THOMPSON, BELDEN & CO.

will be here shortly. Until after I have conferred with them I do not desire to talk for publication. All efforts to induce Bolin to speak of his own plans or those of his family failed. He did not appear to be especially displeased with the verdict of the jury, and in fact, which, he remarked, was exceedingly oppressive.

There were only four attaches of the sheriff's office, besides the reporters, present when Bolin was brought in and there was consequently an excitement about the court house. Even the reporters in the corridors and on the steps did not know that the man who was to soon begin his nineteenth year in the penitentiary had been brought to what was probably his last trip to the sheriff's office.

The mandate from the supreme court was received at the sheriff's office late yesterday afternoon and shortly afterward Bolin was taken over to the jail. The sheriff has thirty days in which to transfer Bolin to Lincoln, and as that officer is out of the city the time for the transfer will not be settled until his return.

U. S. SUPREME COURT. The news that the supreme court had affirmed Bolin's sentence was received by his attorney with no perceptible surprise. J. W. West, who has had charge of Bolin's defense since he was arrested, and who had then proposed to make an effort to get the case before the United States supreme court on the ground that the law of Nebraska did not sufficiently authorize a prosecution of a grave felony by information. This point has been insisted on by Bolin's attorneys all through the case.

Mr. West says that he will apply to the United States supreme court for a writ of error at once and if this is secured he will then ask for the release of Bolin on a $50,000 bond. His position is that the constitution of Nebraska, like the federal constitution and those of most of the other states, provides that a man charged with a crime answer for a felony unless he is indicted by a grand jury. But the constitution also provides that the relation of a public prosecutor on information drawn by a public prosecutor. He contends that the law of Nebraska does not make any such provision for the release of Bolin on a $50,000 bond. Mr. Bolin on an information filed by the county attorney was therefore unconstitutional.

QUESTION OF OWNERSHIP OF ELK. Wandered from Park in Search of Food Into J. A. Adams' Corral. CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 19.—(Special.)—An opinion has been rendered by the attorney general of Wyoming in a novel case which probably could not arise in any state of the union except Wyoming. During the past winter an immense number of elk, estimated to be over 25,000, came from the forests and mountains in and around the Yellowstone National park into the Jackson Hole region south of the park to winter. Food was scarce and the snows deep and thousands of these animals perished. The survivors were driven into the park to feed on the mountain grass. After the snows melted and the elk were driven out of the park, many of them were found in the corral of J. A. Adams, a ranchman who had built strong and high corals in order to keep the ravenously hungry elk from breaking in on the ranch. Adams, who owns nine elk found their way into the corral and were kept there until they were starved to death. Adams decided to try and domesticate the animals. The game warden for the region decided that Mr. Adams' action was a violation of the state game law and ordered him to release the elk. Mr. Adams refused to do this and appealed to the governor for permission to retain his prisoners. In his letter of appeal Mr. Adams states that "these elk were simply corralled and that for the fact they would probably have perished from starvation and insists that as he does not intend shipping the elk from the state, he simply wishes to hold them for the purpose simply of domesticating them, he is not violating any law. The attorney general in his opinion upon the question holds that Mr. Adams is violating the state law which forbids taking deer, elk or mountain sheep by any pitfall or trap.

RAILROAD LOSES THE CASE

Coal Rate Controversy Goes Against the Missouri Pacific.

CHARGES ON MINE RUN DECIDED TOO HIGH

State Board of Transportation Hears and Gives Its Opinion in a Case That Affects Omaha Interests.

LINCOLN, May 19.—(Special.)—The coal rate case was heard by the State Board of Transportation this morning, and an interesting point was brought out which is of more than local interest. The case was brought by George W. Gribben on complaint of Lincoln and Omaha coal dealers that the Missouri Pacific road has been charging too much for hauling mine run coal from Parsons, Mo., to the two points named. It was set out that the rate on lump coal was $1.42 per ton, and that the mine run rate should be $1.07 1/2 per ton, whereas the railroad company was charging the higher rate for both grades alike. The railroad company set up a want of jurisdiction on the part of the Board of Transportation, making the showing that it was an interstate matter. The case was heard by the Missouri state board a few days ago, and the decision was reserved pending negotiations for a settlement of the difficulty between the parties. In the hearing of the case this morning the defendant railroad company did not appear, relying on its objection to the jurisdiction of the board. Two or three witnesses were examined and the subject of complaint was inquired into. From the testimony it appeared that the mine run coal is hauled out as such at Parsons and not objection by the railroad company, and that the common law charges are based on the cars reaching the board. This the members of the board are inclined to think would put the case within their jurisdiction, and while the case still remains in the hands of the board, the decision will be made tomorrow that an overcharge is being made by the railroad company. It is admitted that an appeal may be taken in order to test the question of jurisdiction.

OLD APPROPRIATION HAS A SURPLUS. In a written opinion to the state auditor today the attorney general says that the appropriation of $1,075,000 for the year 1897, amounting to $1,075,000, cannot be paid out of the penitentiary appropriation of 1895 for the reason that the appropriation was made since April 1, 1897. He holds that after that date the pay must come from the new appropriation and that the $10,000 that remains of the appropriation for 1895 is available and must be turned back into the treasury on the 1st of August. In regard to the claim for goods furnished the state by H. H. Glover & Co. a national bank, furnished in March and part in April of this year, the decision is that the claim for the part furnished prior to April must be paid from the appropriation. In case it were legal to do so, the auditor had directed to draw upon the old appropriation under an order on maintaining the rights of the state as the legal and proper owner of the animals.

RAILROADS SEEK AN INJUNCTION. Ask Court to Prevent Enforcement of Reduced Freight Rates. FARGO, N. D., May 19.—General Counsel Bunn of the Northern Pacific, Grover of the Great Northern and Peck of the Milwaukee railroads have made an application before Judge Amidon of the United States court at Fargo for an injunction restraining the North Dakota Board of Railroad Commissioners from putting into effect the proposed reduction in freight rates on grain and stock. The board argued at considerable length and Judge Amidon issued a temporary restraining order against the publication of the proposed tariff and served an order on the board to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue. The order is returnable May 25. The board was not represented in court.

Child Tramps the Hills for a Night. SUNDANCE, Wyo., May 19.—(Special.)—On Saturday the little son of W. N. Beavers of Houston Creek wandered from home and became lost in the hills. Although on Sunday morning a messenger reached here asking for volunteers. The call was responded to by almost every man and boy in the neighborhood.
