Gentlemen,

I am in receipt of copies of "Ireland in Pictures" published by your firm.

In this splendid work your firm has produced a book which will be welcome to the home of every Irish American.

In the magnificent panoramic views no point of interest in the four provinces of Ireland has been overlooked.

In the charming sketches contributed by the brilliant Editor of the Chicago Citizen your readers will find history most truthful and sparkling wit "racy of the soil".

No library will be complete without your beautiful publication.

Very respectfully,

The Omaha Bee is handling "Ireland in Pictures," the same being over 500 beautiful photographic scenes in Ireland. The pictures are large and cover the principal points of interest in the four provinces. One good feature of the work is that no one section is slighted or favored. These views are placed before the public in portfolio form of sixteen pictures in each portfolio and sold for 10 cents per number and particular attention is called to the pictures. The literary and historical sketches, which are contributed by Hon. John F. Finerty, will speak for themselves and no comment is herein sought to be made or opinion expressed. We wish, however, to state that this publication is one that should be seen by the people of this country regardless of nationality, and will be doubly interesting to all Irish men and women. The cozy cottages, the rural roadways, the winding rivers, the beautiful loughs, the towering mountains, the villages, towns and cities, round towers, abbeys and shrines, churches, cathedrals and cemeteries, and the battle-fields and eviction scenes are all therein truthfully pictured and will be a source of interest to all who are fortunate enough to obtain them. We call attention to the fact that The Omaha Bee is the only medium through which these portfolios can be obtained.

To those who are familiar with the scenes embraced in this splendid series of photographs the views will possess particular interest. The descriptive sketches accompanying the portfolios were prepared by
