WASHINGTON, July 19 .- The floor of the house presented an animated appearance long before the speaker rapped that body to order today. Members stood about in groups and discussed, sometimes in excited tones, the result of the conference agreement or the tariff bill.

The final conference report on the general deficiency appropriation bill was adopted. This out of the way, Mr. Dingley arose and holding aloft the report and a great mass of papers said in calm tones:

Mr. Speaker I desire to present the conference report on the tariff bill."
Salvos of applause from the republican side greeted this announcement. An effor was made to secure an agreement for a vote An effort Mr. Bailey said the minority desired three days, but knowing they could not obtain it they would be satisfied with two. Mr. Dingley refused to agree to this, say-ing, "Talk at this time is very expensive. It costs the treasury $100,000 a day."

"Not so expensive as the ten days you spent in arguing this meeting schedule with the sugar trust," retorted Mr. Bailey amid a counter round of applause by his followers.

Mr. Dingley in reply pointed out that never before in legislative history had a tariff bill been in conference so brief a time. The McKinley bill had been in conference two weeks, "and our friends on the other side, said he, addressing the democrats, "in 159 were in conference six weeks without reaching an agreement." 'The trouble in 1894," retorted Mr. Bailey "was that we were trying to run the demo eratic party with a lot of mugwumps in command." (Laughter and applause on the democratic side.)

Mr. Dingley continued his efforts to fix a time for a vote, the republicans during the discussion crying "Vote, vote, vote." "I suggest we wait until sugar stock goes castleally. "It has gone up $6 a share since

At 8 o'clock, when the night session be gan, the galleries were crowded, many women being present. Mr. Dingley stated that he hoped to secure a ote by 10 o'clock.

Mr. Bailey said 10 o'clock was too early but he thought the vote could be taken by 11 o'clock. He would not, however, make definite agreement on the vote.

Thereupon Mr. Dingley gave notice that ne would move the previous question not ater than 11 o'clock.

In the galleries were many distinguished personages of both sexes. In the executive gallery sat Secretary of the Navy Long and on the floor at the side of Mr. Hitt of Illinois sat Attorney General McKenna, who was a member of the ways and means committee in 1890 when the McKinley law was passed. Altogether it was a brilliant setting for the

None of them claimed the floor and the minority was compelled to put forward their speakers. Therefore, after McDowell of Ohio and Mr. Berry of Kentucky, both ment given out by the committee. Bailey, the democratic leader, who had been reserving his speech for the close, took the floor. He made a carefully prepared argu ment, dealing more with the general princi-ples involved than with details. Time and again during the progress of his remarks the democrats were aroused by his eloquence to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Just before the close of Mr. Balley's remarks the most sensational incident of the debate ocurred. He had been assalling the doctrine of free raw materials as a comparative innovation in the democratic creed. In order to demonstrate that it was a product of hat they had abandoned the idea of taxing Clevelandiem he sent to the clerk's deak and had read an extract from a newspaper com-menting on the fact that in the Forty-ninth congress Senator Mills, then a member of the house, Mr. McMillin of Tennessee and two other democratic members of the ways and means committee, had voted against McMillin jumped to his feet and de manded to know if it was charged he had voted against free wool.

> A during holdup was committed shortly after 11:30 o'clock last night, the victims being John A. Creighton and his brother-inlaw, John Schenk. The robbery took place at the home of Mr. Creighton, corner of Twentieth and Chicago streets. Both the miscreants succeeded in making their ca-

> Mr. Creighton alighted from the Twentleth street motor at Chicago street and walked to a side gate, entering his grounds. A short distance from the gate there is an oil lamp which is kept burning all night. Around about it there is considerable foliage, among which is a large lilac bush. As Mr. Creighton ascended the walk a man suddenly sprang from the shadow of the bush and, putting a revolver to his temple, exclaimed; "Give me your money or I'll > shoot!" Mr. Creighton is not in the habit of doing business in this style, so instead of complying, he struck at the stranger and knocked the weapon aside. The thug then, grasping his antagonist, struck him on the head a number of times with the gun, and at length succeeded in forcing him to the ground. The two men rolled about under the foliage, both fighting desperately, the one with a revolver and the other with an umbrella, which he chanced to have.
