ITS GOVERNMENT LEADS ALL THE WORLD

Rev. Frank Crane Lectures Before the Chantauqua College and Gives Many Reasons Why He is Proud of His Country.

Rev. Frank Crane, who was once Omaha's pastor, but who now belongs to Chicago, has a decidedly optimistic faith in the existing conditions in the United States in the face of the somewhat pessimistic general belief, and he has unbounded faith and confidence in its future. This supreme patriotism was everywhere prevalent in his lecture "America," which he delivered for the benefit of the Chautauqua co lege last night. Jacksonian club rooms last night, and there | The lecture was given in the church over was a good attendance. The committee which Rev. Mr. Crane had been pastor, the which had in charge the matter of prepar- | First Methodist Episcopal, and was listened ing a petition to present to Judge Keysor to by an audience that filled up the lower asking for the removal of Receiver Potter, floor of the structure and overflowed to some reported that the document was ready to considerable extent into the galleries. The audience became quite enthusiastic and applauded when the minister became oratorical over his theme.

The speaker began by setting forth the magnitude of the country itself, contrasting it with the pocket-borough nations of the older continent. He illustrated the fact that its bounds and resources were still practically unlimited by showing that all the tically unlimited by showing that all the population could be gathered into Texas without being crowded, that that state could alone support all the people of the United States, that the so-called bad lands could be made, with the aid of irrigation, to blossom in a fashion which would cause the eyes of the people on the other side of the world for right with of the other side of the pond to stick out of their heads, and with other illustrations. He stated further that the United States had more fresh water lakes, more river mileage, more rai roads than pretty nearly all the European nacions together, and finally wound up by saying that despite the general opinion, it had become so rich that it could buy up all of Great Britain and Ireland and still have a little cash on hand. Then the speaker turned his attention to the industrial and commercial conditions which are disturbing the people in the present day.

TRUSTS A GOOD THING. In the first place he defended the system of trusts and combinations of capital, including the department stores. He maintained that the concentration of wealth was the only way by which the great mass of the people were benefited. It lessened the price of commodities and thus created the benefit which greatly overbalanced the injury that was done by shutting out small concerns. He admitted that trusts at times locked out their men and did other bad things, but if they did so, he said that they ought to be punished, as any individual who did wrong. He held that such a condition was not from fault of the system, but was due to the human nature in it. It would be folly for the trusts to reduce the people to poverty, because then they would have nothing out of which to make money. He, therefore, naturally combated the idea that inventions had lessened the chances of the laboring men. On the contrary, he maintained that in the plained to the council by City Engineer long run, besides incidentally enriching the Beal. inventor and immensely enriching the peo-ple at large, they re-employed the laboring class and made them more skillful. As an example, he stated that the railroads had therefore recommended that action be de-thrown out of employment thousands of fered for one week, in order that the workteamsters, but had taken back into employ-ment fully one-thirtleth of the population of the country. The unskilled laborer, however, he said, must go for all time.

The speaker then touched upon the commercial and manufacturing interests of the Upon motion of Hyland, the clerk was country, saying that they surpassed those of instructed to advertise for bids for the paintany other nation and several of them to-gether. He combatted the general opinion Vansant opposed the resolution because not show that the country was going to the dogs, but that the peop'e were borrowing to get richer. He drew this conclusion from statistics and from the fact that the biggest part of these mortgages were to be found in districts where the business was the biggest and the communities the most thriving.

YOUNG MEN SHOULD BE POLITICIANS. The speaker also defended the two party system of politics as the most perfect and purest ever devised, although it was believed to be essentially corrupt. This corruptness he again found to be rooted in the human nature that was in the machines. He held the bosses had nothing to do with the nominations of Bryan and McKinley, but that they were chosen because they were the most perfect exponents of the public will. The parties are not angelic creations, but are the most perfect means of registering the will of the people. The complaint that there are in the present day no great statesmen was explained with the statement that the Ameri-can people had become bigger. They no longer wanted kings or masters, but the most perfect servants. As example, he instanced the recent going out of Cleveland without a friend and deserted because of his predomi-nant individuality, and the enthusiastic in-auguration of McKinley because he went in not as McKinley, but as the perfect servant of his party, and, therefore, as the expression of the will of the majority of the country. The speaker spoke elequently of Abraham Lincoln, who impressed him most as a perfect partisan. In conclusion, he urged the young men of the country to turn their attention to professional politics. In the course of this portion of his remarks, Mr. Crane expressed the hope that the present administration would take possession of Cuba in the interest of peace and humanity, without regard to what its ultimate fate might be politically. The speaker also dwelt upon the great pre-eminence of the American people in literary fields. In the conclusion of the lecture he prophesied that the time was coming when the British possessions would be joined in a federated form of government to compete with America. They would ultimately join together in a still advanced form of federation, and the other nations of the world would then be forced to federate. The two federations would finally join together and above the union would float the stars and stripes. You need not despair! Salvation Oil will heal your burnt arm without a scar. 25 cts. THREE-STORY BRICK TO BE BUILT.

New Business Block to Be Erected on South Thirteenth. Harold Brown of Brown brothers, Providence, R. I., heavy investors in Omaha realty, has signified his intention of improving the north thirty-three feet of the lot directly north of the Cunningham block at Thirteenth and Jackson streets. A message was re-ceived yesterday by W. B. Meikle, the local agent, directing him to have plans executed for the erection of a three-story brick structure, the ground dimensions of which will be thirty-three by sixty-six feet. The building will be a neat structure, with pressed brick and stone front, and will be designed for stores below and flats above. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $7,000. Work will be commenced within a few days.

-American Champagnes are fast driving out the imported article. At the head of the list is Cook's Imperial.

Frank Shannon, charged with having en-tered the tailor shop of Louis Magin, 1204 with having taken away clothing valued at $55, was placed under arrest by a couple of Omaha detectives last evening. Shannon was found counting the railroad ties about a mile south of Albright station. He was identified by a very accurate description given of him by Magin. When taken to the station he admitted having taken the clothing and it is thought that a portion of it will be recovered. The articles were sold to pawnshops.

commissioners of Deuel county to levy a tax for the payment of a judgment held against the county. Several years ago the St. Joseph Bridge company did some work in the county and secured a judgment for $5,000 on its claim. The judgment was afterward assigned to the First National bank of St. Joseph. The county commissioners of the county have refused to provide for the judgment by making a levy and the bank brought the matter into the United States court in the shape of an application for a writ of mandamus. After listening to the argument the court took the case under advisement.

Caldwell offered a resolution directing that the chairman of the charity committee dis-continue the employing of men on the streets. In explaining this motion Caldwell said these men who take city orders to stores were charged four times regular prices. Vansant, as chairman of the charity committee, stated that he had not issued any such orders for the last thirty days, there-fore there was no necessity for such a motion. It was, however, put to a vote and carried.

In explaining matters Vansant asserted that one member of the charity committee Hyland, had recently given out orders for provisions and he wanted the clerk to throw these orders cut, as they had not gone th ough the regular channel. No action was taken on the matter.

The committee on viaducts, streets and alleys then opened bids for the repairing of the piers at the east end of the Q street viaduct. Six bids were filed, as follows: E. Stenger, $700; E. H. Mahoney, $655; O'Keefe & Co., $995; T. C. McDenald & Co., $925; C. H. Campbell, $800; Rocheford & Gould, $740. Each bidder enclosed a certified check Barker. for $100, although a bond of $3,500 exacted from the contractor who does the work. Rocheford & Gould submitted plans of
