It was taken to the residence of his mother, 611 Sixteenth avenue. The body was accompanied by G. E. Ferguson, a news-paper man of Logan, who is a relative of the family. Particulars of the accident were learned last evening. The lad was spending the holidays with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fyock, who live on a farm several miles from Logan. The boy and his cousin, a lad of his own age, were holding a couple of skittish young horses that had tust been taken from the stable. The animile, held by Clifton began to playfully plunge and kick. The lad was holding it at the end of a fong halter, which permitted the horse to turn and kick him. The hoof struck him just back of the right car and crushed his skult. He never regained con-sciousness. The boy was a handsome, manilittle fellow, and was the pride of his mother
