TRIAL STILL DRAGS ALONG

Luctgert Case Likely to Be on for Three Weeks Yet.

CROWDS THRONG TO THE COURT ROOM

Accused Says He Could Stand the Strain Indefinitely, but Still Wishes It Was Over-State's Attorney's Announcement.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 .- The seventh week of the trial of Luctgert, the alleged wife murderer, opened today with an undiminished crush of people at the criminal court buildby the throng in its efforts to reach the second floor of the criminal court building upon which Judge Tuthill's court room is located. The police and deputy sheriffs experienced great difficulty in handling the crowd. Only those who possessed tickets were admitted. Less fortunate people tried to squeeze their way in with the lucky ticket-holders. This plan brought several prominent citizens into violent collision any one from a public court room was excitedly disputed. But the officers in charge of the entrances were inexorable and hundreds of men and women slowly filed out of the court house when the court room had been filed to its utmost capacity. Luetgert and his inseparable cigar reached the court room half an hour before the opening hour. The big sausagemaker was clean shaved, neatly attired and apparently in the best of spirits. He greeted his attorneys and friends pleasantly and spining at Dalla Juneaus at Dalla Juneaus and Spining at Dalla Juneaus at Dalla grinned at Police Inspector Schaack, who regarded him coolly

"I can stand this sort of thing a life-time so far as the physical endurance is concerned," said Luetgert, when compli-mented by Attorney Phalen upon his per-sonal appearance. "But I wish it was over with," continued Luetgert, as he sent a cloud of tobacco smoke in the air. "It wears on a man's nervous system expectable. wears on a man's nervous system, especially if the weather is warm-as it has been most of the time during my trial. I feel much better since I recovered sufficiently from the injury to my leg to abandon that crutch. A crutch is an insufferable nulsance to a person who is not used to it." THREE WEEKS MORE.

"The trial will last at least three weeks longer," said States Attorney Deneen today.
"When the defense closes we shall have at least a week of rebuttal evidence. Then the defense will come along with another week of the same kind of evidence. If we get through with the speeches in a week's time we shall be doing well."

Prof. Eckley of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago was recalled today for cross-examination upon several matters in connection with his identification of bones. His testimony was simply a repetition of that of other witnesses along the same line and he was not kept upon the stand long. Prof. Plummer of the Northwestern Medical college, the second witness of the day, gave evidence much to the liking of the defense. After a brief examination the temporal bonintroduced by the state and positively iden-tified by Prof. Dorsey of the Field Colum-bian museum as the right temperal bone of a woman, Dr. Plummer, with emphasis, de-clared the bone was not the clared the bone was not the temporal of a

NOT BONES OF HUMAN BEINGS. "It bears but a very superficial resem-blance to the human temporal," said the wit-ness. "The line here, which has been identified as a facial nerve, is simply a trace which indicates that two bones have been joined or glued together. I notice what appears to me to be vegetable matter. It is of a somewhat greenish that peculiar to vegetable matter—and to no other matter."

The bone which has been identified by the experts of the prosecution as a human femur was handed to Dr. Plummer, and without healtstips he are. hesitation he denied that it was a femur of the human race. "It resembles in a slight degree a human femur," said the witness but the bone is much smaller than the average femur of a human. There are other distinct characteristics of the human femur missing

The battle of the bones waged all day, one set of experts disputing the identifica-tions and theories of another. Leutgert is not likely to go on the witness stand until next week. The big prisoner is still im-patient to tell his story. On this point his enthusiasm never cools.
"In three hours' time I could convince that jury of my innocence," said Luctgert today, "I will give it to them straight and make liars of many people when 1 get on the stand. They can't lie Luetgert to the gal-lows. My story will make everything

One of the incidents of the day was the sawing of a temporal bone by Dr. Pierce and Dr. Riese. The operation was watched by Assistant State's Attorney McEwan for the prosecution and ex-Judge Vincent for the defense. The sawing was done in a waiting room near the court room. The surgeons were slow and the judge, growing impatient, sent a bailiff after them, remarking: fellows have been out there long enough to saw a cord of wood."

COMPLIMENT FOR DORSEY. During the afternoon session Prof. Eckley was recalled a second time and admitted that upon one occasion he did say that Prof. Dorsey, whose evidence he testified against. was one of the best men the state could have procured as an expert.
Prof. William Hall of the Northwestern

Dental college and expert in chemistry gave scientific testimony with reference to the action of potash upon false teeth and the plates to which they are attached. It was his opinion that the potash solution in the vat in which Mrs. Luctgert's body is said to have been disintegrated was not of sufficient destructive power to seriously affect the teeth, but it would undoubtedly either destroy or greatly damage mouth plates.

David Victor, a carpenter, who lives in the vicinity of the Luctgort sausage factory, was called upon to tell whether he had ever observed Mrs. Luetgert in a sad or morose con dition of mind. He said he had not. She She was alw; ys cheerful and happy when he saw grocery department of Luetgert's sausage factory, told of seeing Luctgert around the factory during the forenoon of May 2 as usual. The sausage maker seemed to be in usual frame of mind, according to the Weekly Sessions. When the Woman's club found itself com rlum of the First Congregational church yesterday afternoon, its first sensation was one of relief that the straightened circumstances of the past were over, and that it was no longer necessary for two bodies to occupy the same space at the same time. The fine venand it was remarked that the arrangement of the room, which makes it possible for a speaker in any part of it, to be seen and heard, would be of great advantage in those discussions from the floor, which are so ommon to the club.

Thus it was sought to be shown why Luetgert sent for the water when he had forty-nine bottles of the water in his factory.

After the usual preliminaries, the president, Mrs. W. P. Harford, welcomed the club to its United States senator from 1876 to 1888, died She also spoke a few graceful words of thanks at his home in this city late last night of anaemia. He had been ill for nearly a year. Pressed in her re-election to the executive prominence at last night's meeting of the presentation of the "important business of iving," which she said is the only universal pusiness, and, therefore, a business to which to one can afford to be indifferent. Success ever is at hand and make the best possible

She contrasted the material and spiritual and expressed the other, and she laid over against the ideal of life which would make it a career that ideal which would make it The club, she said, ought to stand for the best material things of the community as well as for its intellectual advancement. Ehe spoke forcibly of the opportunities which would be open to the club through this year of the exposition, "when we may come in touch with the best in all departments of life," and she advised that it make sure of these opportunities, even if it relinquish some of the work it has been oing or may do in the future.

Mrs. Harford finished her most excellent address with a plea for abundant hospitality during the year to come and urged that while the club has company, it might be well to relegate to the background the riendly criticism which is so unnecessary n ordinary times to bring to perfection. The other address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Emma Ven Vechten of Cedar Rapids, the president of the Iowa Federation of Woman's Clubs. It was a plea for an unseifish culture, emphasizing the maxim that as we give out so we receive. The speaker declared the old belief that women cannot work together to be fallacious. She believes them to have an almost infinite capacity for systematic co-operative work. They do not organize clubs because they have nothing else to do nor because they wish to follow a fad, nor because they crave notoriety. They believe that it is good for one woman to keep up her intellectual in-terests, a thing which must usually be done outside the realm of every-day duties. If that be good for one woman it is good for two, and it is good for a hundred. Hence

The program was embellished by some very attractive musical numbers—a ballad by Reinecke played by Miss Clara Hawley, and a vocal solo, "Once," sung by Mrs. G. W. Johnston. The new piano, beautiful in the old, room, is doubly so in the new, and the difference in its tone quality as it has come nto more favorable acoustic conditions, was matter of much comment.

Miss Howell of the Emerson school of ratory, Boston, gave an entertaining recitation portraying an incident in penitentiary life, and responded to her encore Whitcomb Riley's "That Old Sweetheart of Mine.

The chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. F. B. Cole, read the names of thirty-two women proposed for admission to the club, and the treasurer, Mrs. C. S. Rose water, reported nine who have qualified since the last meeting. She also stated that the membership roll contains 500 names, the largest number ever registered at the beginning of any year, The announcements are as follows: The

REDUCE THEIR STIPEND.

The pay of the three captains on the force Sigwart, Haze and Mostyn, was reduced from $100 to $99 a month. The action was aken as a result of a communication from Mayor Moores, in which he stated that he had vetoed Sigwart's salary of $100 for September in the appropriation sheet because the charter provided that no officer on the department beneath the rank of chief or assistant chief should receive more than $90. The veto was supported by an opinion from City Attorney Connell, who stated that, according to the charter, there could be but ne assistant chief and none below that rank ould receive more than $90 a month. In he face of the opinion the board could not make all the captains assistant chiefs and therefore reduced the pay of all $10 a month. The board paid no attention to the protests of eleven out of the sixteen police-men dropped at the last meeting and simply placed them on file. The protests were in the form of notifications that the resolution purporting to drop the officers without a hearing was void; that, therefore, the po-licemen had the right to hold their jobs and recive the emoluments thereof, and that they were consequently holding themselves in readiness all the time to receive orders The officers filing the protests were Lewis, Godola, M. Musicians Get to Work. The second meeting of the Derthrick Musical-Literary club was held last evening at the residence of the president, Mrs. Edward P. Peck, and about seventy members were present. One feature of the club's method of music study is the playing of a game in which success depends very largely upon a knowledge of musical history and criticism. This game was studied and played last evening under the direction of Mr. It is rather complicated, but was Eaton. found both interesting and instructive.

The president appointed two members of the permanent program committee, namely Clara S. Catton and Mr. Martin Cahn and two members of the executive commit-tee, namely: Mr. Clement Chase and Mrs. J. W. Thomas. Each committee will have one more member, who will be appointed later.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Peck's residence tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. At that time the program committee will present a plan of the season's work Arrested for Defneing Bill Boards.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of I Kline last night on the charge of defacing bill boards. The arrest is the outgrowth of an old trouble between the Creighton theater stage hands and their employers. The disagreement began when two of the employes the protest of the minority. Rearrangement of School Territory in the City Referred to a Committee.

BOARD OF EDUCATION BUYS MORE LAND

Another Batch of Employes is Discharged and it is Asserted that Politics is Behind the Action.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was chiefly remarkable for a profusion of oratory that was aimed at nothing in particular and hit the mark in most cases. The subjects of debate were mainly frivolous but the members were apparently training for the pending political campaign and the session was suggestive of the debating soclety of a country school. One action of some importance was taken in instructing the committees on boundaries and teachers and examinations and the superintendent to take up the question of rearranging the boundaries of the various districts. The report of Superintendent Pearse showed that the total membership of the schools at the end of the first school month was 15,042, an increase of 1,076 as compared with that of a year ago. The enrollment in the high school was 1,246, an increase of 165.

At the suggestion of Superintendent Pearse the High school committee was authorized to assign a Latin teacher to the High school on account of the absence of two teachers who had previously attended to these classes The annual report of ex-President Edwards was read and placed on file. Its principa feature was an emphatic recommendation of the idea of building a new high school.

Applications for positions in the High school were received from Ethel Evans. Omaha; Frances Baker, London, O.; A. B. Crandall, Omaha, and Susan M. Porter, Madson. Wis. Mrs. Thomas L. Kimball and Mrs. Frances M. Ford appeared before the board to ask that the usual rule be suspended in order to allow subscriptions to be solicited in the schools toward the fund for the boys and girls' building at the exposition. The details of the plan were presented and the importance of immediate action emphasized. The request was unanimously granted.

Ella Meredith Smith was granted a four months' leave of absence to attend the Chi-cago Kindergarten college.

The resignation of Heten Lloyd as teacher was accepted. A petition from parents for a kindergarten at the Vinton school was referred to the committee on boundaries.

A report from the same committee recom-mending the dismissal of the force employed some time to boycott the Creighton theater, by the superintendent of buildings with the ified, was the subject of another wordy controversy. Johnson delared that this was a caucus scheme in which politics was the only consideration. Anderson insisted that the committee was assuming a power that belonged exclusively to the superintendent of buildings, and Jordan called attention to the fact that some of the most competent men in the employ of the board were being dis-charged in favor of political favorites. The majority had the votes, however, and the report was adopted. Ayes—Bandhauer, Den-nis, Hess, Irey, Sears, Van Gilder, Welshans, Winter, President Lunt-9.
