The suddenness of the rise was due to speculation in options. The reaction now taking place proves that the advance was premature. This week the markets have dropped and I should not be surprised if this continued for a week or two. But prices will go up again and if Americans do not gitt the English markets. surprised if this continued for a week or two. But prices will go up again and if Americans do not glut the English markets they will advance to higher figures than have yet been reached. I have been ad-vising the British farmer for some time to hold wheat. Those who are able to do so, did held on, but the farmers here, in the main, are in no better plight than the farmers in America and most of them have by the situation. In its origin, it was not speculative, although speculators rushed in and drove it beyond what was reasonable for the moment. The world had no large supply of wheat to dispose of and England had dangerously depleted granaries. After the first rush prices are steadying now,

EIGHTY PER CENT FOR CALL LOANS. High Bids for Money Incident to the Election Excitement. NEW YORK, Oct. 25 .- The approach of the election was signalized in financial circles here today by a rapid and remarkabl the opening of the exchange for business today there was a great demand for call money, which opened at 10 per cent, 1 per day, when it fluctuated between 7 and 12 per cent. By leaps and bounds the rate advanced until at noon 50 per cent was manded for cash loans. The demand sen the rates up until late in the day, when 100 per cent was asked and 89 bid. This was the closing quotation. The jump to 160 per cent began gradually and proceeded amid much excitement. The first loan was made at 10 per cent and the rate then advanced to 15 and finally, about 2:30 p. m. a broker, who wanted money, was compelled per cent. Business was only moderate. as offerings of funds were extremely light. As the demand for money increased the price asked increased by tens from 50 to 60, then to 70, until the maximum was reached.

The immediate cause of the stringency was the calling of loans by some of the banks that wished to prepare themselves for made on Friday go over until Monday, ac cording to the custom of the street although the banks legally have the right to call money on any day of the week. The banks, as a rule, are reserving their surplus funds for the accommodation of their regular customers, who are being supplied at 6 per cent in proportion to the business done by them. The stringency was not especially due to shipments of funds to the interior, as the colume of this business has not exceeded the average of last week. Bankers report clients and a sympathetic hardening influence on the money market was exerted by a report of an increase in demands for commission premium on gold 3-16 per cent to 14 and per cent.

M'KINLEY DEMANDS QUALITY IN MONEY

Recalls the Time When the Volume Was Increased to Such a Point that the Value Almost Left It.

CANTON, O., Oct. 29.-Historians of the campaign of 1896 will record Thursday, October 29, as one of the red letter days, Major McKinley has been kept busy since Indiana-I am confident McKinley's plural. carly morning and visitors came so fast house of William Toby was first in the path of the storm. New York—McKinley's majority in the state will exceed 300,000. New York City will give 60,000 majority. The congressional majorities will run from 1,500 in New York City to 14,000 or 16,000 in the Twenty-second and Thirty-fourth districts. All the republican candidates for congress will be elected. The republicans will elect 120 of the 150 members of the general assembly house waiting for the major to reappear and though evening he came out upon the porch toward evening he came out upon the porch to meet them.

Major McKinley made five formal addresses, the last to seven carloads of people coming from Fulton and Williams counties, Ohio, and DeKalb and other northwestern counties in Indiana. There were two introductory addresses. The five audiences addressed were the fourteen delegations in which were railroad men, business men, manufacturers, farmers, menhanies, miners. manufacturers, farmers, mechanics, miners, olinien, glass workers, iron workers, bankers, professional men, printers, men and women office employes, coming from four states— West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio. Besides the five speeches Major Me-Kinley received a large number of individual callers from all over the country, shook hands with a large party of women stenog-raphers from Akron, who had a tallyho-parade and who were afterwards received by Major McKinley's mother, met and spoke informally in his library to the directors and officers of the German Deposit bank of Pitts burg, and made a brief address in the same place, responding to the greetings of a small arty of business men and manufacturers of

Some persons seem to think that the way to get rich in this country is to depreciate the quality of the money we have and some people have gone so far as to-say that it does not make any difference about the quality of the money so we have the quantity. I think some of the men standing around me today, who were across the river during the late civil war, will remember that quality had very much to do with the value of the money, and that while there was quantity in plenty of a certain kind of money, the quality of it was so poor it would scarcely buy a breakfast, (Cries of "That's right" and "Hurrah for McKiniey.") General Lougstreet recently said in a speech at Augusta, Gar. "It was said of the confederate money during the war that a hig hamper basket full of it was sent to market for a basketful of supplies for daily family use. The last breakfast I had in Richmond, before General Lee oulled us away from these, was a small steak, plain biscult and warm water that had a faint suspicion of coffee about it; and this sumplicuous repast cost me exactly $25 in confederate money, and I felt then I was swindling 'mine host' as Grant's guns called me to work on the field. I have heard a poor private had to pay $200 for a sill scannier meal."

What we want in this country, my fellow clitzens, no matter where we live is a good, honest dollar that has value in it. When we give our cight or ten hours a day's work to the railroad company, we have had short hours for the last three years and a half. We don't like them and don't want short dollars.

Then there are some people who seem to believe that in few and that all of us have a right to aspire to the highest hin

I spurn the attempt to array one body or class of my fellow citizens against another and I resent with indignation the idea that the workingmen are not patriots. They have been natriots in every crists of our country. They require no coercion to make them love their country their homes, their mothers, their wives and their childern. (Loud and continuous cheering.)

I am glad to know that the railroad employes from one end of this country to the same flag—the flag of national honer and public and private integrity. (Applause and cheers.) I am glad to know that the employes of railroad lines all over the United States, for, they have visited me from nearly every state, are standing together as never before, for the maintenance of sound currency and perpetuity of our free institutions, that recognize neither class, creed nor condition.

I thank you, my fellow citizens for this call. We are now so near the time when this great fury is to resider its verdict that arguments soom wholly unnecessary.

I think you are all ready to vote. I think you are waiting with supreme impatience for the hour when you can put in the best aspirations of your fearts, not only for yourselves, but for your families. I bid you welcome and give you hearty greatings to my home, I wish you a safe return to your homes, and trust that after the election is over, the vote of the American people will be found on the side of right, justice and patriotism. I will be glad to great you all personally, (Three rousing cheers were then given for the next president of the United States.)
