ing down the bearer. The war which terminated with the battle of Bad Ax in 1832 was then at an end, after a great reduction of the warriors of Black Hawk's band. The American forces were in command of General Scott. to Mackinac. They met the British Father, as Black Hawk calls him, who helped them as Black Hawk calls him, who helped them and furnished them with goods. They were troubled there with their enemics, who drove them from place to place, till they reached Green Bay, or what is now called Sauk river. There they held council with the tribe or nation of Foxes, who abandoned their villages and joined the Sauks. A party of young men had been on an expedition

"In accordance with Black Hawk's request "In accordance with Black Hawk's request I acted as his interpreter. I was particu-larly cautious to understand the narrative throughout, and have no hesitation in pronouncing it true in every particular." Black Hawk's dedication of the work to his captor, Captain Atkinson, is pathetic, and a translation is here given. He was a prisoner at Jefferson Barracks, and at the time was 67 years old. He says to General Atkin-from the Ouisconsin to the Mississippi valley, from the Ouisconsin to the Portage des Sioux, near the mouth of the Missouri, about son: "Sir! The changes of fortune have made you my conqueror. The story of my life is 700 miles in length. At that time they had little intercourse with the whites, except with the traders who came to their villages for their petries. At that time intoxicating intimately connected with a part of the history of your own. I have, therefore, dedicated it to you. Before I set out on my journey to the land of my fathers 1 have liquors were unknown among them, aithough afterward introduced by the traders. Black Hawk was bitterly opposed to this, and sometimes, as said by an erewitness, "drove in the kegs of whisky or rum which were furnished them by traders." They held their lands by their prowess as warriors. In 1864 an event exercised black determined to give my motives and reasons for my former hostilities to the whites, and to vindicate my character from misrepre-sentation. I am now an obscure member of a nation that formerly honored and respected a nation that formerly honored and respected my opinions. May you never experience the humility that the power of the American government has reduced me to, is the wish of him who in his native forests was once warriors. In 1804 an event occurred which gave rise to all their troubles with the as proud and bold as yourself. Black Hawk, tenth moon, 1833."

This sketch is not a history of the war, but more of a character sketch. That innate One of their number had killed an American, for which he was imprisoned. Four or five Indians went down to St. Louis, nobility and religious feeling of the Sac as a nation is exemplified by an incident which where he was confined, to secure his re-lease and his return to his family by offeroccurred in 1841. It is told in the souvenirs of the Prince de Joinville, when he made the ing a compensation for the life of the mur-dered man, according to the Indian custom. General William Clarke, the companion of descent of the Mississippi. The territory of lowa, which belonged to the Sacs and Foxes, Lewis, at that time was the general superin-tendent of western Indians and their affairs. The government, through Clarke, was in dispute between the whites and the indians. The work says:

"A party of Indians came on board at St. Louis. They were on their way to Washingrefused the compensation, but demanded lands. Black Hawk and the other Indians, ton to lay their grievances before the preal-dent. They had the most resolute and imwho were informed of the circumstances, were hittely opposed to parting with their pressive countenances, and behaved with the greatest dignity, never showing any excitelands, as these men had no authority for this, but went simply to rescue the prisment except when we passed the confluence of the Mississippi with the Missouri river. There was a splendid sunset. The Indians assembled in the stern of the boat and re-It is said the men were made drunk, and while in that condition the sale of the lands was consummated; the prisoner was set at peated a kind of invocation prayer. The history of the wrongs inflicted on he was shot dead by one of the men on the Indians of the Rock River country is only a repetition of those inflicted on the tribes All their lands on the east side of the Mississippi river were sold. Black Hawk says, for $1,000 a year; other accounts say $2,000. I think Judge Spencer, in his "Remi-niscences." says the latter. He was one of the old settlers of Rock Island. He speaks ellowhere. It is the testimony of those who have lived among them that they are, when in a state of nature, remarkably free from the vices usually attributed to savages.
