"I understand that without the refining. int a moderate capital suffices to estab lish such a factory. It is in connection with these local factories that I about like to see the principle of co-operation put into practice. This could best be achieved by some such plan as the following: A re-fining syndicate or company should ad-vance a portion of the capital required for the local sarily, almost infinitesimal. Most of them are, of course, private bills (of which there are 1,100), but there are also 256 bills on the calendar on the state of the union and nine the local factory. The farmers surround-ing the factory should be invited to bene shareholders in it. It would be bet-that they should eventually own all the endar. Some of these are of very great public importance and those interested will This would guarantee that they should keep up a supply of berth. They should have, in any case, a strong represenaction on them.

The difficulty would be by no means insuperable. Of course it is necessary that the broad principles of the scheme should be understood, and this would require an exposition. The state would do well to pay the small cost which the thorough explanation of the scheme would involve-that is, to pay competent organizers, such as our society in Ireland sends around, to work.
