"Cowards die many times before their death; the valiant never taste death but

There is such a thing as too much valor when the foe is an insidious one. The bravery that faces death on the battlefield is praiseworthy; that which courts death by a reckless disregard of the slow but sure advances of a deadly disease is the acme of foolishness. Consumption causes one-sixth of all the deaths in the world. In spite of this, thousands are to-day disregarding its insidious approach. Any trifling malady that results in disorders of the digestive organs, causing impure blood, emaciation and lack of vitality, may weaken the respirators are transported by the superstible to tory organs and make them susceptible to the assaults of the deadly germs of consump-tion. It is the best blood-blood purifier known to science.

When the Union Pacific railway was under the Charles Francis Adams regime, from 1889 to 1891, E. McNeil was brought out to Nebraska from Connecticut by Adams, and installed as general manager of the St. Joseph & Grand Island division, then a part of the Union Pacific system. He remained in charge of that division for about two years, and was then given charge of the division that has since become segregated from the Union Pacific and is known as the Oregon Railway & Navigation company. The main line extends from Huntington, Ore., to Portland, and the company also owns and operates several smaller lines, and operates several lines of steamships. When this division went out from the Union Pacific system, McNeil was placed in charge of the property by the court. There are about the city any number of bluffs, which were left standing after the streets were graded in years gone by. It is the intention to have as many of these levelled as possible. Holes will be filled up and all unattractive spots will be put in as presentable shape as time will allow.

A suggestion was made at the meeting that a tree market ought to be established on some vacant lot near the center of the city, wher residents could purchase young trees of al descriptions at reasonable prices. This sug gestion met with favor. Some one also advanced the plan that the Board of Park Commissioners should have a tree expert on hand at this market to see that only good and healthy trees were placed on sale, and also to furnish information to purchasers regarding tree planting.
The idea met with favor. Benson, Shriver.
