The members of the present board of directors, who were elected at the organiza-tion of the association and who have brought the project to a condition where its success seems assured, are candidates for re-election as members of the new board, although none of them, so far as can be learned, are making any canvass for votes. As it is now constituted the board of directors comprises the following: G. W. Wattles, president; J. E. Markel, vice presi-dent; W. R. Bennett, J. H. Evans, Dudley Smith, Dan Farreli, Jr., G. H. ### SITE CUTS A FIGURE.

The most aggressive campaign so far has been by the residents of the northern part been by the residues of the horn part part of the city, who are inspired by a desire to see the exposition located in Miller park, a site near old Fort Omaha. The North Side Improvement club has had the matter in hand and has been industriously organizing ens; for the past few months. A new club has been organized within the past few days for the purpose of working for the same object. Representatives of these clubs and Louis Lombard, capitalist and founder o the Utica Conservatory of Music, New York say they have not selected any candidates to represent them in the directory, but have been concentrating all their efforts to secure votes in the interest of Miller park, and with these votes they purpose to secure the election of men who will agree to support Miller park when the question of location comes up for decision. The northsiders say, however, that they do not intend to play "dog in the manger," but are open to con-viction if a more available or better site is presented. They have opened an office in The Bee building adjoining the office of the secretary of the exposition and are devot-ing all their energies to gaining converts. The Southside Improvement club, which has been agitating the location of the ex-position in Riverview park, has selected W. H. Hanchett, E. J. Cornish and John Rush as their candidates for directors, and the name of F. K. Darling has since been added making four men whom the southsiders will endeavor to elect. The southside residents do not make the question of location an absolute condition of their support, but say they are willing to let the question be settled on the theory of the greatest good to the greatest number.

The Letter Carriers' association has en-dorzed W. M. Victor as its candidate for director, and the members are busy in mak-ing deals to secure his election.

The Manufacturers' and Consumers' as sociation has endorsed its secretary, O. C. Holmes, as a suitable man for director and members of the association are working for his election. The members of the city fire department have urged Chief Redell to become a can-didate for director, and the chief has consented to stand for election to the position The local fire insurance men, with one exception, that one exception being by far the heaviest subscriber among the fraternity, held a meeting within the past few days and decided upon Chris Hartman as their rep-resentative, and they have been busy in canvassing for votes for his election. The labor organizations of the city will bed a prosting Bridge graphing to either hold a inceting Friday evening to decide upon a man to represent them in the directory, and will also decide.upon a course of action to secure his election. The labor organizations have solicited subscriptions among their members with a view of getting a representative on the board, but the leaders among them express some disappointment at the result of the canvass. Besides these movements of organizations surface indications which point to the aprouting of several more ambitions before the day of election appears. John A. Wakefield, the present secretary of the exposi-tion association, has announced himself as a candidate for election as a director. Mr. Wakefield is not a director in the board as at present constituted and the amended articles of incorporation do not require that the secretary shall be a director, but it is claimed that there are many reasons why secretary should be a member of the board of directors. Mayor Ensor of South Omaha is another who has announced himself as a candidate for election as a representative of South Omaha, but some of the citizens of that flourishing suburb do not take kindly to the idea and are opposing the ambitions of the mayor, ring and is a candidate for the position of the director.

The payment of the 5 per cent assessment on stock subscriptions is being made with reasonable speed, over 700 subscribers hav ing paid their ascessments before noon yester day. The amount paid in is about $2,100 and it has been found necessary to increase office force in the secretary's office by the addition of a clerk to receive subscrip tions and issue receipts.

An Exposition Suggestion.

OMAHA, Sept. 23 .- To the Editor of The Bee: As the location of the Transmississippi Exposition is under discussion, it seems to me that if we want to raise the $500,000 in subscriptions, we should not be in a hurry. If the directors are to choose the site as soon as elected, subscriptions will cease. Why not leave the question of the location directly to a vote of the stockholders, the vote to be canvassed not later than Decem-ber 17. Then the north west and south side her 17 Then the north, west and south side boomers will rustle for stock.
