ROBBERS HAVE A BUSY NIGHT MAN IN THE WOODS AT BELLEVUE.

There Were Two of Them and Each Was Armed with a Revolver.

THREE MEN HELD UP WHILE GOING HOME

Bighwaymen Seek the Vicinity of Prospect Hill Cemetery and There, Undisturbed, They Carry on Their Work.

Two highwaymen did a good business, with for more. Two of the individuals thus held up were seemingly ready for just such an occurrence, as they carried no money or valuables. The third was probably in the same condition, otherwise he would have made a report of the affair and revealed his identity, something he has not yet done.

The first man, or rather lad, who had the misfortune to run up against the highwaymen, was Mark Ellington. He was on his way to his home at 1915 North Twenty-eighth street. The hour was about 10:30 o'clock. As he was walking along Parker street, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh, two men stepped up to him. They emerged from the shadow of a big tree that stands near the sidewalk. They ordered Ellington to halt. Ellington obeyed the command because it was emphasized with a couple of big revolvers, which were pointed directly at his face. He promptly threw his hands up in the air and one of the men went through his clothing. Inaumuch as Ellington had nothing on his person, the robber did not get anything. With an oath, Ellington was ordered to go on and he went.

When Ellington got to the top of the Parker street hill, a couple of blocks away, he looked back to see what had become of the highwaymen. He was startled to see another man holding up his hands, while the same highwaymen were apparently going through him. Ellington, however, was not looking for any more acquaintance with road thieves and he lost no time in pursuing his also was on his way home and his experi-ence was very like Ellington's. The two men stepped up to him out of the shadow of the tree and made him hold up his hands. They went through his clothing, but Stringer also was without anything of value. With an oath that was even more emphatic than that which was addressed to Ellington, Stringer was ordered to go on. He obeyed with alacrity.

When Stringer got to the top of the Parker street hill, he also stopped and looked back to see what had become of the high-waymen. He saw another man wiggling his hands upward as far as he could reach and two men apparently going through him. Stringer is also a man who attends to bis own business. Consequently, he pursued his robbed of very much.

The identity of the third victim is at present concealed in mystery. He has made no report to the police. That seems to be pretty conclusive proof that he was not replied of year much.

During their brief interview with the two men, Ellington and Stringer did not spend much time in examining them. They spend much time in examining them. They are able to say, however, that one was short and slim and attired in a light suit of clothes, while the other was atout and was dressed in dark clothes. Both were armed with revolvers. Ellington believes that they live in the vicinity of the holdup, because he thinks they took him for his brother. They spoke his brother's name and ordered him to turn over his wealth.

The clew was furnished by George F. Longsford, an attorney of this city, who lives in Bellevue. He got it second-hand from a woman who claims to have seen a man, coatless and hatless, walking in the woods Monday afternoon. She believed that he was demented. She was unable to give a very good description of the man, but as much as the did give corresponds with the description she did give corresponds with the description of Robinson. The derby hat which was found a short distance from the spot where the skiff stranded and which was left on a pole on the river bank had disappeared yesterday. The Plattsmouth boys left it to mark the spot where they found the boat. The hat was but little soiled, was nearly new, and was from the store of a local retail dealer. Robinson's relatives are of the opinion that the hat belonged to the missing man, as he was know to have purchased one a short time before to disappeared.

FILE AN INFORMATION THAT HOLDS Collins Boys' Effort to Break Into the Penitentiary.

James Collins and James, better known as Jim Collins, cousins, the two men who were caught on the night of May 11 while rifling a refrigerator car at Thirteenth street and the railroad tracks of a quantity of meat and who were captured after a desperate fight, are apparently having a hard time of it to break into the penitan-tlary,

A few days after the arrest of the two men they were given a preliminary hearing in police court and were bound over to the district court. When they were arraigned in the criminal court it transpired that the olice court transcript failed to show that the crime was committed in Douglas county Judge Baker therefore dismissed the car but held the men for further hearing.

The Collins boys were at once rearreste and Monday afternoon a new informatio was brought into the police court to be filed Sudge Gordon received it, but after it has been sworn to the police judge falled to sign the attached affidavit. The fact was discovered yesterday when the prisoner were to be arraigned. The result of thi tangle was the drawing up of a third complaint by the county attorney. This was properly filed and the two defendants were finally arraigned. They pleaded not guilty hearing was set for next Monday oon. They were allowed bonds in the afternoon. sum of $800 each.

Harbor Convention. Members of the committee of the Real Es tate exchange which has been making arangements for a delegation from the exchange to attend the deep water convention to be held at Galveston the latter part of this nonth, received word yesterday that the onvention had been postponed until Septem or. It was stated that objection had bee raised in some of the northern states to hold-ing the convention during the summer on account of the heat in Galveston and it had been decided to meet this objection by defer-ring the meeting until the fall, when the weather will be less objectionable to thos maccustomed to it.

The members of the committee did not know whether to be glad or sorry when this news was received. Arrangements had been made for the trip and a party of about seventy-five was made up. Some of the members were regretting that the matter has been deferred and others took it philosophic ally and reasoned that the exposition further advanced by September and the delegation would have more to talk about and thought the postponement was a good thing.

It is the opinio of the experts who have been consulted tha fewer cracks would appear than are found in the present pavements. Mr. Rosewater also proposes to introduce an improvement in the new paving districts by placing a layer of sand on the clay soil before the concrete is laid. This will give a more even base to work on and will also operate to prevent cracking.

LAIRD-SCHOBER'S FINAL CUT

We Were Closed All Day Yesterday to Make This Final Cut.

BIGGEST SHOE BARGAINS ON NOW

When We Open Wednesday Morning Every Shoe Price Will Be n Fresh Surprise_Every Table Price is Lowered.

For the benefit of those who can't help ts quit in the daytime we'll be open every light this week till 9 o'elock at least. We've struck rock bottom now.

This is positively the final cut. We'll be quick in quitting now. Everyone of our salesmen has been busy all day; every one worked last night until every shoe in the house, whether it has een a favorite at this sale or not, has felt

Not a pair allowed to escape.

Not a pair allowed to escape.

It's one sweeping quitting cut.

Amongst the kuife work done were all the babies' shoes that were 48c, all through the sale, which have been placed on a table by themselves at 25c.

They would all go before breakfast, but we can't open until 8 this morning.

There are about 1,000 pairs of infants tans and blacks left that were 60c at this sale.

They will be 40c. We'll have four separate 48c tables. On one will be the children's tan shoes hat were originally cut from $1.25 to 75c; they now fill a big 48c table.

The same shoe in black with patent tips are plied on another 48c table.

Bargain is not a strong enough word to xpress It. The third and fourth 48c tables will contain all the odds and ends of the ladies' shoes and exfords, gathered from all over the store, different kinds, different values; some were $4.00, some $3.00, and none of them was less than $2.00.

There are over 500 pairs on this table and they are yours until they are gone at 48c. The greatest value we have offered yet is on the table just inside the door. It won't be there long, because there are on this table, women's tan oxfords, sizes 4 to 8, only a 100 pair, at 75c.

Again "bargain" doesn't tell haif of it. The carpenters have made us two new tables for today, on which we place all the misses' and children's exblood and tan button shoes, also all the green ones we had. They were $2.25 and $2.50 before the cale. They are 84c now. This final cut will send these out in a

TIRE OF THE TARIFF DISCUSSION. Commercial Club Urges Congress to

Get Down to Business. The Omaha Commercial club will assist in the movement of the National Business Men's league toward securing a termination of con gressional discussion at Washington and an enactment of a tariff bill which shall improve commercial conditions. This was deolded upon at a meeting of the executive committee of the Commercial club yester-day. A communication asking that such action be taken was received from the Na-tional league, signed by Ferdinand W. Peck of Chicago, president, and Moses P. Handy, chairman of the executive committee.

The committee appointed to confer with a committee from the Woman's club concerning the erection of a club building made a report which was rather adverse to the con-sideration of the building proposition at this time. The committee was continued.

E. C. Garvin was elected to membership. It was resolved to ask the government to make a special issue of postal cards for the Transmississippl Exposition.

QUESTION OF STREET SWEEPING.

Sweepers May Take Place of Blue Barrel Brigade. The question of street sweeping is occupying a good deal of the attention of the members of the Board of Public Works. It is the unanimous opinion of the members that the present system is not satisfactory in all respects. The sweepers collect the dirt and refuse in piles and then it is usually scattered by the wind and passing vehicles before the wagons get around to haul it away. City Engineer Rosewater thinks that if the blue barrel system is to be continued it will be necessary to have an arrangement similar to that in use in New York City. There the refuse collected by the sweepers is deposited in big sacks, which are left to be picked up by the wagons as rapidly as they are filled. Thus the dirt is retained after it has once been swept up, instead of being again scattered over the street. However this may be adjusted, it is certain that the present membership of the blue barrel brigade will have to be cut nearly in half before the end of another week. The entire amount left in the clear ing fund is less than $3,000 and at the pres ent rate of expenditure it will be exhausted before the summer is half over. There is some talk of dropping the barrels altogether for the present and hiring horse sweepers to clean the streets at stated intervals.
