WIND LESS SEVERE IN OMAHA

Storm Was General Over Central and Western States.

MANY TRAINS ABANDONED ON RAILWAYS

Terrific Winds Prevailed in Many Sections, but They Were Not So Severe in This Vicinity.

"Continued cold weather, with the mercury under the zero mark, is the present outlook for Tuesday," said Forecaster Welch after the observation taken at 9 o'clock last night.

During the day yesterday the thermometer fluctuated from 10 degrees above zero between the hours of 7 o'clock a. m. and 9 o'clock p. m. The wind was blowing toward midnight. The wind in the middle of the day blew at the rate of twenty-eight miles an hour, dropping in the evening to sixteen miles. The amount of snow falling was slight, only .07 of an inch being reported between the hours of 7 in the morning and 9 at night.

In connection with the wind velocity, while it has been far from pleasant to face the snow-laden breezes which whirled through the downtown streets, Omaha was favored in comparison with the blizzards which visited other cities. Some of the reports received from other cities show that at noon, yesterday, Chicago was experiencing a wind from the west that blew at the rate of forty-eight miles an hour; St. Paul, thirty-six miles an hour; Minneapolis, thirty-eight miles an hour; St. Louis, thirty-six miles an hour; Kansas City, thirty-eight miles an hour; Omaha, thirty-eight miles an hour; and Rapid City, thirty-eight miles an hour.

At Union Pacific headquarters all trains were reported slow during the entire day. The eastbound overland, due here at 4:45, came in in two sections, the second section being an hour and a half late. The westbound was reported falling over the main line, but that which had already fallen was reported as drifting badly. A mixed train, which was due at 3:30, was reported as late at Loup City branch at noon yesterday, made heavy weather of it for about two hours and left at 4:30, with a small number of passengers. A snowplow will be sent out from Grand Island this morning to extricate it.

Snow in the yards of the company at Grand Island had piled up to the height of six feet. The westbound passenger train was held at Grand Island for several hours. It was decided, however, not to send out all the westbound freight trains last night, but only one left early in the evening. The snowplow will be sent out this morning from Omaha, Sioux City, Norfolk and Emerson and the trains, barring additional snow, will be running on time today.

STORM OF THE BLIZZARD VARIETY.

Severe Weather of Five Years Ago Almost Equaled in Nebraska. O'NEILL, Neb., Jan. 4.—(Special Telegram)—A heavy snow storm started here yesterday morning and has been continuing unabated. It is the heaviest storm that has visited this section since the memorable blizzard of 1888. Traffic is entirely suspended and business in the city is at a standstill. The Sioux City, O'Neill & Western train did not leave for Sioux City today, the road being blocked by the heavy snow that had piled up on the line.
