ROBBING MOTOR CONDUCTORS

Thugs Operate Boldly Along the Park and Transfer Depot Lines.

Thieves Board the Car, Jerk the Trolley off and Garrote the Conductor as He is Repair-Ing the Mischief.

The police have been assisting the officers of the motor company in an effort to discover three fellows who have been holding up motor conductors with painful regularity and getting all the money they carried with them. Three robberies of this kind have occurred within a few days, but the motor people and the police officers have kept the matter quiet until yesterday. The holdups have occurred at lonely points and when there were no passengers on the cars, and have been confined to the park and Union Pacific depot lines. The plan pursued by the highwaymen is for two of them to board a car together and take positions on the rear platform. When the car reaches the point where they want to tap the conductor one of them reaches up and pulls the trolley from the wire. This shuts off the current, the lights go out and shuts off the current, the lights go out and the car stops. When the conductor goes to the rear platform and is bending over the railing trying to adjust the trolley, the high-waymen seize him, grab his money from the side pocket of his coat where he always carries it and jump from the train. They are out of sight before the conductor has time to realize what has begrened.

time to realize what has happened. Conductor Ely was the last victim, and he was robbed according to the plan on Friday night while the car was in Fairmount park. The robber seized him while his attention was given to replacing the trolley, thrust his hand in his pocket and got a handful of change amounting to $3.50 and then jumped rom the car.

Conductors Hughey and McMenomy were the other two victims. Hughey lost $5.25 and McMenomy $3.65.

The motor people and the police have been furnished with good descriptions of the bandits and feel sure that they will be able to land them the next time they attempt to

SOCIAL EVENTS OF THE WEEK.

Colonel Dalley's Dinner to the Foo Ball Team a Feature. The dinner given by Colonel Bailey at his home on Second avenue to the members of the High school foot ball eleven Thursday evening was one of the most pleasant affairs of the week. At 6 o'clock the boys assembled together with Profs. Hayden, Grass and Jacobson. They wore their new sweaters of dark blue, with bright red stripes, and presented a very picturesque appearance. Bright colored autumn foliage was used in the decorations on the mantles and chandeliers, and trailing vines and ferns made the table decidedly attractive. Bold Operations of a Thief in a Prom inent Livery Barn. Stealing a horse in broad daylight from a livery stable, where a large number of employes are at work, and that stable located just across the street from the police station is an achievement that any talented horse thief may well be proud of. It was accomplished successfully at Utterback's stables at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and the loss was not discovered until yesterday morning. Loyal Hewitt owned a fine horse and has had him boarded at the stable. The stall is centrally located and, like the stalls of all of the horses, is in full sigh of the street and the men at work around the barn. The animal was fed at noon and was not missed until feedtime at night. His absence was then accounted for upon the theory that his owner had secured him through some of the men about the place Yesterday morning the true facts were learned. Inquiry then disclosed the fac that several people saw a man lead the horse from the stall and into the alley by a back door and ride him off. The thief was tracked to the southern part of the city, where he was found to have traded the stolen horse to Henry Allen, a gardener living near Rice's nur-sery. Utterback and an officer paid a visit to Allen yesterday morning and took the horse from him. He had traded with the fellow about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and had given another good horse and $9 in cash for the stolen animal. Allen furnished a good description of the talented horse thief and is co-operating with the sheriff's Farmers in the vicinity are also taking an interest in the case, for they believe the stranger has too much ability to be safely permitted to run at large. There is no such evidence of popular satisfaction as the evidence of successful ex-perience. The "Corner" 5c cigar has won perience. The "Corner" 5c cigar has won this enviable reputation—the best cigar ever produced and said for 5 cents. Moore

COIN HARVEY DILATES ON MONEY

Tells How the Use of Silver at 16 to 1
Will Help the Country.
W. H. Harvey, author of "Coin's Pinancial School," spoke at the opera house last night to an audience that but partly filled the house. To the campaign committee of the local free silver forces the ap-THREE CASES REPORTED RECENTLY pearance of "Coin" was decidedly welcome. Admission was charged. This was more than sufficient to keep away the curious from even such a muchly exploited gentle-man as Mr. Harvey. F. A. Bixby, presi-dent of the Bryan Bimetallic club, presided and presented Mr. Harvey. There was no stint in the welcome accorded the speaker. "The underlying principle of bimetal-lism," said Mr. Harvey, "is for one metal to relieve the strain upon the other. The make-up of the human body is dual. We have two eyes, two ears, two arms and have two eyes, two ears, two arms and though we have but one head the brain is divided into two lobes. To demonetize either divided into two lobes. To demonetize either of the two great money metals of the world is a step backward. Neither must be allowed to become the tyrant."

As a claim for the recognition of silver with gold he marked what a great resemblance they bore to each other chemically. This scientific phase of the subject failed to take very strongly and he began to play upon the prejudices of his audience in portraying the conflict that must come between the masses and the classes. During the whole of his talk he interjected this element of denunciation of a fancied despotism on the part of the money power over the people, who produced and had labor to sell. Continuing he said in part:

Continuing he said in part: The dollar, he said, is not a fixture. The people had a false idea that property only changed in value, but money was an un-changeable thing in value. "It is the ex-changeable value of the substance out of which you make your money that forms its real value. With the demand for gold remaining as it now is, a dollar would still be a dollar, but in its exchangeable value it has been greatly enhanced by the legislation of the past twenty years. Primary and representative money were the two kinds of money used by the nation, and gold is the foundation, or primary, money of the nation, on which the financial system is based, and under a redemption monetary system you cannot have any more repre-sentative money in circulation than you have redemption money in the country. There is now about $1,000,000,000 of representative out in excess." To this fact "Coin" con-tributed the lack of confidence and the coninual withdrawal of gold from the treasury When the demand was transferred from the two to the one it enhanced the one-metal, and that has driven this nation to go to foreign countries for the supply of its pri-mary money. There is no sound redemption system without every dollar of money equal to gold. Still the dollar can rise in value. It has been rising during the past twenty three years, because of the disproportionate supply and demand. High money means low property. High property means low

According to the speaker, every man who was not a borrower and had saved enough noney to let some one else pay him interest for the use of it was a "money lender and a shylock." They had all contributed to the fall in prices, which, he said, meant the transfer of the property of 99 per cent of the people to 1 per cent. It meant the transfer of the property of the producers and the manufacturers to the money lenders. Here Mr. Harvey left his categorical discourse and drifted into a portrayal of the distress that has followed the fall in prices. 'Selfishness crystalized into law," he said "had ruined the condition of the masses. It makes the downtrodden man dangerous by destroying his regard for existing law." To counteract this terrible calamity, he said.

show the "advance of the admitted distress of this nation."
Mr. Harvey referred incident at Clinton, Ia., where he had been aissed for his attack on the union generals. He repeated his words, in which he com-pared the old heroes to conspirators, who were wrapping about them the American flag and carrying under it the daggers with which to strike at the heart of the nation. This inflammatory declaration was followed up by an assertion that two-thirds of the old soldiers were with him. After the meeting not a few of the vet-erans who had heard this claim, and also his reference to their generals, denounced
