WEDDINGS, BALLS AND RECEPTIONS

Formation of a Cotilion Club that Bids Fair to Fill the Place Left Vacant by the "Monday Night."

If it is true that society in Omaha hee been somewhat dull during the last month it is certainly a fact that such a quietude seison that will bring joy to the numerous devotees of society and incidentally gladden the hearts of the florists and the liverymen.

brilliant wedding, attended by a series of concomitant events, which, though of more modest proportions, were no less enjoyable; it has seen several private dancing nue, this city. parties of elaborate nature, though, including a most limited number of guests, and, most of all, it has been distinguished by the formal debut of a new dancing club of the upper set that promises which to eclipse in grandeur and exclusiveness any R I. dancing organization that Omeha has enter-tained during the last half dozen years. The Clarke-Hartman welding and the lunch-cons, dinners and dances apropos thereof, the dancing parties at the elegant residences of Miss Yates and Miss Kountze, and the first dance of the recently formed Cotillion club, which also met at the home of Miss Kountze, are all deserving of especial mention in a review of the past week's social happenings, and will undoubtedly be followed by the many similar events which promise to make a gay season.

The formation of a cotillion club is especially welcome to those who are fond of the tripping pleasure, and will fill a want that society leaders have keenly felt during the earlier months of the present season. The trio of young women who have unselfishly given themselves up to the establishment of the new club deserve quite all the credit they will receive for their efforts. The appear ance of this club among the young folk probably settles the question of a dancing club for the young married couples in the affirmative. It also disposes of the future of the late lamented Monday Night club b though sometimes abused institution, will have no future. It does not dispose of the funds in the exchequer of the erstwhile dancing club of the local society leaders, and as those funds are sufficient for at least one dance, it is probable that a farewell dance will be given, at which the requiem of the well nigh forgotten dancing club of last year will be chanted and its burnst made complete. Thus will Omana society dance out the old, for it has already danced in the new.

Interest in the contest for the honorable position of Queen Polaris has been noticeably increased during the list week. The favorite voted for that it will soon require five figures to record their votes. The content is a close one, and whoever is the final choice is reasonably sure of being closely pressed-in the matter of votes. In connection with the race now in progress for the honor of presiding over the carnival of winter sports interesting stories are going the

One of these is of a comely young colored woman, who called at a prominent attorney's office during the week and asked permission to cut the carnival coupons from his she could be collecting votes and asked her. She replied that she was gathering together the votes she could get shold for Miss —, well she men-ed the name of one of the most described popular girls in Omaha's upper set. The barrister was somewhat surprised that the young woman whom he so highly entermed should send out a colored girl to collect votes for her, but his consternation was greater when the dark-complexioned caller went on to say: "Yes, that's my name. I notice that ever so many of my friends are voting for me for queen, and I think if I collect all the votes I can and my friends continue to do the same. I shall be

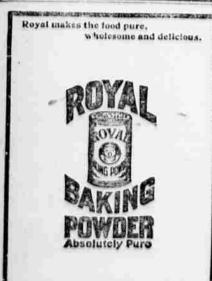

If a certain prominent society girl should be finally elected queen, there may be a con-test for the place of honor.

There is a young man in Omaha who meant well and feels that he has been done a gross injustice. It all happened at a rehearsal for a wedding of parties well up in the social scale. The organist failed to appear at the appointed hour, and the members of the Miss Cleveland of Denver, Miss Botsford wedding party were kept waiting a long time Mrs. Jerrems of Chicago and Miss Short of in the church. As all were most congenial Cleveland. time did not hang heavy on their hands. But the bride prospective was a bit nervous and wanted the rehearsal over with. Finally a young man who was leafing around to enjoy the sport was appealed to. He admitted that the organist's stool. After the rehearsal had been satisfactorily excelleded, the bride's father, wishing to do the proper thing, slipped a few dollars in the palm of the young men. The latter was so surprised that young man. The latter was so supply that he it took him several minutes to say that he did not want any money, but had rendered the service because of his interest in the coming ceremony. Then he grabbed his hat, and running out to the sidewalk relationship waiting. "Say on marked to his chum-in-waiting: "Say, on the square, do I look so much like those long-haired musicians that anyone has a right to take me for a church organist?"

Clarke-Bartman. The social event of the week, around which more smaller functions were grouped than have been occasioned by any happening for some time, was the wedding of Miss Laura Pearl Hartman, the only daughter of Mc. and Mrs. Christian Hartman, to Mr. William Hill Clarke, at All Saints' Protes-tant Episcopal church on Wednesday even-ing. The popularity of the bride and groom brought out an unusually large attendance and the pretty church was all too small to accommodate those desirgus of witnessing the ceremony. No church decorations this season have been more beautiful than those seen on this occasion. The chancel was tastefully ornamented with large palms, with pretty wreaths of smilax intertwined with white and golden chrysanthemums all about.

GIBSON, MO., Feb. 18th. About one year ago, after my wife's long siege of sickness, she commenced the Wine of Cardui treatment, and it built her up, until now we have got the "purtiest" girl baby you ever saw. She is in excellent health, and we remember you in our prayers as our best friends. J. W. CALDWELL

BLOOMSDALE, MO., May 1st. My wife suffered with cramps in her stomach for four years. Her menses had stopped on her. One bottle of McElree's Wine of Cardui and some Black-Draught tea started them. She has not borne a child for seven years, but we are at present looking for one every day. WILLIAM BOASIN.

Women ought to seek relief from female troubles for their children's sake. Mothers who suffer from leucorrhea, falling of the womb or painful or irregular menstruation can't give their children proper attention. And other children they may bear will show the effect of those troubles. Wine of Cardui puts woman in condition to perform all the duties of wifehood and motherhood. It relieves the distress common to pregnancy, reduces the pain and danger of childbirth and assists to a prompt recovery after that ordeal. By acting directly upon the delicate menstrual organs Wine of Cardui stops all those drains, weaknesses and irregularities that make life a burden for so many women.
