Omaha Men Vary Widely in Their Figures, but None Get Inside the $50,000 Approprintion.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(Special Telegram.)-Supervising Architect Taylor opened bids today for the erection and complete construction of the government building at Omaha next year. Fifteen bidders signified their desire to do the work, the bids ranging from $51, 250 to $75,754. Omaha bidders were largely in the majority, Peter Soudenberg bidding $51,250; C. W. Partridge, $58,797; E. C. Wakefield, $59,515; Henry Hamann, $60,432; A. W. Pholps & Son, $63,325; Walter Peterson, $63.400; P. H. Mahaney, $64,207; Goldie Brothers, $64,000; Bassett & Percival, $68,750; Counsman & Givin, $74,456; Hamilton Brothers. $75,574. Other bids came from Meridian, Miss., Nushville, Tenn., and Chicago. Supervising Architect Taylor, in speaking of the bids ould be was greatly astonished at the large amounts asked for construction of the building, in view of the fact that congress has appropriated but $50,000 for the building. It was the hope of the officials in the supervising architect's office that the bid for construction of the building would be at a figure which would permit the con-struction of the life saving service building within the amount appropriated by congress. But if the contractors cannot see their way clear to construct the building on the plans as laid down, either the life saving service must go by the beard or else an additional for the life saving service. Architect Taylor intimated that there were a number of alternative propositions included in the specifioutlons which would have to be applied to bids scaling them down to meet the ap-propriations. One bid might come within the limit set by congress. It will be necessary, however, to recast the bids, and this vill be done at once in order that new ssary. Soudenberg agrees to complete the suilding in five and a half months from the ime of securing the centract. This was bout the length of time all the centractors wanted in which to erect the structure. There were five bids for pluster casts, all by Washington contractors. Fred E. Lemier, being the lowest, $2.250. If this amount is added to Soudenberg's bid which is $1.250. over the government appropriation, it will be seen that both bids are $3,500 above

Against Illinois Central. CHICAGO, Oct. 29.-Corporation Counsel

Thronton today rendered an opinion holding that the Illinois Central railroad has no right to the submerged land it is filling in at the foot of Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets, covering an area of about sever acres. He holds that since the submerger lands are held in trust by the state for the people, it has no authority to permit them to be filled in except for the benefit of the people. The case will probably be
