DOMINION PROPOSES TO TAKE A PART

Deputy Minister of the Interior Writes to Secure Permission to Erect a Building to Contain the Exhibit.

There is every probability that the Canadian government will be represented at the Transmississippi Exposition by a government exhibit in a building to be erected by the Canadian authorities for that purpose.

A letter received by the Department of Exhibits from Hon. James A. Smart, deputy minister of the interior for Canada, makes inquiry regarding the conditions under which the Dominion government could make an exhibit.

He asks whether all the exhibits would be placed together in one of the large exhibit buildings or be distributed among the several buildings according to classification. If the latter is the rule, he asks whether the government would be allowed to put up its own building and install all its exhibits therein.

TEXAS TRIP IS A POPULAR ONE. Nebraskaans Volunteer to Go Beyond the Alleged Xaver.

The trip to Texas to establish a feeling of reciprocity among the Texans in connection with the exposition is assuming very extensive proportions and the indications now are that there will be some lively hustling to secure places in the party.

FIREMAN URBAN ON THE CARPET.

Will be Investigated for Getting into a Row.

Two firemen at No. 3 engine house had an exchange of civilities last Monday and the fire and police commissioners will be called upon to refer the matter at their next meeting.

The difficulty arose between Captain A. C. Taylor and Lieutenant Urban on the question of suitable fuel for heating purposes. The stove at the engine house is a small furnace and consumes about twelve tons of coal during the winter.

Urban is said to have remarked that he was tired of sitting about half chilled and, in spite of objections, proceeded to throw in a generous amount of coal.

The matter was reported to the chief, who went to the engine house and inquired of Urban how he had come to break into the engine house.

Urban is said to have lost his self-control and to have attacked Captain Taylor, upon whom he had fastened his resentment. In this, however, he proved himself to be mistaken.

The chief considers Urban's complaint regarding the fuel founded on slight grounds. You can't afford to risk your life by allowing gas to develop into pneumonia or consumption.

Winter Caps....

You probably remember last winter when Messrs. Blohard and Shouter suddenly came to the conclusion that they had too many caps on hand. You remember that in their desperation at finding themselves so very much overstocked all of a sudden they went to work and cut the price of every winter cap in the house from sixty to a hundred per cent. You remember how your wife rushed down town Monday morning and forgot to finish her breakfast in her anxiety to buy you one of the dollar and a quarter caps that were marked down to 47 cents. You remember how a few days later you came into The Nebraska to look at an overcoat and one of the first things that struck your eye was a lot of caps just exactly like the one your wife bought at the bargain sale. You remember how surprised you were to find that they weren't marked $1.25 or even a dollar or even half a dollar—the price was 35 cents. You remember how you asked the salesman when were they marked down and you remember how smart you thought he was when he told you they were marked down the day they came in. What about it, you say? Oh, nothing much. Only this—it's the same way this year. We are selling winter caps at a profit for less money than some stores are giving them away at a loss. We always have. We always will.
