Triumph of Mind and Simble Limbs Over Maddened Brute Force-Far More Graceful Than Foot Ball.

SALTILLO, Ccahuila, Mex., April 10.—(Correspondence of The Bee.)—A chance glance at the wall, and my subject for this letter to The Pee is evolved; for there bang two.

The Pee is evolved; for there bang two.

Well, perhaps so; but we do not all see the same side of the shield. Our visual and mental angles are different. I have witnessed, from start to finish, three expert bull fights within a month, brought off n the most modern amphitheater in Mexico. I am going to describe one of these fights, as photographed on my mental retina, and leave readers of The Bee to de-cide as to the brutality and cowardice.

It was a bright, sunshiny Sunday after-tion, that of March 28, when Colonel Strong of Omaha and myself drove up to Plaza de Toros. By way of parenthesiz, the colonel, as you Omahans know, is no gingerbread officer, but the genuine article, who rode at the head of his Wisconsin regiment in our "late unpleasant-ness" and has been walking around on a ligneous leg ever since as a result of his bravery. Inside the amphitheater a military band was playing as we climbed the stone steps to our seats, "a sombra" i.e., in the shade. A 4:30 sharp a bugle sounds. The double gates in the six-foot tence are thrown open, and through the passage thus afforded to the 200-foot ring there enters first El Capitan, the matador. An athlete be is, over six feet tall, shapely, with broad shoulders, clean shaven face and wearing the faunty but practical dress of his profession—spangled kncc breeches, pink silk stockings, sandals, profusely embroi-dered bolero. After him come the eight capeadores, all similarly though less richly costumed, followed by the two picadores on horseback, the latter armed with long steel-pointed poles, and their horses' breasts protected by heavy leather guards or aprons. Around the ring they march, acknowledging the applause, until they come in front of judges' stand, where they bow pro-

Again the bugle sounds. In an instant the capeadores are picturesquely scattered around the ring, the horsemen take positions a few rods to the right and left of the entrance gate. El Capitan walks over to the fence and selects a capa. The gates are thrown open and in plunges receiving in its right shoulder as it comes, a barbed shaft, decorated with the colors of the ranch on which he was raised, the first of many barbs which he is to feel. The pain maddens him and, spying the horse at the left, he makes a fierce plunge for him. The picador, by spur and bridle, tries to bring the horse's shielded breast to the front, but is not quick enough. The bull strikes him broadside, lifts horse and rider off the ground, at the same time receiving fierce jabs from the lance. Down go horse and man, the horse not to rise again. Two or three assistants run to help the fallen picador and pull him from under his horse, while the ever-ready capeador engages the attention of the distracted buil by flaunting his colored capa before him. The bull charges and the man, trailing the cape behind, makes for the nearest shelter, of which there are four about the ring, while another capador flaunts another capa and attracts the bull's stantage of the cape was and the range and attracts the bull's stantage and attracts the bull's stantage and the range and attracts the bull's stantage and the range and attracts the bull's stantage and attracts the bull's four about the ring, while another capeador flaunts another capa and attracts the bull's attention to himself, and incidentally, in the direction of the other horseman. This time the picador is quicker and the bull strikes the horse's breast, throwing him. by the flerce impact of his charge, upon his while he gets several thrusts from the sharp-pointed lance.

Again the bugle sounds and the two horsemen-the one first thrown having re-entered on a fresh mount-gallop out of the ring. This leaves only bull and men. Now one of banderilleros advances toward the buil with arms outstretched and poising in each hand a dart. There is a mad plunge, but in vain, the only result being that two more shoulders, and the man who placed them is safely out of harm's way—thanks to El Capitan, who has now for the first time appeared in the game, shaking his cape before the bull, inviting a charge, which comes. For no shelter doth this athlete rush, but steps to one side with the litheness and grace of a panther and again displays his cloth. A secand time the bull charges and a second time he avoided as gracefully, as lithely as be-fore. A third and a fourth and a fifth time comes the rush, but the same agility meets him. A capeador now relieves the captain and flaunts his cloth before the now thoroughly infuriated animal. Off goes the beest, so suddenly that all the man can do is to make for the six-foot fence and vault which he does, leaving his capa athwart SMITH TRANSFERRED TO COAST. the top. And after him, over the six-foot fence, vaults the bull, landing in a circular passage, where the man gets to shelter none too soon. It was a close call, that. One of the gates is opened and the bull again enters the ring. Capeadores and banderilleros rethe performance until the bull has additional fury with his every motion. For the last time the trumpet sounds, and El Capitan, the matadore, walks calmly out, holding in his left hand a brilliant red cloth, about two feet square, in which is concealed his sword. The bull instantly concealed his sword. spies the lure, charges more feroclously than ever, when, quick as the lightning's finsh, just as it seems that this prince of buil fighters must be impaled on the advancing horns, the sword is drawn and, with a single muscular thrust, from the front of the left shoulder, straight through the heart it goes. The beast drops as though struck by a cannon ball, right at the matadore's

There are banderillas, and I saw them first in the hands of a skilled banderillero, as he walked coolly toward a bull, charging at him ficetely, and defly avoiding the mad rush of the brute, fixed them in the foreshoulder of the intrated animal. Nye, commissary of subsistence for the Department of the Plattic, to purchase hereafter in this city almost double the number of articles for the use of the army in the department than was done in the past year. This increase was brought about through the efforts of Major Nye, who has urged upon the War department Omaha's availability as a market. In response to these efforts the department officers during the early part of this month instructed the commissary to increase the purchases. It was distinctly stated, however, that the matter was slimply an experiment and that the goods were not as cheap and of as good quality as could be obtained in other cities. The list has been augmented with a considerable number of articles, particularly canned goods, spices and sundries. With this addition, the amount of supplies purchases aggreated about $150,000.

Today's arrivals were too small to constitute a market. The few offerings were readily disposed of at yesterday's prices.

There was a fair general demand for hogs at from $3.65 to $4.15, light weights declining the least and heavy hogs the most. Heavy sold at from $3.90 to $4.05, and light weights brought from $3.90 to $4.15, the bulk of the hogs crossing the scales at from $4 to $4.05.

The sheep market closed steady at from $3 to $3.50 for inferior up to from $4.75 to $5 for good to cloice wethers. Lambs were salable at from $3.50 to $5.65, being about 35c higher than a week ago, while sheep have declined from 15c to 25c in the same period.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

urday's Trading. CHICAGO, April 24—Wheat was very trong today, the May option adding 1%c to to the 1%c advance which marked yester day's session, July was even stronger, closing at a 2%c gain. Undoubtedly the war news had its effect, but to the excited sevance at San Francisco and bad crop re-ports from that neck-o'-the-woods was due most of the advance. Altogether shorts had a bad day of it. Other grain and provision markets also exhibited strength, corr advancing 1gc, onts 1gc, and provisions 21gc vision markets also exhibited strength, corn advancing 12c, onto 3cc, and provisions 21cc and 5cc.

May wheat, which closed yesterday at 142cm, started in today at from 195c to 155c, the lower of these quotations being the lowest of the day. July commenced at 151cm, the lowest of the day. July commenced at 151cm, the lowest of the day. July commenced at 151cm, the course of the ferencon to 75c and touched 75c on an early reaction. May rose in the course of the ferencon to 75c and July to 151c. It was an exciting day in the pit. Everything seemed to favor an advance and the air was made to quiyer with the amount of bull news that was set in motion soon after the opeuing. Acceptance of spot wheat offered to the United Kingdom by cable yesterday afternoon on basis of 754c. Chicago, 35cc to 10cm, No. 2 spring reported marked for export in the first afteen minutes of this morning's session; 10.000 bu, more added inside of the next half hour and May wheat selling at $1 h St. Louis were features which made things fairly bubble. But, perhaps, the most exciting news came from California. It was to the effect that hot winds were sweeping over the wheat sections of that state and, with continued drouth, were greativ injuring the growing crop, which would be practically rulned by a few days' continuance of such conditions. An excited advance of 6c per cental in the price on the San Francisco curb was regarded as confirming the reported critical situation of the crop. The war news was also a considerable factor and probably accounted for the 15d advance at Liverpool, which started the local morket on the rampage. Shorts were unmistakably alarmed and the extent to which they covered was shown in the 15c advance which took place during the morning. Some reaction was inevitable, but the closing was very strong, with covering soing on actively to the last minute.

advance which took place during the morning. Some reaction was inevitable, but the closing was very strong, with covering going on actively to the last minute.

Corn was firm all day, sustained principally by wheat. The war developments and the fear of going "short" over Sunday were also influences and considerable covering was done. Exports were liberal again, 197,000 bu. May opened a shade higher at 24%634%c and advanced slowly to 25%c, closing strong at that price.

Oats were very strong. The wet weather west alarmed shorts, as did the war news, and their covering made an unusually active market. There was a sharp cash demand, with sales of 500,000 bu. May opened the higher at 17%c, sold a shade under that, then advanced to 18%c, closing at 18%c.

Provisions started out rather weak, in sympathy with a similar feeling in the live stock market. A slight decline followed the opening, but prices soon strengthened with the sharp advance in wheat. This market also felt the war news. English houses sold liberally on the advance and some reaction followed. At the close May pork was 2½c higher at $8.55; May lard, 2½c higher at $4.75%c, and May ribs 5c higher at eccipts for Monday; Wheat, 6 cars; corn, 190 cars; oats, 125 cars; hogs.

LARGE INCREASE IN DEPOSITS. New York Banks Make Heavy Gains

NEW YORK, April 25.—The Financier says: The New York banks made heavy gains from the interior last week. Deposits show the largest increase reported for weeks past. The total deposits in fact have been exceeded only twice during the present year. A favorable feature of the statement is an expansion of $$59.000 in loans, which comes after a period of five weeks decrease in this item. The loan account is still $1,500,000 under the high mark attained March 20, but in view of the season and the changed circumstances of the money market a further expansion would not be surprising at this time. The operations of the week have increased the reserves of the banks $2,251,000, the total standing at $25,257,200, which is the largest amount of idle money reported by the New York banks for over a year past. It will require a considerable revival in trade to reduce this heavy excess to normal figures, but the import movement is reaching a volume that may have an influence on the market within a short time. The total imports of goods as reported by the New York customs house for the week ended Saturday was $14,056,256, a gain of $5,500,050 over the corresponding week hast year. Of the total imports over three-fourths was in dry goods, sugar, wool and other goods rushed into the United States in anticipation of the passing of the new tariff bill. The export movement for the week showed a slight gain, but nothing to compare with imports and as this ratio has been main tained for several weeks, the chances of weeks past. The total deposits in fact have the total imports over three-fourths was in dry goods, sugar, wool and other goods rushed into the United States in anticipation of the passing of the new tariff hill. The export movement for the week showed a slight gain, but nothing to compare with imports and as this ratio has been maintained for several weeks, the chances of gold exports are increasing in proportion to the adverse trade balances thus created. Boston also reports excessively heavy im-Boston also reports excessively heavy imports of wool, and if the imports continue the money market may find relief in the shipment of specie abroad.
