

GOSSIP OF THE CROQUON

Young Men of Wesleyan Give Promise of Being Comers.

THEY ADD NEW FEATURES TO THE GAME

Furnish Conclusive Evidence that Team Work is as Essential in Defense as in Offensive Play.

During the past week local enthusiasts of the modern intercollegiate game of football had a few opportunities to see some games, which though one-sided had some interesting features attached to them.

The eleven representing Wesleyan university at Lincoln, Neb., and Tabor college, Tabor, Ia., here on Monday demonstrated in a trial broad commonwealth, there is another strong football team besides that of the State university.

There is going to be a large crowd of football cranks from this city to Lincoln to see the game and all indications are that they will be repaid.

COACH A NECESSITY. The Tabor team did not show up strong and the fact that it had never enjoyed the services of a football coach could be gleaned from the play.

During the last week several of the High school alumni have returned to give the High school team the benefit of their coaching.

The following are excerpts from the best football criticisms that have been written this week:

Burr W. Mcintosh—Pennsylvania has the best team in the country today. Before the season ends I confidently expect to see Princeton take into the proud position, but the recent slump she has been going through allowed Pennsylvania to pass her.

Quakers Are Great Players. In the east the onward march of stately Pennsylvania players and the dull drop of Yale are the only exciting topics of conversation on the football field.

TOLD OF THE LOCAL CRACK SHOTS. Gossip with the Devotees of the Dog and Gun. Arrangements have been perfected for quite a day's sport for the local crack shots on Thanksgiving day.

The recent shooting tournament held on the Omaha Gun club grounds proved to be a successful one. This tournament demonstrated that if the professional hunter was the case across the river, the amateur will be there in goodly numbers and it is a crowd that makes a successful tournament.

Fred Blake, Mr. Towle, Colonel Dickey, Mr. Kenyon and several others have returned from their annual duck hunt in the proper description of the Harvard team today to say that it lacks maturity.

team work among the backs themselves. Harvard has not so many men who are really stars in their positions; and the eleven has not yet developed that unity of play which can take the place of individual ability in an emergency.

YALE STILL IN BAD CONDITION. Prediction that the Blacky boys of the Yale football team will win. Before many days something will drop at Yale.

There is no use in further disguising the fact that Yale is not in the best of the year, nor did she last season. Walter Camp, until two years ago Yale's head coach and athletic adviser, hit the nail right on the head when he wrote in speaking of the Brown-Yale game that "it was but one more example of modern foot ball against the simple straight running game."
