that when he said Bartley did not have an open account he meant that he did not have a balance in his favor. He said the account in question was a continuation of an old account carried over from 1894. He was asked the deposit from which he took the credit of $180,101.75 was not in the hand-writing of Mr. Balch, but he answered that e did not remember. On re-direct examination he said he en tered a credit of $180,101.75 in Bartley's personal account because the deposit slip was made out in that way. Prior to that time the account had been closed.

WARRANT CREDITED TO BARTLEY. Assistant Cashier Balch identified a de posit allp showing a deposit to Bartley's personal account of $180,101.75 by warrant, made April 26, 1895. The witness testified that the deposit slip was made by him at the of the tellers of the bank and he said a of the tellers of the bank and he said a stamp appearing on the slip showed that it had been entered by him. The witness also identified a letter received by the Omaha M. Tuttle, Edith Vapor, Marie E. Vom Weg. identified a letter received by the Omaha National bank from the Chemical National of New York notifying the Omaha bank that $180,500.77 had been placed to its credit for the warrant and interest on it from April 10, 1895, to the date of the letter. The wit-ness testified that he made the deposit slip for Bartley's personal account after this letter had been received. The evidence did not disclose what was done with the $399.02 interest paid by the Chemical.
On cross-examination Balch testified that he did not see the warrant when it was received originally by the Omaha National and ceived originally by the Omaha National and did not know of his own knowledge that Bartley had brought the warrant to the bank Beside this big bunch of youth another Bartley had brought the warrant to the bank or not. The witness said when the credit of $180,101.75 was made to Bartley's personal account that account had been closed for some time. He could not recall that he had been instructed by Bartley through the tele phone from Lincoln to place the money to ile personal account, as asked by Mr. Mahoney. Bookkeeper Adair was recalled and identi fied the deposit slip made by Cashier Baich. Prof. Turner, the other two, acted as if they saying that he made the credit entry in the ledger in Bartley's personal account from the slip. The witners testified that the entry "Brown, cashier," appearing under the head indicated that the check shown by the entry had been drawn to the cashier of the Columbia National bank of Lincoln. An attempt of the defense to show by this witness that the Columbia National was a state depository was ruled out by the court under an objection from the state.

On re-direct examination the state at tempted to show by the witness that "Brown was E. E. Brown, one of Bartley' bondsmen, but the witness said he did not know his initials or anything about him. This concluded the testimony for the day court was adjourned until 9:30 this

Not a seat in the lower balcony floors or in the boxes was unc cupied. Even the gallery was invaded an he "standing room" was in very good de mand. The audience was a fine one and big one, and fairly bubbled over with applause for the fortunate ones who were upon the program.

IN THE BOXES. The boxes were all occupied, most of them they were decorated with colors and gave a gala appearance to the theater. some the burting was profuse. Some of the parties made their presence quite manifest before the evening was over. One was made up of members of the class of '93 and the P. C. The class numeral and the society emblem appeared on the box and the decora tions consisted of the old class colors, white and gold. The members of the party consisted of: Misses Ada Stone, Abba Bowen Bessie Dunn, Clara Chaffee, Lizzie Will and Messrs. James L. Huston, jr., Herbert Dunn Jacob Abrams, F. J. Riley, Wirt Thompson, Lynn Chaffee, Henry Mengedoht, Henry Black and Dr. F. F. Teal. They had con-cealed about their persons horns, bells and numerous yells. They took pride in the fact that when the exercises were closed they made more noise than anybody else. Next to this box, which was in the lower astern tier, was one occupied by a represet off by profuse decorations of red and today. Smith says he does not wish to prosecute the man Burke. The party consisted of Messrs. MacMorrison, Howard Leonard, Michael Clarkson, Mont Kennard, Ray Wagner and Charles Muentefering. Another of the boxes was occupied by Misses Henderson, Andrews and Harney and Mcssrs. Maxwell, Cowherd and Waterman. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Switzler and Mrs. A. C. Troup occupied another and Mr. and Mrs B. H. Robison and daughter and F. T. Bratman a second. The other two were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George F. Bidwell, W. F. Fahrs and Lewis Huggins and by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hendrie and Mrs. D. H. Goodrich.

ESSAYS AND ORATIONS. When the curtain arose amidst strains from the Twenty-second Infantry band, the graduates were greeted with a hearty burst of applause. As soon as this subsided the program of recitations, essays, declamations orations and music was at once undertaken and continued until about 11 o'clock.

The essays formed the principal part o the program, five being spoken. Miss Zor I. Shields spoke of "Character Study," tak-ing as her example one of the characters in Elliot's "Romola." Miss Ella R. Craw-ford mentioned the many important events that have passed before the eyes of the present queen of England, her paper being entitled "The Queen's Jabilee." Miss Gertrude Waterman detailed the fortunate lo of the existing mortal as "Heir of the Ages," with his heritage of thousands of years of inventions. Miss Edith C. Higgins a pretty "Lesson from the Pearl," and and Miss Marian H. Hart discovered that there was a "Mission of Pain" in the world, although she maintained that a goodly portion of the suffering unnecessary.

There were two orations on the program One was delivered by Harry E. Crandali, who spoke of the attitude "Arbitration" is assuming in the world's history and lamented the recent action of the senate in throw-ing aside the Olney treaty. Lewis B. Reed delivered an oration, "Mens Sana in Corpore Sano." He supported athletics in school and college life, finding much good and but

and college life, finding much good and but little evil in the tendency.

One of the features of the program was the original declamation on "Frederick Douglass," delivered by Henry V. Plummer, a colored member of the class. His composition was clever and polished, and was delivered in an exceptionally excellent manner. He showed what his race could do by taking the example of Douglass, risen from the position of a slave to a most prominent public place, and made a strong plea that the negro be given the full rights of citizenship in every section of the country. These heavy topics were interspersed with a number of lighter selection. Miss Isaplea a number of lighter selection. Miss Isabella Will recited excellently "The Bridge of the Tay:" Miss Lulu M. Tuttle rendered a good piano solo, "March of the Drummer Boy," of Sidney Smith, and Charles W. Engel performed very acceptably Rubinstein's difficult "Kamenoi Ostrow." The '97 Mandolin club was so acceptable that it had to respond to as encore. And finally the doin crub was so acceptable that it had to respond to an encore. And finally the Twenty-second Infantry band played throughout the program a large number of selections with its usual brilliancy.

ADMONITION FROM EDWARDS. When this program was concluded Presi dent Edwards of the Board of Education ad sed the graduating class in a few He said that their hard work was just beginning, but that the state had done its full duty by them and they were expected now to do their duty to the state. Then he de-livered the godspeed of the board to the

The curtain went down, and in a few minu'es arose. The tiers of seats had been re-moved and the class marched in file across the stage and received their diplomas from President Edwards and Principal Leviston They marched and remarched to and fro across the stage until the last certificate had been given out and then faced the audience in a solid phalanx. The curtain fell in a vigorous burst of applause.

The sinking of the curtain was the signal for an outburst from the undergraduates and the alumni in the theater. Horns were blown, bells were rattled, class cries were yelled. While this pandemonium continued the graduates were receiving their friends upon the stage. This was the final act in the graduation of the class of '97.

The eighth annual reunion of the Omaha High School Alumni association is to occur at Metropolitan hall, Twenty-third and Harney streets, tonight. The final arrangements and the large number of alumni who have paid their dues this year indicate the most successful of all the receptions of this or-ganization. The dues of those who have been unable to pay before will be received by the treasurer at the door and proper credit given. The splendid program has been the cause of much praise for the committee.

AND THE PARTY OF T AMUSEMENTS.

Variation and the second secon "Shamrock and Rose," one of those dramas of Irish life so dear to the loval Hibernian heart, was presented last night at the Creighton theater by a cast composed of member. of the North Omaha Dramatic club in aid of local Roman Catholic charities. The piece is full of stirring incidents, with a due pro portion of comedy, and a pretty love story runs its varied course through the action The participants, without exception, did the work assigned them with zeal and credit to

DECEPTION IS PRACTICED FOR YEARS

Instead of Searching the Books, Fees Are Collected and Officials' Statements Taken as to the Condition of Banks.

LINCOLN, June 10 .- (Special.)-It has developed that the late State Banking Board was very lax in its duties and that the law requiring the examination of state banks once each year was observed only to an extent that makes the discoveries now coming out the more startling. For instance, no report of an examination of J. S. Bartley's bank at Atkinson has been filed with the board since 1891, and a large number of other banks throughout the state were treated in the same lepient manner, escaping the required examinations for a number of years. It is known now that some of the father and mother. He says his father's examiners made a practice of calling upon hame is Ben Warner and his mother's Mary examiners made a practice of calling upon the favored banks regularly, collecting the fee for examination, and accepting the word of the cashiers that the banks were in good condition. In these cases there was no pretense of examination of the books of the banks and no reports were filed at the office of the board that examinations had been made, or at most only a formal report was made that the banks were in good condition. This will perhaps explain how in the last six years a number of banks have closed their doors, with great loss to depositors, only a few days giter alleged examinations by the state examiners, in which the banks were reported to be in good condition. It in asserted on behalf of R. H. Townley, late ecretary of the board, that he tried to keep he affairs of the department in proper shape out the examiners refused to obey him and conducted the work in their own way. There s, however, no evidence that the secretary ever protested against their manner of examining banks, or that he ever called for reports on the condition of banks which by his books were shown not to have been examined for five or six years.

MAKING POLITICS OF WOLFE. In spite of the fact that the board of reents has announced that there will be no further action in the matter the politica riends of Prof. Wolfe of the University of Nebraska are still very much exercised ove the dismissal of the professor and are work ing to have the decision changed. They in sist that Prof. Wolfe was dismissed because he was a populist and for no other reason and are making considerable political capita out of it. On the other hand the regents say that there was no question of politic in the dismissal, and point to the fact that during the last six years there have been ight dismissals from the university, all the thers laving been republicans, this is the first time anyone has attempted o raise a political issue over a dismissal. Forty-six law students were sworn in by the supreme court this afternoon, and admitted to practice. Of these thirty-six were graduates from the university were graduates from the university has school and ten were those who have just passed the examination under the commission appointed by the supreme court. The ten who were successful in the examination were: George W. Hall and Arthur A. Clements, Ord; George W. Wertz Schuyler; Frederick J. H. Larsen, Omaha William, O. Thompson, Fremont; Fred II. Free Norfolk; John K. Waring, Geneva; Calvin Keller, Creighton; Harry L. Cohn. York and George B. Graves, Linceln. G. Robinson of Beatrice passed the exam-nation, but as his application came in too late, he will not be recommended for ad-mission until at the fall term.
