UNUSUAL NUMBER OF PRETTY WEDDINGS

Balls, Parties, Dinners, Laucheons, Tens, Receptions, Musicales and the Coming and Gaing of People Make Up a Busy Week.

At last the social world may fairly be acter, it is the intention to make it a parsaid to be revolving on its axis with reasonable speed and regularity, as all properly constituted worlds abould do. The pace has been a brisk one during the past week, and if it shall keep up, the season will not lack the variety which in society, as in all else, is the spice of life. In spits of the loud and oft-repeated cry of hard times, people; will go on entertaining and being entertained, marrying and engaging themselves the top of its flow. Perhaps they do not make so much noise about it, nor spend to much money in the accomplianment of their well as in the nobleman's palace,

Speaking of the nobly born, even in an remote a connection, recalls the appalling rumors that have been flying about of late rumors that have been dying about of late concerning the Barons von Sack and von Levitzow, who graced the ceremontes of the Ak-Sar-Bon ball last menth. They turned up in Omaha early in September, bearing credentials apparently valid, which introduced them as German military officers of noble birth who on a wager or in pursuance of some of the mad pranks with which young German gratteners are west. which young German gottlemen are wont to while away the tedious hours of their butterfly existence, had undertaken to put a girdle round the earth within a given their better of the contract of their butterfly existence, had undertaken to put a girdle round the earth within a given their better of the contract of the m girdle round the earth within a given limit of time, on foot and without other financial aid than that afforded by the communities through which they might journey. In a word, they were tramps and this by their word, they were tramps—and this by their own ariless confession; but it was generally believed—such is the credulity of common mankind in its dealings with the higher orders—that they were German traines, a fact which eatitled them to certain distinctions decided to Dusty Rhodes and Weary Waggles and the rest of the American tribe, and that they were noblemen, a circumstance which of course gave them the pass-key to everything in sight.

in its nature disquieting and ill-calculated to foster the romantic dreams which are bred by inilmate association with the nobility. It is said that the references of the most illustrious barons have been looked into with the dreadful result that they have been discovered to be nothing less than two mischievous and impecunious young men of German accestry and Amerlean birth, who have hit upon this ingenlous scheme for getting away from their home in New York and traveling over the country with all the advantages of a made-to-order social position. It may turn out that they are really noblemen after all. The girls who danced with them are hoping so. And a local fashion paper has come across the two heroes in Denver, where they were repeating their pretty performance at the Festival of Mountain and Plain.

After all, what does it matter, if the fel-lows damed well and otherwise behaved themselves?

Surprise Mr. Creigh(on, One of the pleasant events of the week was the surprise that was given Hon. John a. Creighton last Thursday evening, the occasion being his sixty-fifth birthday. Not suspecting the designs of his friends early in the evening, Mr. Creighton wen down to his office to look after some important business that demanded his attention and, while absent, seconding to a pre-arranged plan, Hon. They will be at home after No and relatives, who reminded him of the fact vember 1 at Randelph, Neb. that he had just passed the sixty-fifth mile-stone, and that they had met to celebrate the occasion and extend congratulations. During the evening an elegant lunch was served, after which remarks were made by Major Furay, T. J. McShane and Hon. Peter P. Shelby, to which Mr. Creighton responded in a most feeling manner. Several choice musical selections were rendered by Prof. Shenck, after which Mr. Creighton sang me of the songs of his baykood days. 11 o'clock the party broke up, the surprisers wishing Mr. Creighton long years of life and prosperity.

The details of the delightful affair were arranged by Mr. Shenck and Miss Mary Cot-ter, who are members of the Creighton home at the Madison to constitute a large sized party of themselves, when they combine for social observances. Last Thursday evening they not only got together in this way, but invited enough of their friends from outside to make up one of the largest high five parties of the season. The event proved so thoroughly enjoyable that it is proposed to repeat the experience at inter-vals through the winter.
