Both Houses of Congress Are Now Working Early and Late.

FINISHING UP BUSINESS OF SESSION

Law Makers Sit Up Nearly All Night and Rise Early in the Morning to Pass Approprintion Dills.

WASHINGTON, March 3 .- The house was still on the legislative day of March 2 when the speaker cracked his gavel at half past 10 this morning for the session of seven bours. There were crowded galleries, with many uniforms of the military organizations which are to participate in the inaugural parade conspicuous therein, but down on the floor were many vacant chairs and the members

The chairmon of the committees whose appropriation bills are the bone of contention between the house and senate were marshaling their forces with conference reports on the Indian and sundry civil bills ready for consideration. Several enterprising legislators clamored to have pension bills taken up, frantically waving the documents over their heads, but successive shouts of "I object" mowed down these projects, which required unanimous consent for their read-

First in order came the Indian bill. The action of the house conferees in accepting a senate amendment to detach from Okla-homa the Osage and Kansas Indian reserva-tions and attach them to the Indian terriy aroused fierce opposition from Mr. ynn, delegate from Oklahoma.

After the recess there was more discussion of the cost of armor plate, which resulted finally in the acceptance of the senate amendment to reduce the price of armor plate to $300 a ton. This action was taken be accepted to change the boundary at any time.

The temper of the house seemed doubtful. and Mr. Dingley, the floor leader, sought to rally the members to support the appropriation committee by holding up the spectre of the fallure of the supply bills. These appeals had their effect. The rules were suspended, 182 to 75, and the bill went to conference.

Mr. Grout then brought in the partial conference report on the District of Columbia bill, which was adopted without debate. The immigration bill was passed over the president's veto by a vote of 193 to 37.

Mr. Sherman then reported that the senate had receded from its amendment to the Indian bill detaching the Osage reservation from

The motion by Mr. to $300 was carried by a vote of 60 to 42. Mr. Robinson, republican of Pennsylvania, made the point of no quorum, and after some wrangling it was decided to take a vote, at 9 o'clock, when more members were present. The agreement on the fortifications bill was reported, and agreed to, and at 6:40 the house took a recess until 8:30.

Touching the location of hell, Mr. Pendleton, democrat of Texas, agreed with Mr. Cannon, but insisted that if there was a hotter hell than the one which existed in the location of hell, Mr. Sherman, republican of New York, who reported that all differences hotter hell than the one which existed in the question and questions involving mineral lands. DAY'S GRIND IN THE SENATE

Working Hard to Clean Up Business of the Session. WASHINGTON, March 3 .- The senate galleries were packed long before the session opened today, and long lines of visitors stood in the outer corridor, eagerly waiting an opportunity to get inside. The senators begin to look jaded, having been together from the opening hours of the morning. The day was a busy routine in reconciling the differ-ences on appropriation bills. Further conference on the sundry civil bill, and the District of Columbia appropriation bill was ordered.

Mr. Frye, republican of Maine, presented a conference report on the bill amending sion bills. Disease, like a sputtering fuse, may often be like a sputtering fuse, may often be lipped in the nick of time. Just so said the assertions were based on ignorance. The bill had been in the interest of the sailor from the first, and only an insane man could have drawn the conclusion that At the same flogging was to be restored. time the conferces had yielded to these "wise men" and had added a proviso that nothing in the act should be construed to nothing in the act should be construed to modify that section of the statutes reciting that "flogging on board of vessels of commerce is hereby prohibited." The conference report was agreed to.

Mr. Gordon, democrat of Georgia, made several efforts to be recognized to present "most extraordinary paper." When he was finally recognized, he presented a sketch of the inauguration ceremonies of 100 years ago, which was he said, in striking contrast the inauguration we were about to upon. The senator referred to the first president in his "severely black suit" delivering his address among team, and President Adams, in his severely plain drab uit, making his address under similar cir-umstances. It was opportune, he said, to cumstances.

place on the record an account of these simple but impressive scenes. A final conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill was presented and agreed to. The following house bills were passed: To amend an act to grant to railroads in Indian Territory additional power to secure depot grounds and to correct allot-ments; revising the statutes relating to pat-ents, with amendments; limiting to one year the time of prosecution of an application and terminating the limit on patents first taken out in foreign countries. A conference report on the Indian bill was presented. Mr. Pettigrew, in charge of explained that the items to which the senate objected last night had been struck They covered amendments to the eca Indians, Kaw Indians scrip and attaching the Osage nation to the Indian Territory. The report was agreed to, and a further conference ordered. HOUSE BILLS PASSED. House bills unobjected to, were then passed as follows: To amend the law permitting rights of way for steam roads through public lands; to set apart a portion of certain lands in Washington state, known as the Pacific forest reserve, as a public park to be known as the Washington National park; amending the copyright laws, so as to probibit the unauthorized use of words or phrases implying copyright.

Mr. Hale presented the first conference report on the naval appropriation bill. He explained that the two senate amendments relating to new torpedo beats and fixing the maximum price of armor plate at $300 still were in disagreement. On the other items the bouse yielded in the main, Mr. Chandler stated in this connection that he had learned at a conference with a representative of the Illinois Steel com-

attack the old branch of congress, but he insisted nevertheless that $270,000 of the alleged Bowman act claims in the amendment, create a new armor plant before the armor was needed for the new ships.

Mr. Quay remarked that he was inclined to believe the Illinois proposition resulted from the dissolution of the steel rail pool, would fall more certainly than the vilest and its purpose was to annoy the armor sinner on earth would fail of salvation at plate manufacturers rather than to enter plate manufacturers rather than to the field of armor production. Mr. Ti came into the discussion by suggesting that the senate ought to provide for a govern-ment armor factory if the steel manufac turers did not want to supply armor at $300 a ton. Mr. Gorman and Mr. Tillman had several differences during the discussion.

TILLMAN BREAKS IN. At one point, when Mr. Gorman was referring to the action of the senate on the naval bill last spring, Mr. Tillman broke in with: "That was when we were all unk on politics."
"We were not all drunk on politics," sponded Mr. Gorman, decisively. "I have dealt with the navy as a business proposition, the same under Cleveland as under Harrison. We have had no politics in the navy in twelve years."

Before action was taken, Mr. Cullom en deavored to bring forward the bill known as the anti-ticket scalping bill. He said he would use every means to test the sense of the senate to take up the measure.

Mr. Chandler responded that action on this bill could not be secured in the remain-

Mr. Gray, democrat of Delaware, declared that the reference of the credentials to a committee would result in crease, it is thought that Mercer would have preventing Mr. Heitfeld from being sworn carried his point had not Hepburn of Iowa Mr. Stewart added that the present senate had no power over members of the next senate. Mr. Mills, democrat of Texas, re-inforced this with the declaration that Mr. Helifeld was accredited to the Fifty-fith congress, so that the Fifty-fourth congress was without jurisdiction. Mr. Chandler did not further press his motion to refer the Heltfeld credentials. The private pension calendar was then taken up. It embraced four bills heretofore vetoed by the president and now recommended for passage over the veto. It brought out a statement from Mr. Allen that the president had gone to the point of arraigning old soldiers as "coffee coolers." At 6 o'clock a recess was taken before a vote had been reached on any of the pen-

"One man in liquor," Mr. Hoar was pro-ceeding to say, "might stop business," when Mr. Quay jumped to his feet, and, in excite-ment, exclaimed: "I desire to say to the senator from Massachusetts that if he intends to intimate that I am, he is a lunation or a liar, and I will not tolerate a suggestion of that sort from the senator from Massa-

"I am," he continued, "simply doing what I am doing in the interest of my constitu nts."
Mr. Hoar disclaimed any intention of mak-

Mr. Quay again spoke of his motive as being in the interest of the people of Penn-sylvania and of the thousands of workingmen in that state, as well as of much cap-ital. He repeated this statement two or three times, when Mr. Dubois took the floor to declare that neither he nor any of the silver senators had made the point of no quorum when it was evident there was a quorum present. He alluded to Mr. Quay's explanation that his course was in the interest of the capital of his state, and said that even though the Sherman repeal bill was directed at thousands where this may strike one, there was no appeal to any such extreme measures as was here invoked. That, he said, was a fight for the people, while this was a fight for the few, but the Pennsylvania capitalists were not then much con-

Mr. Bacon of Georgia, who was in the chair, decided that there was no rule of the senate under which the senate could count a quorum, but he sustained a point by Mr. Hill that it was necessary that other business should intervene between calls.

I do not think the members of this house desire to see a peanut show or to see a peanut building there, and I think they are great enough and magnanimous enough to give the appropri-tion that is provided in these amendments, providing for the return of the government exhibit to the city of Washington and wher-

We expect the east to come there with its capital and with its knowledge, and we expect that after that exposition has been seen by the people of the United States, those grand states and territories beyond the Mississippi will have an oppor-tunity to grow and prosper the same as eastern states have done. I trust that members of this house, irrespective of politics, will help us on these three amendments." Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee, fought the senate amendments at every turn, taking the ground that the bill only called for $200,000. Although Cannon was arrayed on the side of no incarried his point had not Hepburn of Iowa asked the question as to what Nebraska had done for the exposition. before the senate recedes to the house.

Late in the evening the senate receded from the additional amount. Senator Allen immediately announced that he would make fight for a third conference.
