Quite a novel labor-saving device has been evolved from the inventive brain of Stephen Lander, the colored gardener employed by a well known resident of Swarthmore, Fa Stephen, while pushing a lawn mower over his master's grounds, conceived the idea of a bination bicycle and lawn mower and in mediately put his theory into practice. Tak-ing a wheel belonging to a member of the family, he testened the mower to the cycle by means of a rope, and, mounting the silent ced, attempted to push the mower through the grass. His scheme proved very unsuccessful at first, but much persevering on the part of the inventive darkey and some ad-ditional rope resulted in the scheme being a success and now he may be seen every Mon-day, sitting comfortably on a wheel, showing the laws mower at a good rate of speed, wit of deep satisfaction on bit dark brown visage.

Mr. Depew says that bleyeling is a serious matter with him, "Why," he said, "in Newport the people have come to regard the birvele as an indispensable part of their lives. They jump on a wheel just to ride across the street. They never think of walking a block with the bicycle at hand.

One would think that cycling would be beyond those who are unfortunate enough not to be able to see. Fut it is not. Dr. Campbell, principal of the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind, in London, has, according to the Cycle evercome all the obstacles and diffulties, and his pupils today enjoy the spor of wheeling just as much as their more for tunate brothers and sister
