by Two Men. DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 29 .- At the hour of midnight five pistol shots in rapid succession in the vicinity of the court house attracted the police to that building. W. E Coe, county treasurer, was found in his office, with blood oozing from a wound in the back of the head. He was in a dazed condition and very excited frame of mind. Ho said that he had been working very late in order to get the affairs of the office in shape to retire in favor of his successor. At midnight two men appeared, and one placed a gun to his temple and ordered him to copen the vault. He did so, and all the valuable papers and contents of the inner vault were examined by one of the robbers. After placing a considerable sum of mone in a canvas sack, the robbers withdrew from the vault. Coe seized his pistol and shot at the robbers. The latter returned the fire, hitting the treasurer in the back of the head, inflicting a bad scalp wound. The treasurer says the robbers secured $6,000, and he is confident that he shot and badly wounded one of his assailants. The police force and a large number of blood hounds are on the trail of the robbers.

SETTLES A LAWSUIT WITH A GUN. Ohio Man Murders His Opponent and

Says He's Happy. PERRYSVILLE, O., Nov. 29.-Horace L. Stearns, a wealthy and aged citizen of this place, was shot and instantly killed this morning by Elias Keyster. The murder grew out of a lawsuit in which Keyster was defeated and in which Stearns acted as the attorney for the successful party. Keyster had threatened to kill Stearns. This morning the latter was walking past Keyster's house, when he was shot in the back, falling dead in the street. Keyster was arrested and declared that he had not felt happier in ten years. The mur-derer had a bad reputation and so intense was the feeling that it was deemed neces sary to remove him to jail to prevent vio

ner in Which Death Approaches. CHICAGO, Nov. 29 .- A man giving the name of E. L. Bryan, who is thought to have come from Pittsburg, Pa., committed suicide wild at the Kimball hotel early this morning by taking laudanum. On a table in the room was found a notebook, in which he described for twenty minutes the feeling he experi enced as he was dying. The statement was dedicated to medical science. He had taken great care to conceal his identity, tearing all marks from his clothes and undercioth-ing. On the cover of the memorandum book was found the name of a Pittsburg firm, which led the police to believe that Bryan hails from that clly.

DE A VOUNG GIRE LOOKS BRIGHT FOR IRELAND

Plans Proposed for Bettering the Economio Conditions of the Country.

CO-OPERATION THE REMEDY FOR EVILS

Hon. Hornee Plunkett, M. P., for County Dublin, Talks Entertainingly of Conditions There.

Hon. Herace Plunkett, member of Parilament for the southern division of County Dublin, Ireland, is in the city, where he is looking after his real estate and other interests. Mr. Plunkett has taken an active part in developing the agricultural and industrial resources of his own country and he obtained considerable notoriety in British and Irish polities of late by his success in persuading leading Trishmen, irrespective of religious belief and political opinions, to join together for the same purpose. He is the founder of the "Recess Committee." hold, a fruit grower living north of the city. which was composed of Parnellites and conservative members of Parliament: lawvers, robbers, who entered his house at an early Catholic priests and Protestants, tegether with prominent men in manufacturing and commercial circles. The committee thus conmen in their bedroom. The robbers covered stituted met after the election of 1895 and them with pistois and demanded to know proceeded to discuss what, if any, recommendations for legislation such a body of Irishmen could agree to make to the government. A new administration had just come into power, with an immense anti-home rule majority, but with a declared anxiety to promote by every reasonable con-cession the material welfare of the country. The committee deliberated for several months, and it was not until August, 1896, that it published its report. This document was received by the British and Irish press with strong and almost unanimous approval and the action which the government may take toward the committee's report when Parliament opens is awaited with much interest. The importance of the report is that t recommends a radical change in the government of Ireland, and calls upon the state to foster in various ways practiced in other European countries, the agricultural and industrial interests of Ireland. A Bee reporter called upon Mr. Plunkett yesterday and asked him if he would state his views as to the present political sit-uation in Ireland. LOOKS FOR BETTER THINGS.

"If you will excuse me, I had rather avoid giving my views on Irish politics, I am much more concerned with economics than the political condition of Ireland just "Well, there are thousands of Nebraska citizens who would be glad to hear any news f Ireland. I am aware of that, and shall be glad to tell you anything I know about that country. I look to a considerable industrial evival over there in the near future."

"But on what do you base your anticlations of a better state of things in Ire-Why, in the far greater interest which the people at large are taking in their own social and industrial advancement. There is a growing desire to build up the agricul-tural and other industries of the country and a recognition that this must mainly be through the efforts of the people themconsiderable discussion by the Knights of selves. "But how can it be improved? Is it not suffering mainly from foreign competition?

How can you deal with that?"
"I was coming to that. We cannot stop foreign competition, and we don't want to. But a great deal of it owes its success to the better methods of production and distribution practiced by foreign countries. This superiority has been found to be largely the result of a system of agricultural co-operation which prevails in these countries end which, in common with some other Irishmen, I am trying to introduce into Ireland. After two years of effort in this direction I founded, in 1894, a philanthropio association known as the Trish Agricultural Organization Society' to preach the eco-nomic doctrine of co-operative production and distribution to the Irish farmers. Already we have a big movement started in Ireland. Over 12,000 farmers have joined it and have formed 125 separate societies in districts scattered all over the country." -"Will you tell me what is the exact advan-age of these combinations to the farmers?"

ADVANTAGES OF COMBINATION, "Well, it would be a big story to tell you all the advantages which our farmers find that they can obtain by combination, I will give for a few instances. In dairying districts they join together to creet and equip with all the best centrifugal and other machinery, butter factories or creameries. These they erect with their own capital at their own risk and for their own profit. They are under their own con-trol and are managed by a committee elected by the members of the society. They in-variably succeed. In other districts soities are organized for the joint purchase f seeds, feeding stuffs, manures, implements, nachinery, in fact everything the farmer equires in his agricultural production. By this means his production is greatly cheap ened, the quality of the output is improved and the quantity increased. In some cares they undertake the combined sale of agricul-tural produce and have a multiplicity of middle profits. There are also credit asso-clations which enable the farmer to get cheaper money for his industry and to get it on terms which have regard to the requirements of his business. These combinations are able to secure a loan to help in spring sowing which shall not fall due before harvest time. The societies obtain better transportation arrangements at lower freights by bulking and equalizing their consignments and by jointly approaching the carrying companies. But I cannot exhaust the ad-vantages of combination to farmers. What I have told you will illustrate the point sufficiently. It is enough to say generally that combination in agricultural production is the great agency of progress in the farm-ing industry and that we are developing the idea in Ireland and have great hopes of the beneficial effect, both economic and social, which is liable to follow."

"But, Mr. Plunkett, where does the necessary capital for these enterprises come from? suppose they require some. Does your organization society provide it?"

"Certainly not. That would be quite un-sound even if we had capital for the purpose. We act merely in an advisory capacity. We have men we call organizers—men that have studied these combinations in other countries and who are capable of explaining them to Irish farmers. This is no show the theoretical advantages of combination, but to devise a constitution for a society with such rules as will harmonize the interests of all concerned and make it the object of all to secure the success of the project, requires a good deal of ex-position as you may imagine. But I have digressed. You asked me where the capital comes from. Well, when convinced of the benefits of the scheme there is always some money available, for a start. After a short time the credit of the society and of its members becames good and capital for fur-ther developments is forthcoming."

"Now, Mr. Plunkett, you are doubtless aware that the state of Nebraska depends
