Engines and Passenger Equipment of the Road Being Renovated at the Shops at Havelock and Plattsmouth, This State.

The B. & M. railroad, now that business is beginning to appear somewhat more brisk, is rapidly putting through its shops at Havelock and Plattsmouth, this state, a good part of its passenger equipment.

At Havelock a number of locomotives that have been doing duty for a long time are being rebuilt. When they come out of the shops they appear so altered that one would scarcely take the modern looking engines for the small, old ones that were taken of the road a few weeks ago.

The boiler shops at Havelock are also doing much work for some time past. Plenty of new work is laid out and men are now at work on jobs of many different kinds.

MANY CHARGES AGAINST A HUSBAND. Katie Lingsonger Recovers Her Woes in the Courts. Katie Lingsonger has applied to the courts for a divorce from Harry Lingsonger on the grounds of cruelty and neglect. The petition alleges that the couple were married in Omaha, March 14, 1888. A number of specific allegations of cruelty are made, among them being one in which it is charged that Lingsonger, in a fit of rage, threw the plaintiff on top of a red hot stove and compelled her to sit there until the city and county officers, on another occasion he scolded her with hot coffee. It is also charged that he chased her from the house with a piece of lead pipe, which he hurled at her and frightened her so greatly that she was compelled to remain outside the house all night, sleeping on the bare ground. Another charge is that Lingsonger compelled his wife to work out of doors in extremely cold weather without proper clothing. It is alleged that this exposure resulted in a diseased condition, which has ruined the plaintiff's health.

In addition to a divorce the plaintiff seeks for alimony, alleging that Lingsonger is the owner of several lots in West Side addition.
