If a thing must be done, 'twere best done well, is a maxim accepted by the wisest men, and should at least receive consideration from women whose effort is to please those same wise creatures. So, if a woman will make-up, why will she not take the time and trouble to do it well? Inquires the American Queen. She intends to enhance her beauty, but in ninety-nine cases out the 100 she makes a fright of herself, and a laughable fright at that.

The trouble in the majority of cases is the wrong paints and powders, and too much of them. If your "make-up" is for the daylight, it should be put on in the broad glare of day. Take your handglass and go to the brighest window in the room. Begin by bathing the face with soap and water York of s. s. Campania with British mails for Australia.
