Through their skillful work the schools of Omaha have attained a high degree of evcellence and an enviable reputation. Many of them have reputations extending beyond the borders of their state and would be welcomed in other cities, as some of them have already been. The loss of any considerable numbe of them would then be a blow from whic our schools would not recover for years Every child passing through the schools at that time would be a direct loser through

Whenever, in any city, the salaries of its teachers fall materially below those paid by other similar cities, this drain of the cream of the teaching force begins, and will continue until the inequality no longer exists. If Omaha were paying more than other similar cities, the question of salary reduction might be a proper one to 11.00 consider, but as a matter of fact, in the region in which Omaha is situated, lying east 12.030 of Pennsylvania and north of Tennessee and Arkansas, out of about thirty similar cities only two or three pay as little to their teachers as was received by the teachers of Omaha last year, or will be paid to them next year. This is true not only of the rank and file, the grade teachers, but it is espe-cially true of the principals, upon whose business in Omaha. The home brewers sub scribed $5,000 each, on condition that the outside brewers subscribe amounts in pro-portion to the amount of business done by them in Omaha. At the same time the home brewers indicated the respective amounts they considered the outside dealers should contribute. Committees visited the head-quarters of the outside brewers and cndeavored to secure subscriptions, which would comply with the conditions referred to. A voluminous correspondence was car-ried on and the result was that the outside brewers refused to subscribe anywhere near amounts indicated. For instance, amount that the home brewers thought the Schlitz Brewing company should subscribe was $3,750, but the officers of that company refused to subscribe more than $500. This was finally pushed up to $1,000 after hard work on the part of the soliciting co and this amount was accepted. The same procedure in the case of the other outside rowers resulted in the following subscriptions: Anheuser-Busch company, St. Louis, $650; Pabst. Milwaukee, $500; W. J. Lemp Brewing company, St. Louis, $500; Schoen hofer Brewing company, Chicago, $300, The home brewers then reduced their subscriptions and the Metz Brewing company, Krug Brewing company and Omaha Brewing association each subscribed $3,000, and the South

The subscription list has been swelled by subscriptions of $1,000 each, from Kelley Stiger & Co., and Browning, King & Co.
