orator Lays All the Pub-He Ills to the Ohio Senator.

The free silverites of the Fifth ward held their weekly meeting at Sixteenth and Corby streets last night with R. F. Williams furnishing the oratory. Something like fifty men assembled to listen to the speaker, who denounced John Sherman, designating him as the Benedict Arnold of the Nice-teenth century. Mr. Williams was positive that Sherman, aided and abetted by the bankers of the United States and Eng-land, unbeknown to the president and the members of congress, committed the "crime of '73," and like "a thick in the night, struck down the silver dollar." The national banking law Mr. Williams denounced as a curse and a blight upon the land, enacted solely for the "purpose of enriching a few plutocrats and grinding the poor man into the earth."

Turning his attention to silver, the speaker volunteered the statement that his election meant plenty of work for laboring men, plenty of money and the free coinage of all of the silver that could be
