Ninth Ward.....GEORGE MERRICK

The result of one of the most hotly contested republican primary elections ever held in Omaha is the complete break down of the Broatch boom for mayor. The fighting began promptly at the opening of the polls at noon yesterday, and while every disreputable tactic was resorted to by the Broatch heeled returns indicate that the Broatch boom was a costly, costly matter more than thirty-two or thirty-three, when it requires forty-one to effect a nomination.

Broatch's most signal defeat occurred in the Fourth ward, where he resided, and where he was routed horse, foot and dragoon by the delegates pledged to the candidacy of Frank E. Moore.

That the Broatch gang realized that it was in desperate straits was apparent in the outset. Everywhere his lieutenants marshaled whole regiments of men who had been put on the city payroll in order that they might be driven to the polls to vote under whip and spur for Broatch delegations.

The most shameful incident of this kind occurred in the Ninth ward, where Andy Viegman, the notorious gambler, marched 150 men from the street department up to the voting place and watched them deposit ballots marked for the Broatch delegates.

So heavy was the vote in a number of the wards that the count cannot be completed until daylight. In the 8th ward, for example, over 1,000 ballots were deposited and not a few of them were marked for mixed delegations, the counting was much delayed. In the First ward the primary election officer did not begin work until nearly 9 o'clock, and this held back the results from that ward.

So great was the interest in the contest over the majority that the race for the other places attracted but little attention, and it is probable that the nominees for the places below the mayor will not be definitely known until they are actually made. For tax commissioner at least a dozen names will be presented to the convention, but for the other city offices the present incumbents will have but little opposition for renomination. The trading and slate making is expected to occupy the time of the politicians all day until the evening is called to order at 8 o'clock, this evening. At that hour the mayor will be chosen, and the council will be elected. The Broatch boomers were looking very down in the month, and while they would not publicly admit defeat, they informed confidential friends that the jig was up, and that they might as well accept the situation as best they could. A resume of the contests in the several wards follows:

FIRST WARD.
In the First ward the Broatch pluggers were out in full force. There was no counting in the places below the mayor, and therefore the Broatch outfit was transported to the First. Plumbing Inspector Serick was practically the only one who did not vote for the Broatch. Men who had voted at the democratic primaries on Thursday were also roped in. The attempts of the Broatch boomers to get the vote in the month, and while they would not publicly admit defeat, they informed confidential friends that the jig was up, and that they might as well accept the situation as best they could. A resume of the contests in the several wards follows:

SECOND WARD.
The Second ward delegation will seize upon the first opportunity in the republican convention this evening to present the name of W. W. Bingham as its candidate for mayor. There was practically no vote in the field in this ward at the primary election, and that is solid for Bingham. At the late hour last night it was announced that Bingham's name would surely be presented to the convention and that the Second ward would work hard in order to elect his nomination. A list of the delegation for the former and four the latter.

THIRD WARD.
The contest was warm in the Third ward, but there was no friction. For councilman, Low Burgess and away over Captain O'Malley. While the vote was counted there was more or less disturbance. John T. Clarke, one of Broatch's henchmen, was allowed within the room all evening, while republicans in the ward who were candidates for delegate sat out on benches. The vote on the first ballot was in favor of Clarke almost resulted in personal encounters, but the presence of a policeman prevented hostilities. The Fourth ward, more than any other in the city, represents the business sentiment of the city, and that it elected a straight Moore delegation, by a good clean majority, is taken by many as an indication of the settlement of the business community toward the present executive of the city. W. F. Becher had no opposition in his race for the council.

FIFTH WARD.
In the Fifth ward there were 837 votes cast. Broatch will have seven members of
