market, and then owning all the factors, the entire product is his also. The effect of this state of affairs upon the laborer was traced.

After an interesting discussion of the endency of the time to "socialize" production, the speaker noted the trend of capital to combine and concentrate and then he showed how the farmer is helpless to embrace the one or to protect himself from the effects of the other.

In conclusion the speaker stated his conviction that the movement of the industrial world which he had described would not be arrested, but would pass on till the state

HE DIDN'T LIKE MAYOR BROATCH.

Pipeman Ernst is Therefore Sus-pended for Thirty Days. Sam G. Ernst, pipeman of hose company No. 12, was on the carpet before the Fire The republicans of the Eighth ward inauand Police board last night. He was charged with taking part in political matters other than to exercise the right of suffrage, and using language unbecoming a member in the ward. The hall was filled and the sentiments expressed by the various speakers were applied with more than ordinary vigor. T. S. Crocker, the president of the club, presided, and he introduced Chairman E. J. Cornish of the city central committee of the witnesses, and the accused. His tes-timony was to the effect that Ernst was in the habit of attacking his superior officers with opprobious language and epithets and that he had been particularly lavish in beup of the hypocrisy of the fusionists in the present campaign and his telling arraignment of the legislative combination was greeted with prolonged cheers.

Mr. Cornish began with the statement that although it would be impossible to have such a spirited contest as that which the now presented to the voters was the best city ticket that the people of this city had been asked to endorse in years.

Referring to the pretensions of the fusionists, the speaker said that one of the duties of the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the computer of the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the computer of the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the campaign was to place the interest of the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place the following invitation from the campaign was to place th

the Entire Ticket.

The two weeks' campaign that is to lemonstrate whether Omaha is to be governed by capable officials during the next three years or to be turned over to the same element that dominated in the present legislature begins today. The central committees of the various parties will meet at once and map out the plan of campaign. The fight will begin immediately and be vigorously contested until the last ballot has dropped into the box two weeks from tomorrow. That it will result in the success of the republican ticket its supporters are confident. The opponents content themselves with the statement that it is going to be a close fight and they rely on republican defections to offset the unsavory record of the principal fusion candidate. That W. J. Broatch and a certain element

That W. J. Broatch and a certain element among his following will seek revenge by more or less openly opposing his successful opponent is regarded as probable. Several of his immediate lieutenants have openly declared that they proposed to vote for Howell, and they intimate that Broatch will yet come out by petition as an independent candidate for mayor. But so far the promised desertion of the Broatch leaders has produced an effect far different from that which they anticipated. Instead of injuring the chances of Mr. Moores, it has changed many republicans who were lukewarm into active workers for the republican ticket active workers for the republican ticket from top to bottom. They remember the Lininger campaign, and, although in some cases their personal preferences were over-ruled by the majority in the convention, they now declare that Broatch must not be allowed to defeat a successful opponent a second time. This is especially noticeable in relation to the manifesto of County Clerk Redfield. Republicans are unantmous in denouncing the action of Redfield as an act of uncalled-for treachery, the consequences of which will fall on his own head. Even his political friends declare that he has forfeited their support and made votes for FORCED ON THE FUSIONISTS. But any possible defection in the republican ranks is more than offset by the tremendous sentiment against Ed Howell, which inspires the better element in each wing of the fusion combination. Howell was forced the fusion combination. Howell was forced on the fusionists by a ruling majority of democrats, in which the more influential members of the party were significantly absent. His candidacy was crammed down the throats of the populists against their emphatic protest and in deflance of the almost unanimous sentiment of the silver republicans. It is known, moreover, that the democrats propose to sacrifice the population of the silver republicans. the democrats propose to sacrifice the populist and silver republican nominees in Howell's interest.

The democratic city central committee, which is practically ruled by Howell, will bend every effort to the election of the head of the ticket and leave the tail to look after itself. This is well understood by the populists, and it does not tend to decrease their dissatisfaction. A dozen of the populist leaders openly declare that the populist party will not be coerced into supporting a list leaders openly declare that the populist party will not be coerced into supporting a candidate of Howell's caliber. They deny that he is their candidate, and say that if they are compelled to choose between the two they will vote for Frank E. Moores. Some of the populists are talking of a combination of the populists, silver republicans and the better element of the democrats for the purpose of running W. S. Poppleton as an independent candidate. So far matters are in too chaotic a state for any definite action, but the question of calling a meeting to take action in this particular is being seriously considered.

The principal work of the campaign will probably be done through the ward organizations. Beginning last night, the various ward clubs will be addressed by prominent speakers, and the large meetings that have been held during the last two weeks indicate that the voters are deeply interested in the outcome of the campaign.
