ATTEMPT TO SURROUND THE MAHDISTS

No Details of the Disaster Have Been Received, but the Report Comes from Reliable Source.

BRUSSELS, June 24—The Reforme says

It is from a good source that the entire British expedition to the headwaters of the Nile, including Baron Dhanis himself, has been massacred.

Baron Dhanis last year enlisted 6,000 men in the Congo Free State to take part in a secret expedition. The British government has a number of the Hussars troops to join the expedition, but it was officially denied that an Anglo-Belgian movement had been concerted against the Mahdists.

The general impression, however, was that this force intended to act in conjunction with the Anglo-Egyptian expedition up the Nile and take the Mahdists by surprise.

Baron Dhanis was born in London in 1862, of a Belgian father and a mother of English extraction. In 1886 he became lieutenant in an infantry regiment and later was entrusted with a mission to Zanzibar by the International African association.

Mr. Curzon said her majesty's government did not feel called upon to express an opinion relative to the expedition, but that the present situation in Hawaii had arisen.

Almost Three Million to Be Distributed by the Commission.

The report, as soon as it has been put in the desired form, will be forwarded to the secretary of war sometime between the first and fifth of July.

The congressional appropriation for damage to property from the overflow of the Mississippi river amounts to $2,523,333 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898. This sum will be distributed by the commission after the hearing of testimony on damages sustained in the three districts extending from Cairo to the gulf, and under the executive supervision of the secretary.

When the commission went into open session Senator Berry of Arkansas addressed the members and said that the future of the Mississippi river depended upon the report which this commission would make. If the report was favorable a sufficient sum of money would be appropriated to protect the banks.

Continuing Governor McLaughlin said that he thought one of the government's chief duties in protecting the nation was to settle along the banks of the Mississippi. He said that levees increased the current of the river and washed and improved the channel.

immense packing house in South Omaha. The details have all been arranged within the past month and the papers were signed yesterday afternoon.

A tract of land owned by Chris Graf, Thomas Whitteley and William Bennett on the north side of Q street at the west end of the viaduct has been purchased, the deal being closed yesterday.

Adjoining this tract is the land purchased a year ago from B. Jetter for $30,000. Another large tract lying west and north of that secured yesterday has been bought from the Union Stock Yards company.

The result of this extensive addition to the packing house industry will be that all of the great packing concerns will be represented here and a market for the live stock will be created.

President William A. Paxton of the Union Stock Yards company, when the negotiations had been concluded and the announcement was ready to be made public, he said that to his mind the best time to build the new plant was now.

With the new plant in working order all of the live stock raised in the west can be sold at a great profit and the live stock industry will be benefited.

The building of this large plant will have the effect of placing Omaha and South Omaha on a different footing with the railroads.

Armour will now use his influence with the railroads and thus secure great advantages for the two cities hereafter enjoyed.

It will broaden the market at South Omaha and be of immeasurable benefit to every stockman in Nebraska and the entire northwest.
