Old Soldiers' Reunion Attracting a Large Number of Visitors.

INTERESTING PROGRAM RENDERED DAILY

Veterans Reminded on All Sides of the Great War Through Which They Passed to Preserve the Nation's Honor.

SUTTON, Neb., Sept. 30.—(Special Telegram.)—The city has donned military airs, and the roaring of the evening and morning guns recalls to the veterans memories of the great war. The Sutton Boys' Javelin brigade, armed with Robert rifles (Captain Birker commanding), gave an exhibition drill in the morning, followed by Commander Culver, who gave an extended account of the noble work now being accomplished at the home of which he is commander, at Milford.

At noon the annual picnic dinner of the old settlers in Clay county occurred in the park. It was followed by a call to order by President McBride of Harvard and then a choice musical and literary program. The day's exercises closed with an address by Hon. C. E. Adams, who pictured vividly the young man leaving home for the war, the goodby and the last wave of the hand as he passed up the street of his native village on his way to death or glory. The balloon ascension came off this afternoon, carrying up a trained dog, who when about a mile high, cut himself loose. The dog and balloon alighted safely.

There are over 5,000 people in attendance. Hon. Mr. Brucker of Illinois spoke to over 1,000 Germans, making a graceful allusion to the honor conferred on the city of Sutton by the recent visit of such generals as Sickles, Sigel and Howard. His speech is highly spoken of by the German element here. It made vows for McKinley and sound money.

He has been in Chicago for six years—a term and a half—and in his protest against Secretary Carlisle's transfer he alleged that what was promised a two-term appointment to the Chicago station.

Guests at a Hotel Robbed in a Darling

PITTSBURG, Sept. 29.—It has just been learned that burglars entered the Hotel Norman near Wilmerding, Pa., Sunday morning, and after chloroforming all the inmates carried off $10,000 in money, jewelry and silverware.

A safe containing between $7,000 and $8,000 was blown open and the contents taken. The cash register in the bar room was likewise opened and robbed, after which every room in the house was searched and stripped of valuables.

There were eighteen guests in the house beside Mr. Wymard and his family. Every cent of money belonging to the guests was taken, together with their watches and jewelry. The silverware of the house, Mrs. Wymard's diamonds, and, in fact, everything of value that was readily movable was taken. The thieves left no clew.
