MUCH FAMILY LINEN MAY BE WASHED

Charges of a Serious Nature Agains the Son Who is Handling the Property Evoke a Spirited Reply.

A petition was submitted to Judge Thornell yesterday, asking him to remove James Heywood from his position as executor of the estate of Jonathan D. Heywood, deceased. The Heywoods are wealthy farmers. James is the oldest son, and his appointment as executor was in accordance with the wishes of his father. The petitioners are Heywood's brothers and sisters and his stepmother. They allege that James is using his position as executor of the estate of his father to feather his own nest, and charge him with concealing and refusing to make an inventory of property be longing to the estate amounting to $20,000

They charge that there is about $15,000 in cash on deposit in the city banks and else-where, which he refuses to turn into the family pot for the good of all. The answer of James Heywood, which was also filed yesterday, contradicts all of these assertions, and goes into family his-tory a little bit. He admits that he is hold-ing a portion of the property claimed by the stepmother and the other heirs to bedependent-William Taylor and David Wil-liams. A hard fight is being made. Next long to the estate, but asserts that the prop ery is his by right of purchase and peace ful possession for many years. He alleges that the present Mrs. Jonathan Heywood is the third wife of his father, and that the lands which she now claims an interest in were purchased from his father and paid for long before the second Mrs. Heywood died, and were conveyed to bim by warranty deed signed by his father when he was in good health and not considering even the second dose of mstrimony. Heywood his material away. also expresses his satisfaction in thinly disguised legal phrases over the reputed discovery of $15,000 in cash which the other heirs assert is lying in banks waiting a chance to fall into their pockets. He promises to get gold of the money as soon as he can locate it, and agrees to list it with the remainder of the property of the estate. Executor Heywood declares that the values put upon the property by the stepmother and the other heirs are grossly exaggerated

Weary of Wedded Misery.

Three Council Bluffs women have publicly proclaimed that they are bired of incumbrances in the shape of husbands by filing their petitions in the district court for ab-solute divorce. Mrs. Bessie F. Haggerty alleges that she was married to Dwight F. Haggerty, a well known printer in this city, at Butte, Mont., on February 2, 1891, and that she has been a dutiful and loving wife ever since. She charges her husband with having formed a criminal attachment with a woman in Omaha whom she does not name. plant to new quarters, where they are guarding it now. She charges her husband with neglect, failure to provide for his family, habitual intoxication and frequenting low dives, and alleges that for the last year and a half he has deserted her entirely. She asks for the custody of the two children that were born to them and $500 alimony

Katie Jeffreys charges serious short comings against Thomas Jeffreys. She bases her claim for a divorce upon the fact that he has become a confirmed drunkard. She alleges that she was married to Jeffreys on May 14, 1895, at Greenfield, Ia. He failed to provide for her soon after the marriage.

Two prominent young women of the church called upon the editor and induced him to place his name upon their list for $10, the amount to be paid February 1. At that time his collections were slow and he claimed it was impossible for him to meet the obligation. The account was placed in the hands of a justice of the peace and suit brought. It became noised about the town that the church was going to levy upon his property for the debt, and a num-ber of friends gathered at his office yesterday morning to await the arrival of the officers, When they commenced removing the type cases and taking the Washington hand press to pieces to remove it the friends of Editor Heacock came to the rescue and forbade the officers to go farther. MUNGER TAKES OATH OF OFFICE Succeeds McHngh on the United States District Bench.

At exactly 10:04 yesterday morning W. H. Munger of Fremont took the oath of office and became the judge of the United States district court for Nebraska to continue during his natural life unless be resigns or is removed for cause. At the same moment

W. D. McHugh, who on November 30 last took a similar oath qualifying him to serve and confirmed, again became a civilian. The main court room on the third floor of the government building contained a goodly number of local attorneys when the hour arrived for the ceremonies to take place, but there were few, if any, lawyers from outside the city. At 10:03 Marshal White rapped for the spectators to rise to their feet, and Judge McHugh, accompanied by his successor, entered the court room. While all were still standing Judge McHugh buried in his trousers pocket. There was a slight tremor in his voice as he read, indicat-ing that he appreciated the responsibilities

he was assuming. When he had finished reading Judge McHugh declared him to be the duly authorized judge for the district. The spectators then became seated, and Judge Munger asked if the attorneys had any susiness they wished to take up in the court There being none, a recess was taken for the day, the judge announcing that he would remain in the city the rest of the week to attend to such matters as might come up.

An informal reception was then held, gratulations being extended to Judge Munger, and a welcome to Judge McHugh upon his return to the practice of law. Three minutes after the court was called o order the inauguration ceremonies wer over and the spectators were filing out, Asks the Waste Only.

Mr. and Mrs. DeLong announce that the calls for assistance made to them by people evidently suffering greatly are more than they can satisfy with the limited means at their disposal. Yesterday morning there were six applicants for aid who had to be turned away hungry simply for the reason that there was nothing in the house in the shape of food to give them. On the day previous there were twenty applicants for food, and only a few of them could be accommodated. Soveral of these were hungry, half-clad little children. Mr. DeLong announced yes-terday that he had reached the limit of his ability to afford the relief asked by neone ability to afford the relief asked by people whom he knew to be in sore straits and who were worthy of aid.

The only way that occurs to me now. said he, "is to ask the people who have plenty to eat to let us have a part of the stuff they waste. There is enough food daily wasted in the city to feed all of the hungry girls and boys and men and women that appeal to us every day, if we could only find some means of getting hold of it. If the people who order a good roast for their dinners today and ask the butcher to remove the bone, as they generally do, will just tell him to lay that bone aside and put in a nickel's worth of meat with it suitable for soup and send it to the Eiseman building or send me a postal card telling me to call for it, it will enable us to provide something for the hungry unfortunates who are daily appealing to us. If I can get the waste I can make it feed the hungry."
