The number cannot be assumed to be entirely accurate, however, even though it may be nearly so It is obtained by adding to the Bryan vote number of McKinley voters who avow that they were democrats in 1892, and subtracting from that sum the number of Bryan voters who have bolted to him from Harrison. apply equally to both parties, and at any rate the showing is interesting. It indi-cates that out of the total vote cast in the postal card election 68.764 of the ballots that were ineligible and came from Cleveland democrats of 1892, and invalid from other causes, the Harrison republicans contributed ing from the democrats and 69 per cent fro the republicana:

It is necessary to explain in detail the form of calculation which was adopted to construct the tables including the detailed reports from the states and from Chicago and Cicero. The states were tabulated by counties and Chicago by wards, and the respective wards and counties were credited for this purpose with being democratic or republican according as they were carried by the democratic or republican party in 1882. A column then follows, giving the 1892. A column then follows, giving the number of blank postal-card ballots sent to each ward and county, and the next column gives the number of those that were returned as votes to be counted in the postal card election. The percentages of ballots returned as votes to those sent out to the voters was then ascertained. This tiem was calculated separately for the degraphing and the republican commission and cratic and the republican counties and wards, the percentage of returns from those n each party being the information sought There has been an admitted and a systemath There has been an admitted and a systematic effort on the part of some influences in the democratic organization to restrain the voters of that faith from participating in the postal-card election, and it was to be expected that the result of this effect would show in the analysis of the vote.

If all influences were equal it would be fair to presume that from counties in the same state of similar analysis of the vote. same state, of similar population, the percentage of ballots returned as votes to those sent out would be approximately the same. If there was a uniform deficiency in this per-centage in the democratic centers it would in some degree measure the force of this restrained vote. Any election calculations ought to take cognizance of this vote, if i can be in any way measured. This suggest tion was made as a mathematical means of reaching an approximation to this matter, and was approved as theoretically correct by several who were competent to follow the proposition to its logical conclusion.

GETTING AT EXACT FIGURES. It is assumed that if in a certain state the democratic counties showed a certain percentage of returns of the ballots that were sent them, and the republican counties showed another percentage voted out of their ballots, the difference represented the effective suppression of the vote of the lesser one. That percentage once chtained. it could be applied to the number of ballots sent to the state, and the resulting sum could be added to the actual vote of the party deficient in its percentage of returns This does not mean in every case to the party of smallest vote. Kansas, for in-stance, McKinley has the largest vote, but the democratic counties returned a larger percentage of the ballota sent to them than did the republican. The difference was, therefore, in Kansas, added to the McKinley vote. But in most cases the deficit was in the democratic percentage of returns, and as the tables will show, the additions were made to the vote of that party. Missouri however, is another exception to the rule and the McKinley lead gains thereby.

This handling of the figures is not to be presumed as a final and exact estimate of the possible showing of the election of November 3, but it may have some indication that will cast light on the prospects in several of the states. The table which follows the showing of the states and of Chicago. In this matter, is made up speculatively, from these calculations, as an interesting study of what might be called the possible Bryan vote if there had been no effort to prevent a free expression of the Bryan sentiment as a political move.

VOTERS WHO ARE LOST. Many inquiries have been made as to the percentages of the vote to each state which ere sent out to the country and to the city population. One of the accompanying tables shows this separation in detail. It is fol-lowed by one which treats the number of ballots returned by the postoffices as un-deliverable because the addresses could not be found. Throughout the states this is an inconsiderable item, amounting to less than an average of two to each county participa-ting in the election, but in the transient population of Chicago it reaches a large

Mrs. Kaiser was shot through the head and instantly killed and her husband was wounded in the arm by a second gunshot. The robbers secured all the fewelry worn by the couple, even to the man's shirtstude and a pocketbook containing $53. Then they made their escape While they were driving along a lonely road two men sprang from the bushes lining the While one seized the horse by the bridle, the other covered the occupants of the carriage with a revolver and demanded their money. Kaiser promptly handed out his cash, together with his watch, his wife's watch and a diamond pin. The robbers then commenced to ge out of the carriage and as they did so a pocketbook which Mrs. Kaiser carrie caught the eyes of the man with the pistol He demanded it, but the woman hesitated. Almost instantly the highwaymen leveled his revolver at her and fired, the bullet passing through her head. As Kalser started toward him a second shot was fired. passing through his right arm. The men immediately made for the bushes and ea-caped. The whole surrounding country is affame with indignation and horror. The wounded husband lies at his boarding house in a state bordering upon insanity.

FATHER PROTESTS HIS INNOCENCE.

Says He Was Not Responsible for the Death of His Wife and Children. RICHMOND, Mo., Oct. 28.—Interesting developments came to light today in the murder case of Mrs. Jessie Winner and her two children, but nothing conclusive enough to fasten the crime upon any one. The father, who is in jail, accused of dispatching his family, protests his innocence. He says he slept away from home on the night of the murder and was in the company of Maggie Catron, whose presence at the Winner household had previously made trouble between Winner and his wife. rumor connecting the two with the der is affoat, but nothing positive has been adduced to substantiate it. Footprints of a man and a woman and of a horse with three shoes and tracks of a buggy wheel have been discovered near the scene of the artine. Such a horse was missing on the night of the murder from a stable near where Winner says he stayed. Mrs. Winner was a divorcee and came from Spaulding county. Ohio. Her first husband's name was Jacob Riser and her second marriage was the sequel to an elopment. It is rumored that Riser was seen in Richmond a few days ago, but no confirmation is Rally at Holdrege. HOLDREGE, Neb., Oct. 28 .- (Special Telegram.)-The grand rally of the season was held here this evening. Senator Manderson came in on the B. & M. at 5 o'clock, escorted by the band, Woman's Marching club and the flambeau clubs of Minden and Axtell. They were met at the train by the band and flambeau club and escorted to the Hampton hotel. For the evening Senator Thurston spoke in the opera house two hours, and was followed by W. E. Andrews in a thirty-minute address. The audience called for E. D. Einsel, candidate for state enator, to address them, which he did. The The chairman of the meeting, F. A. Dean, then tried to dismiss the audience, but the people would not go and called for the Holdrege Glee club. It rendered two nelec-tions and the women's quartet of Minden was then called out and sang two selections. The audience then called out W. P. Hall, candidate for county attorney, who made a short address. Then the people slowly and with seemingly reluctance dispersed. Mrs. Manderson, who occupied a seat on the rostrum, said to the Bee reporter that it was the most remarkable meeting for its enthusiasm that she had ever attended.

D., Oct. 28.—(Special Telegram.)-Frank Truedell of this city wen to Woonsocket last night and as a result of his trip he is now confined in the county jail in that place awaiting the action of the grand jury. During the evening while the parade was attracting the attention of the people Truedell made the acquaintance of a young girl, name Knight, aged about 12 years. Under the guise of wanting to find the residence of a minister, Truedell induced the girl to show him the way Having reached a secluded spot Truedell grasped the girl and accomplished his purpose. The girl fought flercely to defeat Truedell. His face was squatched in a fearful manner, showing with what desperaion the girl fought.

This morning at Woonsocket Truedell was confronted with the girl, who possitively dentified him. An examination was held later and Truedell was held to the circuit court on the charge of criminal assault This is not the first time Truedell has been in trouble of this kind. About four years ago he was arrested on a similar charge in this city, of which he was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary, but was later pardoned upplause.) The big noonday meeting of business men at Batter D armory on the lake front claimed Mr. Bryan's attention as quickly as he could be hustled through the several miles of streets from St. Stanislaus. mized over by senks, Mr. Bryan said:

My friends, here is our condition. Here is a great financial system resting upon a handful of gold, and people in a foreign land have a string to the gold and you never know when they are going to built the foundation out from under your fabric and let your entire commercial structure collapse. Tell the people not to be nattated! My friends, you cannot caim the sea by words. As hopeless is it to attempt to caim the troubled society by telling them to be quiet when they know that eather trophe stands just in front of them all the time. (Cheering.) I want you to note this proposition. When we take about wanting more money, they fell us there is money enough in the country, plenty of money in the country. The moment you begin to argue that there should be more they will allow you by recitizing the more would be more they will allow you be not to be appeared. in the country. The moment you begin to argue that there should be more they will silence you by pointing to the amount of money in the banks waiting to be loaned. And then you say "All right; if we have enough money in this country now lot us have a financial system of our own," and they say, "Oh, no; we can't do that, because if you do that then we cannot borrow from abroad." (Laughter and cheers.) Why do we want to berrow if we have enough? (Prolonged cheering.) Now, my friends, there are two propositions. You cannot escape both of them. If we have enough money now, then we do not want any money to come from abroad, because then we would have too much, and nobody wants too much, (Laughter and applause). If we need money from abroad it is conclusive proof that we have not enough money now in the country, and if we have not chough now I assert that it is better to have an additional supply come out of our own mountains and be our own argue that there should be more they wil out of our own mountains and be our own money instead of borrowing and then pay-ing it back to the foreign nations of the world. more, make the foreign nations of the world. (Great applause.)

The republican platform pledges the republican party to use every effort to promote international bimetallism. How is it going to promote it? By making it profitable for foreign creditors to object to it. How are they going to promote international bimetallism? By making it profitable to foreign financiers to refuse our petition. I promise you to promote international bimetallism and I promise to do it in a more sensible way than by making it profitable to refuse our petition.

PAY BONDS IN SULVER. PAY BONDS IN SILVER.

PAY BONDS IN SILVER.

You ask me what your plan is. I will tell you. We have tried your plan for twenty years and we are further off now than we were when we commenced to try your remedy. (Applause.) I propose a different plan. You have said to forcign creditors that if they will object to bimetallism we will join with them in making their nortgages more valuable and their dollars buy more. I propose that the United States shall say that the minis of this country shall be opened to the free and unlimited colbage of silver on equal terms with gold at the present ratio and the money coined shall be alike a legal tender for all debta, public and private. (Great applause.) And then I propose that we shall say to them: "Gentlemen, if you conspire to make that silver dollar worth less than the gold dollar we shall pay you in that silver dollar." (Great applause and cheers.) You say that is repudlation? I deny it. They bought our bloods only a short time ago and they made a difference between colo bonds and gold bonds, charging for the risk they took, were paid for. You say that coin bonds are good bonds, charging for the risk they took, and now let them have the risk they wave paid for. You say that they have a right to charge us more be-cause of the risk they took, and then we have not the right to exercise the option which they chieffisted on? Ah, my friends, that idea comes simply from those who think that allosofiely should be careful to guard the integration the creditor and neg-lect every right that a debtor has (Anct every right that a debtor has. (Apinuse)
I notice that some of our crities are very much excited because the Chicago platform says that we pledge ourselves to secure such legislation as will for the future prevent contracts for a particular kind o money. Why, they say that we are no going to let people contract. We are no going to let people contracts.

day night after eight days of delay:
THOMEON, Ga., Oct. 28.—Yours received.
In relify, say my letter was mailed from here October 14 with three 2-cent postage stamps on it, directed to Hon. Marion Butler, Washington, D. C. I do not care to say whether I think postal authorities at Washington would have withheld it eight days. Perhaps Mr. Edgerton, secretary of the national committee could tell where the letter has been. I had nothing to do

HOLDS TRAINMEN RESPONSIBLE Coroner's Jury Completes Its Inques

Over the Prisco Victims. ST. LOUIS. Oct. 25.-The corener's jury that investigate the collision Sunday, which resulted so fatally has returned a verdict finding that was due to the carlessness George Atwood, conductor, and J. A. Dryden, engineer, in charge of the weat-bound train, and the failure of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad company in this case to exercise proper supervision over the movements of its trains.

Another name must be added to the list of victims of last Sunday's wreck on the 'Frisco, John H. Dressing a painter, was in the wreck and was internally injured. He was extricated by friends and taken to St. Louis without the county officials or the officials of the railroad having obtained his name. Since Monday he has been in a precarious condition, and unconscious, and the attending physicians state that he can not live. This will make nine deaths as
