

MANY ORATORS ARE COMING

Last Days of the Campaign in This State Are to Be Lively.

PALMER AND BUCKNER TO SPEAK IN OMAHA

John P. Irish to Make a Hurried Tour Through Nebraska, Speaking at Points Where William J. Bryan Stops.

The sound money democrats propose to make themselves felt during the last week of the campaign. They have secured the attendance not only of their candidates for president and vice president, but also of two of the most successful campaign orators in their party. The preliminary arrangements for a series of big mass meetings at Omaha and other Nebraska points were made in Chicago by Euclid Martin, W. D. McHugh and Lee Sprattin, who returned yesterday. General John M. Palmer and Simon Buckner will be in Omaha October 29. The details of the meetings have not been decided on, but it will probably be held at Boyd's theater. John P. Irish, of California will be arranged by when he will make a hurried tour of the state, winding up with a big meeting in Omaha. Members of the committee on arrangement state that Mr. Irish will not follow Bryan in his prospective trip on the same day, but it is expected that he will naturally speak at several of the points at which Bryan stops.

It is also promised that John R. Fellows of New York will come to Nebraska during the last week of the campaign and make several speeches for the sound money cause. The arrangements for Mr. Fellows' trip have not been completed, but a very encouraging assurance is given that he will at least speak in Omaha. Messrs. Martin, McHugh and Sprattin declare that even as far west as Chicago McKinley's election is now considered a foregone conclusion. The sound money cause, they say, has gained strength with remarkable rapidity, and all the anti-election indications point to an overwhelming defeat for Bryan. They assert that the Palmer and Buckner ticket has proved to be a potential factor in the campaign, and that thousands of democrats who were formerly for Bryan have decided to vote for the sound money nominees.

GRANT MEETING OUT AT MILLARD

Republican Orators Given a Most Enthusiastic Welcome. Of the series of republican rallies arranged for by the German Republican club, the second one at Millard Sunday afternoon, October 19, was a most successful one. The speaker, William McKinley, was enthusiastically welcomed and expressed determination to uphold national honor and aid in the election of William McKinley, the meeting surpassed the expectations of the most sanguine supporters of the honest money cause. The speaker held the audience in a grip of hopefulness in the greatest of the few Bryan adherents. It also demonstrated that the sturdy German tillers of the soil, regardless of previous political convictions, will vote in sound money ranks. With their minds already made up they are not backward in expressing their preference for the republican presidential ticket.

It was the most cordial greeting yet accorded to republicans in the banner democratic precinct held here heretofore. Every hand hope for republican success this fall was freely expressed. President Lincoln called the objects of the meeting and explained the objects to the chair, who introduced as first speaker Charles F. Tuttle. Mr. Tuttle reiterated the absence of any announced speakers, Congressman Mercer, who, by reason of serious illness in his family, was prevented from attending. In a comparison of the presidential candidates, the speaker alluded to the poperaic Bryan as a man who had discovered an enemy's country in this broad land, and who had discovered a nation was fought for and accomplished more than thirty years ago. The speaker explained at length the principles of reform in standard, showing finally how the present financial system had its inception.

A. S. Hitchcock was the next speaker, and he proceeded to demonstrate that it was to the best interests of everybody and the nation in general to adhere to the principles which the poperaic candidate represents. He said the present exceptionally hard times in Nebraska were practically due to an overgrowth of population, from which Kansas had also suffered. On the money question Mr. Hitchcock took issue with the poperaic who assert the commission of the crime in 1873. This he said was really committed in 1865, when Lee handed over his sword to Grant and car loads of confederate paper money was striven to.

On account of lack of time, Mr. Haller, another speaker of the day, gave way to E. J. Cornish. Mr. Cornish was very attentively listened to when he dwelt on this country and Germany's prosperity under a like monetary system. Statistics showed that American prosperity since 1873, and Germany's since 1871, when the abominable crimes were committed, stood unequalled. Berlin and Hamburg, which the speaker had visited a short time ago, had doubled in population, and increased at even a much higher rate in commerce. He showed the fallacy of free trade arguments by detailing how money is put into circulation, and that the farmer and laborer must be coaxed to receive any benefit from free trade by a law which should be enacted. The money power would naturally come in for the first and greatest share of profit. Alford was cited as the dominant and driving force, much to his discredit for his wild statements and utter unreliability with dates and figures on the money question. Mr. Cornish received a most liberal share of applause, and his arguments were convincing. Altogether the meeting was pronounced the greatest ever held by any political party in Millard.

CLERGY BUREAU CONTINUES

Workings During the Past Year Satisfactory to the Railroad.

OTHER LINES LIKELY TO BE REPRESENTED

Railroads Decide that They Will Not Grant Reduced Rates to Parties Who Desire to Return Home to Vote.

The Omaha passenger agents have returned from the special meeting of the Western Passenger association, which occupied the latter part of last week. General Passenger Agent Francis of the B. & M. said yesterday morning, in speaking of the work accomplished: "The matter of the clergy bureau was up for discussion. Reports showed that the work of this bureau had been very satisfactory throughout the year. The question of each road within the bureau being required to pass upon the credentials and applications of clergymen for half-fare permits the work has been done by the bureau. Instead of keeping, say twenty reports, it has been necessary to keep but one. The work has been reduced to about one-fifth of what it would be should each road attempt to handle this matter. It is satisfactory that the roads within the Western Passenger association were members of the clergy bureau during the past year, but the workings of the bureau have not been so satisfactory. They will come in this year. The Denver & Rio Grande, the Rio Grande Western and a few other western lines were not represented in the bureau last year. "Yes, we will continue the clergy bureau, and as all of last year's reports will be valuable for the coming year's work, the bureau will prepare a directory of the country. There will be two in November and two in December. The question of granting reduced rates to voters to enable them to go home to vote was brought up and decided adversely."

UNION PACIFIC AUGUST EARNINGS

All Portions Except the Short Line Make a Good Showing.

The receivers of the Union Pacific system have issued their report of the earnings and expenses for the month of August, 1896, and for the year to date. The earnings for the month of August, 1896, were $1,316,975.62, an increase of $167,111.48 over the earnings of August, 1895. As the expenses increased but $68,527.16, there was an increase in the surplus of $28,584.26. The total earnings for the year to date are $10,711,488.48, an increase of $2,072,771.71 over the earnings for the year to date of 1895. The expenses for the year to date are $8,638,716.77, an increase of $1,456,531.12 over the expenses for the year to date of 1895. The surplus for the year to date is $2,072,771.71, an increase of $2,072,771.71 over the surplus for the year to date of 1895.

ALSTADT CASE COMES UP IN COURT.

Matter of Ordering His Name on the Ticket Under Adversement.

The case brought in the county court by William Alstadt to compel the county clerk to place his name on the official ballot to be voted at the next election as the regular republican nominee for the office of Justice of the peace in this city, was taken up by Judge Baxter yesterday afternoon. Alstadt was represented by his attorney and the county clerk was represented by Assistant County Attorney Day, assisted by attorneys representing the republican county committee and the Republican Veterans league, of which George Crockrel, the other nominee of the republican convention, is a member. It was asserted by Alstadt's attorney that he had been nominated on the first ballot to fill one of the vacancies then existing and that he received more votes on that ballot than did Crockrel, the latter being subsequently nominated for the other vacancy. It was asserted that the convention by this action had shown Alstadt the preference. The contention of the attorneys representing the county clerk was that the proceedings of the convention had nothing to do with the case; that the county clerk could only be governed by the certificate filed by the officers of the convention. It was shown that the certificate in the case contained the names of both Alstadt and Crockrel, each being nominated "to fill vacancy," and when the decision of the district court disposed of one vacancy the certificate was null and void under the ruling of the supreme court in the case brought by the two factions of the democratic convention two years ago. It was argued that the clerk had exercised his discretion by declaring the certificate null and void, and that he could not be compelled to exercise his discretion in any specified manner. It was asserted that this action on the part of the clerk simply created a vacancy which the central committee alone was authorized to fill. The arguments in the case occupied the court until about 6 o'clock and Judge Baxter took the matter under advisement.

Artesian Well Contractors Lay Off for the Winter.

The contractors who have been engaged in drilling the artesian well in Elmwood park have stopped work for the winter. They have drilled 1,845 feet and have not found water enough to rise to the top of the well. As the well at Riverview park is only about 1,100 feet deep there is some doubt whether it will be possible to obtain a satisfactory flow at the new well. The men in charge of the drilling assert that if they do not strike water they will find oil or gas. They have already gone through five feet of carbonaceous shale, which is thoroughly saturated with oil and several other similar indications have been encountered.
