Board of Education Takes a Few Just Because it Can.

PEARSE A TARGET FOR MEMBERS' SPLEEN

Majority Sets Out to Show Him that the Control of Schools is Not in the Hands of "Employes."

The Board of Education spent about fifteen minutes in transacting business last night and the remainder of the evening in a tediou equabble over an effort on the part of certain members of the majority to transfer the powers of the majority to transfer the powers of the superintendent of instruction and Harrisburg to Baltimore, Washington relative to the transfer of pupils Philadelphia and New York. The Pt. Wayne to the president of the board. The is the Standard Fare Route, and the Pan-trouble grew out of the effort that was made. Handle is the Lower Fare Route to New at the beginning of the term to mobilize the pupils in the schools in which they belonged and Lower Fares, address Assistant General with a view to readjusting the boundaries to Passenger Agent H, R. Dering, 248 South do away with the extensive transfer system Clark street, Chicago, or apply to agents of which has become an admitted nuisance. The board voted at the last regular meeting to case. for the first six weeks of the term.

There was such a protest from parents when the schools opened, that some of the members tired of the continual pressure, and at the following special meeting the previous action was rescinded and the rule was left as before. Since then some of the members of the boar! have been issuing transfers on their own authority, and Superintendent Pease in a letter of information to principals directed them to refer all such permits to the superintendent's office without action. Van Gilder produced a copy of this letter last night and insisted that it was an insult to the board. He declared with much emphasis that it was a pretty state of affairs when an "employe" of the board took it on himself to over ide the orders of a member. He moved that the president of the board should be multiprized to issue all transfers, but the minurity raised the point that the rules provided that this power should be vested ex-clusively in the superintendent, and as the majority did not have the ten votes necessary to change the rules, the whole matter was delered until the next meeting, after nearly two hours had been occupted by speeches on both sides of the question.

At the request of Gratton, Superintendent Pearse stated his position, which was that the circular of which Van Gilder complained simply informed the principals of the policy which he had previously submitted to the beard, and which had been approved without objection. He stated that he was perfectly willing to abandon the idea of readjusting the boundaries if the board decided that it was madvisable, but that a promiseuous Issuing of transfers would materially disorganize

TAKE ANOTHER CRACK AT HIM. The majority took another turn at the superintendent by directing him to make no assignments of teachers, except from the elected or assigned list. In this case Superintendent Pearse stated that no such assign ments had been made, except in emergency case on the opening days of school, when a suffi clent number of the regularly assigned teach ers had not been available. In several cases other teachers had been secured for a couple of days to a sist the principals of large schools until the classes were organized.

The oath of office of Phil E. Winters, who was elected a member of the board at the previous meeting was received and filed. Patrons of the Castellar school petitioned the board to have the unoccupied frame annex on the site repaired and used for school purposes in preference to sending the surplus of pupils to other schools. The natte, was referred to the committee on boundaries and the superintendent of instruction. The patrons of the West Side school asked to have one of the unused frame buildings moved to the West Side site. They complain that about fifty pupils in the West Side site of the West Side site. and a lot of arguments to support it. Mr. The woman who robbed Michelson has not and a lot of arguments to support it. Mr. nance should not be passed.

The main argument in favor of the ordinance was that by carrying lamps, accidents at night would be prevented. This was emphotically contested by City Comptroller Westberg, who held exactly to the opposite. He maintained that by carrying a lamp, a wheelman was blinded and could not see what was coming, as well as without a lamp. He also asserted that the fact that a wheelman's light could be seen would not wheelman's light could be seen would not the monthly meeting of the Ministerial. wheelman's light could be seen, would not prevent other vehicles from running into him, as accidents rarely occur ed, except with "road hogs." and these would not give an inch of the road to a bicyclist, whether he had a lamp or not. Thus he maintained that a wheelmen with a lamp was in greater dan mission and use its influence in securing ger at the hands of these "road hogs" than an abolishment of the slot machines that are without, as in the former case he was partially blinded by the glare. The city comptroller insisted that if any lamp ordinance union endorsed the resolution adopted by tally blinded by the glare. The city comptroller insisted that if any lamp ordinance

President Bingham sold that according to recent court decisions, bicycles were classed with buggles as vehicles, and, therefore, he thought that the ordinance would be considered class legislation, and consequently il-LOBECK TO THE RESCUE.

Dave O'Brien insisted that there was not a lamp on the market at a price within the reach of the average wheelman. Most of the lamps would be blown out in a strong wind or else were continually out of repair. Mr. Parish insisted that there were a dozen lamps on the market at moderate cost which would not go out. The point was clinched by Councilman Lobeck, who said that a bicycle dealer of the city had teld him that he was opposed to the ordinance, although it would mean money in his pockets if it were passed, because there was not a good lamp on the market. Several of the council. lamp on the market. Several of the council-men wanted to know how it was that if bicycle lamps were such good things the wheelmen did not voluntarily use them. In the course of the arguments it was claimed by each side, respectively, that bicycle ordinances in other cities had and had not the desired result. In view of these conflicting statements the council decided to postpone action on the ordinance until authorities in other cities could be requested to give their experience in this regard. The committee decided to recommend that

J. B. Conte, a druggist on South Sixteenth street, protested against the closing of the Sixteenth street viaduct for repairs while South Sixteenth street is being paved. The committee passed upon a variety of routine matter. Amongst other things it was decided that the election booths be not repaired this year. The expense, estimated at $5,000, is more than the financial condition of the city can stand. 'The resolution that provided for the repairing is therefore to be reported to be placed on file. At the adjournment of the committee meeting the council met in special session to pass on first and second reading the ordinance providing for the repaying of South Sixteenth, from Pierce to Vinton street, with

A committee from the Ministerial union visited the board and requested it to take some action to repeal the ordinance author zing the licensing of nickel-in-the-slot ma chines. The request was made on the group is that the original ordinance provid-ing for the license was introduced at the instance of the board, according to the rec ords of the city council. The matter of the application of Mrs. J J. Galligan for a pension on account of her husband's services as chief of the fire de partment is likely to be reopened again, despite the opinion given the board by Member Gregory that the applicant had no grounds upon which to base her claim. The application had been placed on file, but Mrs. Galligau's attorney insisted that the board should indicate in separate fludings of fact its practical refusal to grant the pension in order that steps might be taken to review the case. This contention was turned over to the city attorney, who last night gave the board an opinion which coincided with that of Commissioner Gregory, but the board intimated that the case would be reopened.

No action, however, was taken last night. The divorced wife of Fireman Edward Leeder called to the attention of the board that in the decree she obtained she was also given $500 alimony. She asked the board to take some action to compel her ex-husband to pay the money. The board requested Leeder to show at the next meeting why he else. We put our whole time and thought and energy into the clothing business alone. When we go into the markets to buy goods we haven't got jewelry or ribbons or hardware or bonnets or anything else but clothing on our minds. We know what to buy and what to avoid. We understand clothing. We are never deceived by the clever imitations with which the markets abound. Even with our extensive knowledge, we find it taxes all the watchfulness and experience at our command to get honest goods -- goods that will give our customers satisfaction-goods that we can guarantee to wear. The rise in prices consequent on the new tariff has given unscrupulous mills and makers a chance to do a large business in inferior fabrics that look well but will not wear and even the best posted buyers have to be on the alert to avoid being deceived. Hence it is necessary for you to be doubly careful. Buy only of a house on whose word you can absolutely depend. Whose knowledge of the clothing business is a safeguard on which you can lean. Bogard was on his way home at the time and had crossed over to Harney street after alighting from a car on West Farnam. At the corner mentioned two masked men stepped up to him in the darkness and one presented a revolver at his head with orders to throw up his hands. Bogard obeyed the command, but in doing so he knocked the revolver out of the would-be highwayman's bands. Then he gave the prettlest exhibit tion of sprinting up Harney street that had ever occurred in those parts. The crooks made no attempt to follow him. They yelled at him to stop, but Bogard was in too much of a hurry at the moment to do so. Bogard did not remain long enough to get good description of the men, but says that they weer both young and of medium size.
