Although he was in the custody of a deputy United States marshal, his movements were not seriously interfered with. He was kept in the federal building during the previous night. Yesterday morning he was permitted to go to his home and spend several hours with his family. The same permission was again granted him during the afternoon, when he dined at home in company with a number of friends.

The work of securing the bond will be resumed this morning. Enough responsible bondsmen have already signed the bond to make it strong enough to be acceptable to Commissioner Wright, but the desire to get a large number of signers to make the bond doubly strong and relieve the individual members of any large amount of financial responsibility.

The bondsmen who are responsible to the government for the amount of the shortage have arranged to pay it at once. The account will not be liquidated, however, for several weeks. A government customs inspector will have to check up every package of goods consigned to importers in this city, and this will necessitate a good deal of work. Inspector Crowley thinks this further reduce the amount of the deficiency.

He Came from Missouri. Emil Slaine fell an easy victim to a couple of confidence men yesterday afternoon, and they also won him the legend about being compelled to pay advance express charges on some goods. Slaine's home is in St. Joseph. He was coming from one of the depots on South Main street when he was met by a couple of men who stopped him and asked him in the most cold-blooded manner if he had $5. He informed them that he had $5, and they asked him to give them the $5, and he refused to hold a big check as security until the express charges could be paid. He readily gave up his $5, and they took the $5, and he was taken to the police station and held in a cell. A policeman found him hanging around the station and asked him in a cold, matter-of-fact way if he had $5. He said he had $5, and he was taken to the police station and held in a cell. LEAD FORGERY CASES IN COURT. Indications that the Property Owners Will Lose by the Frauds. ALGONA, Ia., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—In the district court here last week a number of the lead forgery cases were disposed of. Judge Thomas, who presided, ruled in favor of L. Russ, the plaintiff in cases involving about $20,000 of forged lead. The verdict would indicate that the persons against whom the forgeries were made would lose. PREPARE FOR THE PYTHIANS

Preliminary Work of the Grand Lodge Meeting Under Way.

LOCAL LODGES HAVE MUCH TO PROVIDE Session Promises to Be One of the Most Extensive in the History of the Order in Iowa.

Yesterday was rather a busy day for the members of the local societies of the Knights of Pythias. The grand lodge of the state meets here next August, and yesterday Grand Chancellor C. C. Dowell and Grand Keeper of Records and Seal H. D. Walker reached the city for the purpose of making some inquiries into the character and quantity of the hospitality that will be extended to the members of the order when they meet here. The grand lodge reaches the city on Saturday night, and after meeting a number of members of Concordia and St. Albans lodges decided it best to call a meeting of the local committee yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the matter. The committee is composed of the active members of the lodges and the Uniform Rank. There was a full attendance and the grand officers were given ample opportunity to make their views known. They were simply able to take care of the multitude expected to be here next summer. It is estimated that the grand lodge meeting will bring to Iowa 2,000 people. There will be over 500 past chancellors for the grand lodge meeting. The order is very strong in Iowa, and the grand lodge meetings have always called out a large attendance, and it is believed that with the added attractions of the Trans-america Exposition, nearly double the usual number will come. This prospect of the grand lodge meeting will be several thousand. The session will last almost a week, four days being set aside from the active business of the session and a day or two for visiting and social intercourse. The grand officers, realizing the unusual importance of the meeting, were anxious to know the preparations that were being made in respect to the proper handling of the multitude. The assurances they received at the meeting yesterday were amply satisfactory.

Chief of Police returned yesterday from a fortnight's visit in Arkansas. He was looking after some property interests there. Captain Aulry of hose company No. 2 was hurt by a fire which occurred in a shed to his rear while running to a fire, accompanied the chief and returned one day ahead of him.

SAW IOWA IN TWENTY-EIGHT

Passed Where Burlington Now Stands Before It Was a Town. SAW BOTH BLACKHAWK AND KIOKUK

Recalls Early Impressions of a Trip Up the Mississippi River—Indian Battles—Chicago Property for Sale Cheap.

There is in the city of Burlington a man who once journeyed up the Mississippi and passed the point without seeing Burlington or any suggestion of it, says the Hawkeye of that city. This was not because his eyesight was poor or that he hadn't any opportunity to see all there was to be seen, but because there wasn't anything to be seen.

Visiting this city at the home of his nephew, Samuel B. Gilbert, is one of the first visitors to Burlington now living. Oliver Gilbert of Louisville, Ky., is 77 years of age, and the oldest of eight children, three of his brothers, now dead, being for many years in the lumber business in this city. In 1828 Oliver Gilbert, then a boy nearly 8 years of age, accompanied by his parents from the little town of Louisville, passed down the Ohio to the Mississippi and there embarked on the steamer Lady Washington to make a tour of western Iowa cities during the holidays.
