SOCIETY TAKES ON NEW LIFE

Gay Whirl.

ANOTHER FAIR YOUNG BUD BROUGHT OUT

Closing Days of November Bring Ensayment to Those Who Mingle in the Round of Social Pleasure.

During the last seven days Omaha society has moved on apace, and the closing days of November sees the gay whirl of local swelldom far advanced in its fascinating progress. The event that is fairly entitled to the premier position in the society asnals of the week, both on account of its brilliancy and because of the high position of the principal character concerned, was the formal debut of Miss Anna Shiverick into Omaha society. Those who have danced attendance before the shrine of Dame Society have waited with joyful anticipation this event, and have now had genuine pleasure in well-coming this fair young bud to their midst. Without any intentional irreverence to the goodess who is supposed to preside over the goodes. goddess who is supposed to preside over the sculiar destinies of local society it may be mid that she has certainly played a strong hand thus far this season and surely has held up to her followers a pair of bright new

The return of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gulou from their boneymoon has been appropriately followed by a number of dinner parties, Other dinner parties in honor of visitors among the upper families have also taken place with a little more than usual frequency. The week of Thanksgiving has been the means of bringing a number of members of Omaha families who spend their time beyond the city's walls around the family board. The foot bail games unfortunately fell on a disagreeable afternoon, but were attended by a goodly number of Omaha society folk armed with flags, chrsanthemums and mega-phones. Cupid is reported to have worked overtime during the last seven days, and there are many different kinds of rumors of engagements that are soon to be announced flitting hither and thither. While there have not been many evidences of the little fellow's handlwork shown here during the week there have been a few, and in the early part of the week he took a short dash down to a southern city and captured a charming young oman for an Omaha man.

The coming week presages a brilliant time for those who delight to mingle with so-clety's devotees. The most auspicious event scheduled for the week is the second meeting of the recently formed Cotillon club, which will assemble on Thursday evening at the spacious home of Miss Woolworth. Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Morse are to give a swell dancing party for a visiting friend of their daughter and enough luncheous, teas and dinner par-ties are on the tapis to keep the florists busy arranging table and other decorations. The debut of the third Omaha bud is announced for the following week, when Mr. and Mrs. Enelld Martin will entertain in honor of the formal presentation of their daughter to so

The first fall of snow has brought along thoughts of outdoor pleasures for the winter months. It has grown quite too cold during the last few days for the Riding club to enjoy fits customary rides, but even the chilling blasts that swept across the Happy Hollow links yesterday could not prevent the fair devotees of golf from playing once This fact merely goes to show what a firm hold the royal game has taken on its followers in this city, and demonstrates that there is something of the true love for amateur sport among those who are more often seen in the mazes of the dance or pouring tea at an afternoon function. The fall in the temperature yesterday made sufficient ice on the exposition grounds to afford splendid skating and quite a number of young folks took advantage of the opportunity to glide across the smooth surface for the first time this year. If today is as fair as was yesterday it is probable that the exposition grounds will be more numerously visited than on any previous day this year.

The ice carnival is coming along and the attractions of toboggan riding, skating, curling and other winter sports will undoubtedly draw many more visitors to the grounds that will become famous next year. The voting contest for the honor of queen of the carnival has progressed with much lively competition and it is a noteworthy fact that several hundred votes have come in from distant points for the society young woman enjoys a comfortable lead in the race. While the contest is not over, it is conceded that the lead Miss Dickinson has will be difficult to overcome. With this cosition settled, the only remaining question to be settled is the personnel of the queen's suite. The young women of the court will be the first twenty-one in the list on the last day of the contest. In order that the queen may have a representative assemblage at her beck and call there is noticeable a spirited effort to boom certain young women with the idea of placing them among the first twentyone of the elected.

Clark-Hont.

A wedding in which there was considerable of local interest was that of Miss Jeannette January Hunt, daughter of Mrs. Thomas W. Hunt of St. Louis, to Mr. Thomas Stevens Clark of this city, at the Holy Communion Protestant Episcopal church, St. Louis, on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The church decorated, white chrysanthemums gracefully arranged about the chancel prevailing in the floral decorations. The wedding was of the strict English form and was performed by Rev. Robert

The bride was gowned in heavy white satin duchess, made with puffings of tulle and drapery of duchess lace across the bodice. She carried a bouquet of lilles of the valley and bride's roses. She was attended by Miss Julia Lloyd of St. Louis as maid of honor. Miss Lloyd wore white organdic over pink silk and carried pink roses. Miss Elizabeth Garth of St. Louis was the bridesmaid and away by her brother, Mr. Dunbar Hunt of St. Louis. The groom was supported by Mr. Charles S. Young of Omaha as best man and Mr. Stockton Heth of Omaha as groomsman. The ushers were: Messra. Charles C. Rosewater of Omaha, Allan Pendleton, George Andrews and Leroy Valliant of St. Louis, After the commony Mr. and Mrs. Clark were tendered an elaborate reception at the home of the bride's mother. They later left for a trip to Washington and other southern cities and will be at home to their friends after December 10 at 2020 Webster street, this city. The bide is a native of Mississippi and is a representative of one of the first families of the south. last evening at the First Congregational church under the auspices of the Derthick ciub. It consisted of a piano recital by William H. Sherwood. Much interest and expectation had been aroused concerning Mr. Sherwood's appearance here and a large and representative audience was present to greet him. Many of the leading musicians and planists were on hand to listen, learn, enjoy or criticize as the panorama of compositions was unfolded. The applause was cordial, genuine and enthusiastic, the attention all that could be de sired. At times the house was so quiet and the silence so profound that it was almost oppressive. Such attention is a higher compliment than applause.

A feature of the performance was the brief explanations which Mr. Sherwood gave of the umbers he was about to play. They made plain his point of view in the interpretation and opened the door to the listener to an understanding of the music to follow.

The first number on the program was Mendelssohn's "Variations Sericuses," a not overly interesting composition, full of intricacies and difficulties that hardly repay on for mastering them.

In the Bach "Bourree" the themes were given out with crystalline purity and the ounterpoint draped about them as if to make their beauty all the more tempting by a par tial concealment. The Weber-Liszt "Polonaise Brilliante" was originally intended for performance with orchestra. At 4 o'clock, four hours be-fore the recital began, Mr. Sherwood sat down to the plane to arrange it in his mind as a piano solo, and to weave into one com-plete whole the orchestral and solo parts This he did without seeing a note of music and played it with a confidence and accuracy astonishing to those who realized the herculean task attempted. Mr. Sherwood is justly ranked, not only as great planist, but as a great musician. In he "Polonaise Brilliante" he demonstrated the triumph of the musician who can cause his instrument to scatter sparkling jewels over the tenderest love-song, melting late one the brilliancy of youthful joy and the mystery of budding affection. In the "Mazurka" and "Berceuse," by Chopin, delicacy of touch, wonderful precision in proportion ing melodies to their accompaniment, and a gentle rythmic abandon, were characteristic Two of Mr. Sherwood's own compositions-a "Gipsy Dance" and "Coy Maidem" proved to be interesting tone pictures.

In response to a prediction in last Sunday's Bee, Mr. Sherwood added to his program the Liszt transcription of "Isolden's Liebes Tod" from Triston and Isolda, by Wagner. There are a few planists who can infuse enough warmth of tone-color into their playing to make them able to give anything like a complete interpretation of the glorious effect of the orchestra in selections from the Wagner music dramas. Mr Sherwood is one of these, and his rendering of the Tristan number was a revelation of what a planist can do.

The recital ended with a herole rendering of the Schubert-Tansig "Military March." Mr. Sherwood has often proven himself a great planist. He is an American by birth and is one of the foremost in upholding Americanism in muelc. He was an arden champion of Omaha's cause in New York last June and is greatly interested in the exposition to be held here next summer. His reception last evening was such as would inspire an artist to do his best. Mr. Sherwood's appreciation of it was demon-strated when he consented to add the "Tremolo" by Gottschalk as an encore to his program of fifteen numbers. He has left an impression which will not be readily
