Rain Helps Crops, but Wind Doe Great Damage.

ST. LOUIS, June 25 .- The reports of heav storms throughout southern Illinois and Mis souri continue to be received. Last night and until an early hour today St. Louis was again deluged with rain. While the wind has been destructive to trees, crops and buildings in some sections, the rain has geratly benefited some crops. Around Caire, Ill., fully five inches of rain has fallen within the last week, breaking the drouth and saving corn and other crops. Reports from nearly every section of southern Illinois indicate that while the yield of wheat is below the average, the quality is unusually good. St. Joseph suffered especially from the wind. Big trees were uprooted and small buildings crushed. Telephone and telegraph service was suspended for sometime, but to confirm the report of Referee C. W. Day-ton in regard to the final distribution of the residuary estate of Daniel Fayerwether. The motion was opposed by counsel for John B. Reynolds, executor of the helis. The ref-eree reports that the residuary estate in the hands of T. G. Ritch, Justus L. Bulke-ley and Henry B. Vaughan amounts to $3,089,165, and recommends that it be fils-tributed between the twenty colleges decided upon by the court of appeals, after investing $155,090 to provide an annuity of $1,000 for Mrs. Reynolds. Justice Pryor adjourned the case until next Tuesday. so far as learned no lives have been lost The other points throughout the state where the storm was especially severe were Mo berly, Alexandria, Fayette, Trenton and Cali Several lives were lost through fotnia. lightning. Mrs. Ruben Rickabaugh, wife of a farmer, was instantly killed while sitting at the window of her house, two miles from Albany. Albert Rouster, a farmhand living Albany. near St. Charles, Mo., also suffered death it the same way, while a number of farmers in both Illinois and Missouri had barns and crops burned by the lightning. The immense Advance elevator "A." East St. Louis, in which was stored 600,000 bushels of grain, was struck by lightning and set on fire last night, but firemen saved it from destruction any distress being apparent. The tide was slack, the wind favored no particular crew and absolutely no favor of any kind was shown by nature toward the result. The race was rowed entirely on its merits.

The race also set a conclusion upon the long-mooted question concerning weights. Yale stripped into its boat at an average of 171 pounds. Cornell 158. Yale-used every pound of its "beef" and the leverage of its oars, and at times with a nervousness which made the beat fairly lift from the water. Cornell employed its trained-down muscle without beef in a leisurely, confident manner, that pulled it at every stroke toward victory. It was a singular coincidence that the English-trained crew, Harvard, pursued exactly the same method as to the number of strokes per minute as did the winners, and although they weighed on an average ten pounds heav-ler than Cornell's men that extra weight old for nothing and either from too much "finences" in training or lack of ability to pull the stroke set for them, they were practleally "dead" after the second mile. It is also curious to note that Cornell pulled exactly the same kind of a stroke and the number of strokes to the minute that it pulled last year, when it won in record breaking time, and that Harvard, while ad-vertising that it had entirely new methods, was defeated in exactly the same manner that defeat met it last year.

CORNELL HOLDS THE RECORD.

Briefly the result of today's race is that Cornell asserts its superiority in rowing, method of training and capability over the two larger universities, and still holds the record for intercollegiate eights of nineteen ninutes, twenty-nine seconds, which it made last year.

The race was one of the most brilliant in the history of aquatics in this country. The erews started with a stroke of thirty-two for Cornell and thirty-six for Harvard and Yale, Harvard gained a slight advantage over the others at the start, and the usual note of jubilation went up from the Harvard adherents. It was apparent within the first quarter of a mile that Cornell was using the same methods that took them on to victory last year, that of a slow and telling stroke that would wear out their opponents. The The in bosts traveled swiftly, although it was easily a noticeable that the tide was at a slack, and the conditions did not favor record breaking, Yale with a quick stroke hung in the rear until the first quarter was passed, while Cornell and Harvard fought it out. Cornell forged to the front before the end of the first mile was reached. Harvard struggled valiantly, but before the end of the mile and a half was in the rear of Yale. Cornell went on with that easy, swinging stroke, little Colson on the coxswain's box cautioning them not to run away with it. Harvard, acting under the instructions of their training master, used at many points the same stroke as to numbers, but it seemed to have little ef-fect, the boat of Cornell running away from Harvard. CORNELL KEEPS COOL.

At the two mile point the Yale crew was going away from Harvard and the latter seemed unable to prevent it, although they were rowing away at the long thirty-two stroke that had been predicted a winning one. After Yale got away from Harvard it turned its attention to Cornell and just be yond the second mile made a desperate spurt to catch the slim youngsters. Never for a moment did the young white-shirted lads from Cornell get rattled. The weighty youngsters from Yale used every pound of leverage on the end of the oar, but they could not bring their boat alongside of the swiftly moving craft of the Cornell boys. The Harvard men were rowing in a very weak fashion during this next mile and it was evident that they were thoroughly used up.

At the bridge the coxswain of the Har vard crew had to give the Harvard stroke a little water in his face and for the moment under the reviving influence the boat swung on at a goodly pace. But only for a moment, and just as they passed under the big bridge the stroke began to give way. Cornell was rowing at thirty-two and Yale was working away at thirty-three and thirty-four and evi-dently tired. Before they reached the third mile post Yale had begun to spurt and the eight powerful representatives of old Bil's muscle and stamina bent to their work with a wonderful exhibition of sheer will power, for their strength was gone. For a period of perhaps three minutes the dying struggle of the giants lasted and they gained a little on the flying leaders, and poor old Harvard, with nearly every man exhausted, clung
