

THANKS RETURNED BY ALL

Omaha People Show Their Gratitude to a Benign Providence.

DAY BRINGS GLADNESS TO HEARTS OF MANY

Spiritual Feasts at the Churches and Feasts at Home for the Inner Man—Features of the Day.

The day set aside by proclamation and prayer for returning thanks for blessings received was generally given up to an enjoyment of the things which make glad the heart of the inner man, and the annual decoration of the succulent turkey went merrily on. The family reunion, which has come to be recognized as concomitant with the annual Thanksgiving, was a feature, and boyhood days under the old footstool were discussed over the well-brother used to make.

In many a home in Omaha the Thanksgiving turkey was conspicuous by its absence. While the various charitable organizations had done noble work ably assisted by individual efforts and by the united efforts of the school children, there remained many homes where the bare table gave silent evidence that gaunt poverty held sway.

AT HOME AND AT CHURCH. While the living of the good housewives were adorned with suggestions of beautiful spreads and the downtown resorts were vivid with the colors of many times multiplied feet of turkey, hundreds of the more devoutly inclined gathered in the Omaha churches during the morning to return thanks for such blessings as the season brought. Congregations were large and services in their own churches or joined with others in union meetings. There was no effort toward elaborate celebrations.

WITH THE BUCK AND NEEDY. It has long been the custom of the benevolent inclined people of the city to make Thanksgiving a day of giving. The donations to the various hospitals of the city and yesterday morning they were even more liberal than usual. The Presbyterian hospital was especially benefited by the contributions and a liberal contribution of supplies encouraged the managers and assisted to cheer the patients.

AT THE JAILS. It has been a long time since a considerable portion of the prisoners in the two jails of the city sat down to such a feast as was served yesterday. Not a few of the so-called vagrants who kept their heads above water by their wits, and who were "sent up" for ten or twenty days came to the conclusion that they were not so badly used as they had been.

AT THE HOTELS. At all the hotels there were indications that a special feast day was at hand. The chefs were in high spirits yesterday morning as they saw carried to completion the arrangements that had been planned for the guests of the year.

MADE THEMSELVES AT HOME. Promptly at 8 o'clock the doors to the banquet room were opened and the members took their positions at the various tables. Each one upon taking a chair arose and introduced himself and the best of good fellowship prevailed throughout. George G. Wallace acted as master of ceremonies and later introduced the speakers of the evening.

tion is made by the association and the so-called "underlying poor" have a small chance of obtaining any assistance. Yesterday, however, all such distinction was thrown to the winds and every applicant whether deserving or not, was sent away with basket or bag full of provisions.

FOUND THE "WIDOW'S MITE." The donors were carried and brought to the office of the association Wednesday night. Secretary Laugbald and Clerk Lindsay and their assistants were busy from the morning until the mass of staff was what Secretary Laugbald called the "widow's mite," with a tremor in his voice. It was a little sack containing a huge potato and a piece of paper enclosing a list of names and the amount subscribed in childish characters.
