Gil G. Baird, deputy county clerk, and his family, had a narrow escape Sunday night from being fatally asphyxiated by coal gas that had escaped from a hard coal stove in his sliting room. The warm weather and muggy atmosphere interfered somewhat with the draft of the chimney, and when Mrs. Baird and family retired for the night the stove was left in the condition that it is ordinarily left for the night. During the night large quantities of gas escaped in the house. Mr. Baird was awakened early in the morning by a severe headache. He arose and opened the house. Mrs. Baird was found to be suffering also, but both soon recovered after they arose and went into the fresh air. The children remained in bed, and the cause of the trouble was not discovered until one of them lost consciousness. Mr. Bair believes that if he had not awakened when he did all of the family would have been fatally asphyxiated. All were more or less in yes

Two Members Chosen at the Election Which Was Held Yesterday.

RESULT WHAT WAS GENERALLY EXPECTED

William Moore, Democrat, and Jacob Sims, Republican, the Successful Candidates Propositions for Issue of Bonds Carry.

Yesterday witnessed one of the hardest fought school elections that has occurred within the recent history of Council Bluffs. The result was in accordance with the predictions in The Bee and what was generally expected when the polls opened yesterday morning-the election of William Moore, democratic candidate, and Jacob Sims, reboth democrats and republicans had marked in Council Bluffs, to canvass for a well both democrats and republicans had marked known Omaha establishment. State experi- Dr. M. B. Snyder for slaughter, and the most heroic efforts of the party managers could not save him. He was traded off by voters in both parties. Although there was nothing to call for the hot fight that was waged, it was carried on with an earnestness that called out the best work of the ward workers, and brought out a vote that was larger than that polled at the city election when there was really a great deal at stake. The feature of it was that it was almost nonpartisan. Hundreds of democrats voted for the republican candidates and republicans voted for Moore and worked around the polls for his election with as much enthusiasm as if he was in the best standing in their party.
There was some surprise at the great maporities given the democratic candidates in railway training on the line of the Union the First ward. The republicans have been Pacific in Wyoming. E. E. Colvin, who has indulging in the hope that the First was swinging around toward the republican olumn and would soon climb into the band wagon, but the result yesterday dashed these hopes and created the prospect of the ward becoming more hopelessly democratic than

The Fifth ward also turned up a surprise for the party managers by giving an over-whelming republican majority. If it had not been for the heavy majorities given by this he was sent to Laramie and then to Salt ward the result of the election would have been different. A feature of the vote in the First ward was the remarkable majorities returned against both of the bond propositions. If correspondingly heavy majorities had not been given for the propositions both had not been given for the propositions both would have been defeated. The defeat of the second proposition would have necesbaggage agent at the Cheyenne station, the second proposition would have necessitated a resort to mandamus proceedings sitated a resort to mandamus proceedings being subsequently transferred to Salt Lak-to compel the Board of Education to issue bonds to secure money to pay the interest on line is R. The two propositions were:

1. Shall bonds of the independent school district of Council Bluffs to the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000), or as much thereof as may be necessary, be issued for the purpose of erecting an addition to the Twentieth Avenue school house?

2. Shall a tax amounting to nine thousand dollars ($5,000) be levied to pay interest on bonds?

The defeat of the first proposition would have made it necessary for the board to hire school room facilities outside of the Twentieth avenue building and refuse educational privileges to a large number of pupils in that portion of the city. COMPANY INSPECTED. Company L. Iowa National Guards

Every member of Company L, Iowa National Guards, felt proud of the fact that he was a member last night, and several hundred admiring friends of the young men felt an equal share of pride in their ap pearance and achievements. The company underwent the ordeal of the annual state inspection. Major J. T. Davidson of Mus-catine, and Captain J. A. Olmsted, of the Ninth cavalry, who is detailed by the federal guards with the rank of major, were the inspectors. Captain Byers of Glenwood as-sisted in the inspection. The guards threw open their armory to the public for the first time, and as many people as could possibly be accommodated without encroaching evolutions, accepted the invitation to b

Major Davidson made the most critical inspection, using the new manual of arms and tactics. The young men have had but little time for study and drill, but the in spection last night showed that they had become very proficient in all of the new movements, even those introduced within the last few months. The manual of arms is the same as now used in the regular army Some blunders were made that caused the inspecting officers to contract their brows slightly, but enough faultless work was done to bring their drilling up to a high standard The inspection of arms and accourrements was very critical and apparently thoroughly satisfactory, for the young men were warmly complimented at the close, upon the condition of the state's property in their posses

The inspection lasted until after 10 o'clock and at the close the inspectors examined the commissioned officers in the officers' quarters. The results of the inspection will not be known until today, when the inspecors make their reports.

Involves Price of a Harvester.

Judge Thornell and a jury in the district court yesterday listened nearly all day to the evidence in a suit brought by Warder, Bushnell & Co. against Michael Fox. 1 farmer, to enforce payment for a reaping machine. The machine was sold to the farmer at the customary price, $130, and the farmer was apparently well satisfied with his bargain until the agen's of a rival machine came along and offered to sell him a machine for $60. The farmer had used the first machine to harvest about seventy acres of his grain, but there was enough left stand-ing in the field to afford a rial for the other machine. He tried it and liked the way it worked, and was positively in love with the feature that saved one-half of the purchase price. He had made no payment on the first machine and it did not take him long to come to the conclusion that he never would make any. The Council Bluffs agents of Warder, Bushnell & Co. were notified to come out and haul their machine away, and were told by Fox that he had bought snother machine and would not take theirs despite the fact that he had signed a note for the publican. It was evident from the start that purchase price. The company refused to both democrats and republicans had marked remove the machine and begun an action to recover the value of the note.

For Killing Off Game. ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., March 8 .- (Special.)-Game Warden Joseph Leighter of this city has arrested Doc Harris, Chris Stagman and Steve Ogden of Lewiston, Fremont county, charged with unlawfully killing game. The men were arrested near Elk mountain, where they had evidently gone into the game killing business on a large scale. In their cabin was found 2,000 pounds of game, consisting of five whole elk, one deer and several quarters. Surrounding the cabin are piles of elk heads, piles of skins and legs innumerable. One of the men showed fight and charged on the officer with a big knife, but was brought into subjec-tion at the point of a revolver. All of the parties are in fail awaiting a hearing.

The facts are that not a single dollar has been expended on the development of these lands which are 100 miles from the nearest well and twenty miles from the nearest oil springs in the Douglas basin, and that there are now no filings on the land at all because of the failure of the original locaters either perform the assessment work required by law or file new location certificates.

CLERK ROWEN GETS & ROAST

Census Scandal Committee Suspects Him of Warning Witnesses.

FORCE HIM TO SIGN BLANK SUBPOENAS

House Instructs Him Later to Leave an Assistant in Charge of the Journal for Benefit of Newspaper Men,

DES MOINES, March 8 .- (Special Telegram.)-The afternoon session of the house developed a sensation of good proportions today. In fact, two of them occupied the entire session. For some time past the investigatcensus scandal and other matters has been quire to be signed by the chief clerk of the house. Today the committee went to Clerk James D. Rowen with a bundle of subpoenas in blank to be signed. He refused to sign them till the names of the witnesses were inserted. The committee declined to make the insertions and, after vainly trying to get the necessary signature, told Rowen point blank that they would not let him know the names of the witnesses desired, because the experience of the committee had convinced it somebody was giving out information that was enabling the parties under investigation to spirit witnesses out of the state. They declared that they knew beyond peradventure that several witnesses had been sent away and that it would have been impossible for the defense to know who they were unless they had the information from the clerk. Rowen denied this, and there was a scene. When the session opened a resolution was presented by the committee reciting that the clerk was an employe of the house, and in-structing him to take the desired action. Rowen's friends made a fight against this, and, as Speaker Byers was absent, and it was decided he had jurisdiction over the clerk, it was finally postponed till tomorrow, when the speaker will be here. Rowen finally concluded to sign the blank subpoenas, but the committee will insist on the passage of its resolution. This was no sooner settled than another resolution was presented, reciting that the clerk had refused to allow newspaper men access to the journal during the noon hour, and instructing him to make it public property. There was a fight over this, and finally a compromise resolution was adopted ordering the clerk to leave an assistant in charge of the journal and keep it open to in-spection of the press all day.

The morning session opened with the adoption of elaborate resolutions congratulating Speaker Byers on the birth of a son whose arrival had been announced by a telegram received by the speaker a few minutes before the session opened. The house christened him William McKinley Byers and adopted the resolutions with vociferation. The senate bill on garnishments and attachments was taken up and adopted with a few amendments of small impor-

Representative McNulty of Sioux City came back today after an absence of ten days, which it is understood he spent at the inauguration without leave of absence. The speaker is indignant and has been trying with the aid of the sergeant at-arms, to locate the missing member without suc-cess. hard to ascertain the true sentiment of the employes he has taken great pains to learn the facts and it it certain nineteen out o twenty are absolutely opposed to the relter scheme and in favor of the amendment. But they have been given distinctly to un-derstand that opposition to the relief system would be regarded as a very grave offense to the road and one which could not be over-looked; in fact some of the meetings of employes have been called with this statement in the call. FLOODS FROM DES MOINES RIVER.

Water is Higher Than in Eight Years with the Worst to Come.

DES MOINES, March 8.—(Special Telegram.)-The water in the Des Moines river is higher than at any time in eight years, and heavy ice is floating and forming jams above the city. At the Center street dam, a jam has formed, and it is feared it will carry out the dam. If it does not, there will be a flood throughout the flats of Central Place. A large part of the district is under water and it is still rising at the rate of a foot an hour. Many people have moved from their homes, which are flooded, and more are ready to move during the night. The Raccoon is also on a rampage, and the flats for miles are flooded. Communication between the city and the suburban town of Valley Junction is cut off by the high water in Walnut creek which is half a mile wide. The rainfall of the last twenty-four hours has been heavy here and throughout the north part of the state much heavier, so that it is known the worst is to come

The combined virtues of the Cod-liver Oil, the Hypophosphites and Glycerine as prepared in Scott's Emulsion will give you flesh and strength rapidly and help you back to health.

SOUTH DAKOTA LIQUOR LAW

Saloon Men Declare that it Will Drive Them from the Etate.

CONSIDER ITS PROVISIONS VERY DRASTIC

Licenses Are Made Hard to Obtain and Extremely Difficult to Retain When Once They Have Been Acquired.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 8 .- (Special.) The new license law passed by the legislaure is causing great dismay to the people interested in the saloon business. In fact, many of them declare they will not try to operate saloons under it, but will go to some more congenial clime. They say the law is the most drastic one ever passed by a state legislature and that nobody can success. fully operate a saloon under it. No man who shall, after the passage of the act, have been convicted of keeping a disorderly house can secure a license. The saloon men of Sloux Falls are all now refusing to pay the February fine. If their cases come to trial and a conviction results. which is probable, not one of them will be able to secure a license. The law requires the abolishment of screens or anything which will obstruct the plain view from the street and absolute'y prohibits games of any sort, including bill ards and cards, whether played for gain or not. No chairs or tables are allowed in the saloon, nor in any rooms adjacent, which may be connected directly or indirectly with the raloon. lish a prima facie case against the holder o a license under charge of violating any of these provisions it shall be necessary only to show that the plain view to the street has been obstructed. It is this provision which most displeases the saloon men, who are saying all sorts of things about persecution and blue law and so on and so forth Twenty-five legal voters can call up the question of issuing licenses at any municipal never, under such a provision, get the matter settled, as it is sure to be an issue in every campaign. Under the law saloons must close at 11 o'clock at night and cannot reopen until 5 o'clock in the morning. On place as orator which was given her last Sundays and election days, of course, they are to be closed. No security for costs is necessary when a complaint is lodged against the keeper of a saloon, and all parties whether employers or employes, are equally liable for violations of the act. The pun-ishments are heavy, and include both fine and imprisonment, with a sacrifice of the license. The usual features prohibiting sale to minors and drunkards are included. The ptate gets $150 on each license and the county $150. The municipality gets the re-mainder, the license being graded up to a maximum of $1,000. Saloon men do not hesitate to say that they prefer the prohibitory law and are sorry it has been repealed.

The law fixes the beer wholesaler's licensat $600 and the whisky wholesaler's license at $1.000, and it is provided that this license shall be paid "in as many different places as he carries on business." This was put into the law at the request of South Dakota brewers, who thus hope to run the St. Louis and Milwaukee brewers out of the state. These outside brewers have in the past maintained many wholesale depots over the state and this heavy tax is calculated to throw most of the business to state manufacturers PIERRE, S. D. March 8.—(Special Tele-gram.)—The prohibitionists have taken a new tack in their efforts to prove the recent re-peal of the prohibitory law to have been unconstitutional. They have begun suit before Judge Gaffy on the collection of a liquor bill setting up the plea that such a bill is un collectible because it is a traffic in violation of the statutes. Their answer was de murred to and the case will shortly be submitted on briefs. As the test case is which has come up since the people voted to repeal the law it will cover the case of the Foreman Steele a Poor Shot. LEAD, S. D., March 8 .- (Special.) - Alber Steele, foreman of the Homestake mills in this city, shot twice at Chris Peterson yes Peterson was at one time electrician of the Homestake company, a responsible and lu-crative position. Family troubles caused him to neglect his duties and he was discharged. He has since made repeated efforts to again enter the employ of the company, but has each time been refused. Yesterday morning he again approached the foreman for work and upon being turned away became angry and threatened the foreman. Steele reached a high pitch of wrath and whipping out a revolver, shot twice at Peterson.

KEPT HIS SECRET THIRTY YEARS. Man Drops Dend, Leaving an Imbeelle

SIOUX FALLS, S. D. March 8 .- (Special.) The sudden death in this city of P. P. Boylan, city treasurer, reveals a pathetic story, which has hitherto been unknown, except to a very few of the intimates of the Boylan family. It was known by the friends and neighbors that Mrs. Boylan never went out and never saw anybody, but just why was not clear, and for years she has almost completely dropped out of the public mind. Her husband fell dead of heart disease while on the way to the Roman Catholic church Friday night, and when friends went to the house to see Mrs. Boylan she would not admit them. The doors were barred, the window shades drawn and no response could be secured from within. The story then came out that for thirty years Mrs. Boylan has been insane. During all that time she has been cared for by her husband. Mrs. Boylan was unable to do the work about the house, and would not permit the em-ployment of a strange person. The result was that Mr. Boylan cooked his own meals, did all the household work, nursed his imbecile wife, never left her except for business or church engagements and has done this for thirty years. No one has learned the story of the family from his lips. It was late Saturday night before an entrance could be effected, and then Mrs. Boylan ordered the intruders out. When told that her husband was dead she accused his friends of having murdered him, but refuecd to go to him. She had to be taken out of the house by force, and was carried to the jail, where she now is. She could apparently realize only for a short time that her husband was taken away. Mr. Boylan carried $2,500 in life insurance and had quite a little property, which goes to his wife. It is prob-able that it will be necessary to send Mrs. Boylan to the asylum, as there are no living relatives to care for her. The funeral took

Miss Hyde's Accusers Slow to Seek the Prize She Relinguished. VERMILLION, S. D., March 8 .- (Special.) Since Miss Hyde of this city, because of charges of plagiarism, gave up the first May at the state oratorical contest, the matter has been thoroughly aired and commented on by the various college papers, and the state press. The general sentiment thus far is in favor of Miss Hyde. But few persons would have taken the course that she did in returning the medal of honor without further proof of the accusation. The orator representing Yankton college rightfully is the winner now. Nothing is being done, however, by that college to put its claim forth, in hopes that some of the other colleges will take up the matter for it. It was members of this institution that made the principal objection to Miss Hyde's oration, and have kept the matter stirred up continually since. In all probability there will be two changes made in the onstitution of the state oratorical association this spring. There is nothing in the constitution to prevent objections being raised against the winner of prizes at the contest just as has been done in Miss Hyde's case. The constitution will probably e changed to make the decision of judges final. Again, it will probably be required hereafter that each oration preented to the judges on composition shall have written thereon the names of all books from which the material for the oration was obtained, and in case a single author is omitted, that shall be sufficient grounds for throwing out the oration.
