POSTPONE SUMMONING THE JURY,

Judges Agree Not to Draw One Until After Election. Although the district court is not to reconvene until September 28, the judges who are in the city held a conference yesterday to discuss informally the question of postponing the summoning of a jury panel until after the election. It has been represented (000) by a number of attorneys that the summoning of juries and the trial of jury cases at the present time would be very unsatisfactory to litigants. It has also been no-ticed as a matter of experience that the juries, when called just previous to election, require days and sometimes weeks to get into working order. In the present contest when polities is cutting so great a figure, it is feared that it will be more difficult to secure a fair jury for cases which may possibly have political influences bearing
