McAuliffe-Carroll Match at San Francisco Settles One Thing.

JACK GETS THE DECISION, AS USUAL

Crowd in Attendance Convinced that the Men Were Merely Making a Show to Save Their Reputations.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—Jack McAuliffe, the light weight champion pugilist of the world, met and again defeated Jimmy Carroll, his old-time rival and three times his antagonist in the ring for that honor, tonight before St. George's club in a ten round bout, forever settling the question of superiority between them. In all their battles previous to tonight, McAuliffe has been the victor, although without a hard fight. The last time the men met was in this city, March 21, 1890, when McAuliffe, who was all but in the forty-seventh round, rallied under the clever handling of Jack Dempsey and put Carroll out, when the latter was fighting strong.

Although Carroll has fought his forty-fourth year, he is a well preserved man and had trained long and faithfully for this, perhaps his last fight. It may be said he has been in training for years to defeat McAuliffe and entered the ring tonight in prime condition. McAuliffe has although a distance to the coast by water from New York for the purpose of training en route, he arrived here rather high in health. Since arriving he has put in some hard licks and he has taken of considerable flesh, yet his condition was not as good as Carroll's.

Nothing in the fight was quite brisk, with McAuliffe slightly favorite at odds of 9 to 10, though considerable money changed hands. The fight was a draw, with the hard and scientific fight between the stars and the additional attraction of a ten-round contest between Dal Hawkins, who recently fought with John Gassner in New York, and Joe Finnick, known to the sporting world as the "Arkansas Kid," drew to Woodward's pavilion a crowd of 5,000 spectators to the extent of the seating capacity. Referee George Green stopped the Hawkins-Finnick ("The Arkansas Kid") bout in the middle of the fight, as he considered the decision to Hawkins. It was too one-sided to be of interest.

Carroll appeared first and was well received by the enthusiastic reception of McAuliffe. He is still a favorite with the patrons of boxing. Carroll looked as good as usual and he was in good luck. There was a noticeable absence of all superfluous flesh about the waist and he looked fit to make the battle of his life. His head was white and appeared very soft. There was too much plumpness about the chest, arms and shoulders. Both men exceeded the light weight limit, Carroll and McAuliffe about hands at 140 pounds.

At the beginning of the fight McAuliffe adopted a running tactics, forcing his opponent to the ropes repeatedly, but the pace was too hot to last, and at the end of the third round, McAuliffe ordered his opponent to stop until the last round his blows lacked steam, and it was noticeable that whenever he got Carroll in a tight place he was slow to take advantage of it. From that time on until the last round his blows lacked steam, and it was noticeable that whenever he got Carroll in a tight place he was slow to take advantage of it.

WHAT THE SOLDIERS EAT AND DRINK. The Typical Army Post in the Indian Country—Midwinter in the Garrison—Drills, Dinners and Amusements.

Omaha friends of members of the Second Infantry, which has changed places with the Twenty-second regiment, will find much interest in the following sketch of a soldier's life in a genuine frontier garrison. It is written by the correspondent of the New York Sun from Fort Custer, Mont.

A soldier's life in an army post on the frontier in the Indian country is not so easy and indolent these days as many cast-iron people imagine. It is a pleasant and somewhat exciting experience and for some soldiers it is a very happy life. For the last thirty years a military post in the west, in the fullest sense of the word, is really no fort at all. It is merely a collection of low, strong-built and homely buildings, houses arranged in any form most pleasing to the commanding officers. Some of the structures of the forts look as if they had been dropped down on the prairie by accident, the purpose being to have one military building in each company's post.

THEY FARE WELL. Let no one be deluded with the idea that Uncle Sam's soldiers dine from cheap, bayonet drill, and the like receive the strictest attention from all hands. A commissioned officer is the instructor at drills. Breakfast is at 8 o'clock, and the day is over at 6 o'clock. There is no time for a nap. The day is over at 6 o'clock. There is no time for a nap. The day is over at 6 o'clock. There is no time for a nap.

COBBETT SIGNS AN AGREEMENT. Meeting with Fitzsimmons Depends Now on the Latter. BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Cobbett, the pugilist, signed an agreement tonight, with Warren Lewis, president of the Greater New York Athletic club, formerly the Coney Island Athletic club, to spar twenty rounds with Bob Fitzsimmons, who is expected to arrive on January 14, for a purse of $20,000, up to which Lewis today received a reply to his message from Fitzsimmons, in which the latter asked for a fight on the 14th of January. Lewis and Colville, both saw Cobbett tonight and both are ready to sign. Colville would not put up the guarantee. Cobbett accepted Lewis' offer, and the latter will deposit his money in the hands of a third party. Under conditions both men must put up $2,500 with the club as a guarantee of their appearance, which will be returned to the other duelist on his arrival. Cobbett expressed himself as being in excellent health, and his decision, which he announced from the stage, was received with cheers by the audience. The date of the fight is not yet fixed, but it is expected to be held on the 14th of January. Fitzsimmons is already training for his fight with Lewis and will be in excellent condition in two weeks. At the close of the performance tonight, Lewis and Colville, both saw Cobbett tonight and both are ready to sign. Colville would not put up the guarantee. Cobbett accepted Lewis' offer, and the latter will deposit his money in the hands of a third party. McAuliffe-Carroll Match at San Francisco Settles One Thing.

JACK GETS THE DECISION, AS USUAL

Crowd in Attendance Convinced that the Men Were Merely Making a Show to Save Their Reputations.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—Jack McAuliffe, the light weight champion pugilist of the world, met and again defeated Jimmy Carroll, his old-time rival and three times his antagonist in the ring for that honor, tonight before St. George's club in a ten round bout, forever settling the question of superiority between them. In all their battles previous to tonight, McAuliffe has been the victor, although without a hard fight. The last time the men met was in this city, March 21, 1890, when McAuliffe, who was all but in the forty-seventh round, rallied under the clever handling of Jack Dempsey and put Carroll out, when the latter was fighting strong.

Although Carroll has fought his forty-fourth year, he is a well preserved man and had trained long and faithfully for this, perhaps his last fight. It may be said he has been in training for years to defeat McAuliffe and entered the ring tonight in prime condition. McAuliffe has although a distance to the coast by water from New York for the purpose of training en route, he arrived here rather high in health. Since arriving he has put in some hard licks and he has taken of considerable flesh, yet his condition was not as good as Carroll's.

Nothing in the fight was quite brisk, with McAuliffe slightly favorite at odds of 9 to 10, though considerable money changed hands. The fight was a draw, with the hard and scientific fight between the stars and the additional attraction of a ten-round contest between Dal Hawkins, who recently fought with John Gassner in New York, and Joe Finnick, known to the sporting world as the "Arkansas Kid," drew to Woodward's pavilion a crowd of 5,000 spectators to the extent of the seating capacity. Referee George Green stopped the Hawkins-Finnick ("The Arkansas Kid") bout in the middle of the fight, as
