The Pulton people showed fight from the moment the Rock Island crowd arrived. Having received intimations that the special was en route, there was a large contingent at the depot when it arrived and at once hostilities began by tearing up the walks about the depot and assaulting the invaders with the loose planks.

At the deer of the head office, the village marshal, William Bennett, stood with drawn revolver. A brick from one of the invaders felled him to the ground. The Rock Islanders then made a run into the office and captured the records. At the depot, which is half a block distant, the fight was renewed, and here it took the nature of a riot, during which 150 of the Rock Island people were placed under arrest. It was at this time a large number of both sides were injured.

ALL TOBACCO IS NOT RELEASED. Each Case Taken Up Separately and Treated on its Merits.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.-So far as is known at the State department there has been no general order issued by the Spanish government for the release of all of the tobacco held in Cuba for export to the United States under the prohibitory rule of Captain General Weyler, issued last year. Each case is being treated on its merits and the only general order issued relates to the evidence that must be produced by the American owner of the tobacco, such as proofs that contracts for delivery of the tobacco were actually made prior to the issue of the prohibitory rule; dates of the various steps in the transaction and explanations of the reasons why the tobacco had not been shipped before. In some cases there has been considerable delay in securing the re-lease of the tobacco owing to the fact that this evidence has been sent to Madrid in-stead of to Havana, but generally it is said the Spanish government is treating the applications with proper attention.

The B. & M. depot at this place, together with the express and freight offices, was entirely destroyed by fire this morning. The fire was first noticed at 1 o'clock by Miss was first noticed at 1 o'clock by Mic Roby, a guest at the B. & M. hotel about 150 feet distant, and it had then attained a good start. As the depot is one mile from the business portion of the city the fire department did not arrive in time to save any of the buildings. The express, haggage and safe were removed, but 200 pieces of freight were burned. One freight car was burned, but the freight was saved. The origin of the fire is attributed to the explosion of a lamp in the ticket and tele-graph office. At 3:30, just as the fire dipartment had returned to its quarters, a second alarm was turned in for a one-story house just north of the depot. The fire was burning fiercely when the company arrived, but was soon under control. The fire was first noticed in the rooof, and may have caught from a brand flying from the depot fire.

More Copies of City Charter Ordered. o. The action of the city council in having printed only 500 copies of the new charter has proven a false economy. The number chas proven entirely insufficient and the supply was exhausted long ago. Many slarge taxpayers and others who are considered entitled to copies have been unable to get them, and the demand has become so emphatic that at the next meeting the council will probably direct the comproller to secure bids on another lot. Bids will be asked on 500 and 1,000 copies, and the number ordered will depend somewhat on the figures submitted by the printers. CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—Starter Brown had Carrle Lyle entered in the last race at Newport today and did not handle the flag, his position being taken by Henry McDaniels, the well known horseman. The field was a bad one to handle and after several false breakaways McDaniels dropped the flag to a bad start. Moddler, the favorite, and Lizetia, the next best placed, were left standing at the post, Motilia was the best of those that got away and won handily. There was considerable kicking over the start, as several owners claimed the flag did not drop, but the judges declared it a start and allowed all bets to a stand. A ROMANCE OF CUBA.

Cavalry Leader Who Avenges the Wrongs of His Ancestors. The name of the revolutionary leader, General Jesus Rabi, is mentioned often in are as defiant as ever. the dispatches from Cuba. As commanderin-chief of the Cuban cavalry forces in the east, relates the New York Sun, he has won renown not only by his deeds of daring and his skill as a strategist, but also by his chivalrous spirit and his devotion to the cause of liberty. The interest in his career is increased by a circumstance made known through a Cuban letter to the Sun that he is one of the few living descendanto of the aboriginal race of Indians who inhabited the island when Columbus discovered it in 1492, and nearly all of whom were slain or enslaved by the Spanish conquerors. It is against the offspring of the race who destroyed his own ancestors that General Rabi now wages war with all the energy of his nature. Four hundred years after his people were crushed by Spain he appears on the battlefield as Spain's deflant enemy.

The aboriginal race that inhabited Cuba the fifteenth century, when it was invaded by Spain, were known as Ciboneves and they numbered perhaps 40,000. They belonged to the same stock as that which then dwelt upon the other islands in the Caribbean sea, and that have always been spoken of as Indians. The Ciboneyes were singularly docile in their character, and they received the Spaniards in a friendly manner; but their gentle traits did not sive them from ruin. In a few years they suffered the doom that awaited the natives of most of the other American countries subdued by Spain. The story is a familiar one. The Spaniards overran the Island, mas-sacred thousands of its unfortunate inhabitants under circumstances of extreme cruelty, burned their proud chief at the stake, and reduced to involuntary servitude those who were left alive, assigning to each Spaniard a gang of Ciboneyes numbering about 200. The treatment to which the slaves were subjected by their masters was so harsh that nearly all of them were dead within twenty or thirty years. It is a black chapter in the history of Spain. A few of the people took refuge in the mountainous region of the east, and a small number of their posterity may be found there at this day. They are of a light copper color, and they inter-marry, as do the Jews, so that their blood is kept distinct from that of the other inhabitants of Cuba.

It is to this almost extinct race of mar-kind, the race of the ancient Ciboueyes, that General Rabi belongs, though he is less noted for his docility than for some other traits. In recent times he has done his part in causing Spain to suffer for the wrongs that Spain inflicted upon his ancestors four centuries ago. He is as bitter in his hatred of the Spanish tyrant as he is proud of his descent from the aboriginal Ciboneyes.

It was in his youth, nearly thirty years that this heroic man first look up arms ago, that this heroic man first look up arms. ago, that this heroic man first took up arms against Spain. He participated in the ter-year war, after which he waited for his nex opportunity; it came in the second month of 1895. His military record since then has been a brilliant one, and has manifested the neen a orininat one, and has manifested the finest qualities of a mind that is lospired by the love of liberty and justice. He is a man of broad thought, and he converses about public affairs like a statesman. Under his public affairs like a statesman. Under his command there are five battalions of cavalry, besides a small force of infantry.

There has been a report that General Rabi would take part in the projected campaign against Havana. If he should do so, and if it should be his fortune to enter the capital bearing the flag of free Cuba, the story of the romance of the hero of the modern Ciboneyes would be rounded off, to the dishonor of Diego Velasquez of the year 1511 and to that of Valeriano Weyler of the year 1897.

Cash Buyers Are in the Market and San Francisco Reports a Great Glut Awalting Transportatton Abroad.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.-Wheat values today tumbled 2 cents from last night's close and 3 cents from yesterday's high point of 90% cents for September. The decline was attended by heavy unleading of long wheat, It piled into the market from all quarters, influenced by weakness abroad, particularly at Paris, where flour prices broke 75 points from last night. The best traders here were prepared for the decline, but the rank and file of bulls opposed it vigorously and even succeeded in forcing September at the opening up from 891/2 cents to 90. It was useless, however, for with unsatisfactory news tains of the streams, and keeping the whole from abroad and loss of bull leaders at Chiland fresh and fruitful, while anything more cago prices declined and the weakness continued with few reactions right up to the close. The lowest price on September was ST% cents and the final quotatice 88 cents. Yesterday foreign buyers were shut out by the sensational advance, but today's drop caught more good orders, fifty loads being worked here and at other ports. On the curb, after the regular close, September rallied on selling orders to 88% cents. Total transactions during the day were $2.75.000 transactions during the day were 8,775,000

MOUTHFUL OF KEROSENE. The Boy Touched a Match to it and Trouble Began.

Cornelius Allen, a 9-year-old boy who lives with his stepfather at No. 98 Clinton street says the Buffalo Express, came near to killing himself yesterday afternoon with the aid of a mouthful of kerosene oil and a match The accident is one of the most peculiar that ever came to the attention of the doctors at the Fitch hospital, for young Allen had a fire inside of him for a few seconds at

They say in the neighborhood that Allen is a bright boy. The only trouble is that the forms of amusements which usually in-terest boys of his age do not amuse Allen. Yesterday afternoon the boy was playing with a lot of youths of his own age. They were in Allen's back yard. All their old games grew stale after a while and the boys decided to go home. Young Allen wanted them to stay.
"You fellows just wait," he said. "and I'll make some fun for you."

Then Allen went into the house and came back with the kertsene can and some matches. Then he took a big mouthful of the oli and began to squirt it out in a fine spray between his teeth. There was one tiny stream so thin that it could hardly be seen. Alien struck a match and touched the blaze to the atream of oil about three inches from his

AN ALASKAN DAY.

Glowing Sketch of the Passing Hours on the Coast.

The climate of all that portion of the Alaskan coast that is bathed by the Japan urrent, extending from the southern boundary of the territory northward and westward to the Island of Atco, a distance of nearly 2.500 miles, is remarkably bland and free from extreme heat and cold throughout the year. It is rainy, however, writes John Miner in the Century, but the rain is of good quality, gentle in its fall, filling the foundelightful than the shining weather after the rain—the great, round sun days of June, July and August-can hardly be found elsetween. Nevertheless, the full day opens slowly. For several hours after sunrice everything in the landscape seems dull and uncor cative. The clouds fade, the islands and the mountains, with ruffs of mist about them, cast ill-defined shadows, and the whole fir-mament changes to pale pearl gray with the grain shippers, and the Lombard street wharf is also being cleared for the same purpose.

The horizontal clouds that usually bar the horizon are fired on the edges, and the spaces of clear sky between them are filled in with greenish yellow and amber, while the flocks of thin, over-lapping cloudlets are mostly touched with rimson, like the outleaning sprays of a maple grove in the beginning of Indian summer; and a little later a smooth, mellow purple flushes the sky to the zenith, and fills the air, fairly steeping and transfiguring the islands and mountains, and changing all the water to wine.
