When the car stopped on the crossing to let pas-sengers alight the man arose and looked anxiously over the heads of the crowd. He evidently did not find what he was looking for and approached the conductor and nerv-ously asked him if he could not hold the train there a few minutes. He explained that he was to be married in the car in a of guitar solos.

An entertainment of unusual excellence and merit may be confidently looked for at Dobaney theater on Monday, March 22, when Mr. and Mrs. Russ Whytal will be seen in the former's remarkably successful play, "For Fair Virginia." which is now in its second season. The story is domestic in that he was to be married in the car in a few minutes and the minister was to meet them at that point. Conductor Thorne obligingly consented. The car was held for a few minutes. Sevtone, with a stirring background of the civil war.

DES MOINES, March 13 .- (Special Telegram.)-In the house today important amendments were made to the insurance laws. The Lloyd mutual concerns were assailed, and after a fight an amendment was adopted to require them to pay to the state 21/2 per cent of their gross annual premium receipts and to comply with the insurance laws of the state as to reports and authority from the auditor to do business. It was also provided that no action can be maintained against an insurance organization that is not authorized to do business in the state. This places the burden on the policy holder to protect himself, but is regarded as the most effective way of forcing the Lloyds to comply with the laws.
