County Employes Who Feel Easy About the Near Future.

NEW BOARD WILL MAKE FEW CHANGES

Cancuses of the Members Practically Result in a Determination to Keep All Appointees in Their Places.

The reorganization of the Board of County Commissioners is not going to change the pofitical complexion of that body, for the reason that one republican will step out and another will step in, A. C. Harte succeeding E. M. Stenberg. Owing to the fact that the politics of the board will not change, but few of the old appointees are expected to be succeeded by new men.

During the last day or two the republican members of the board have held several secsions and it is given out that when A. C. Harte is inducted into office next week most, if not all, of the appointees of the present board will be retained. It is poscible that one janitor may go, but the chances for his being dropped are not so strong as they were a week ago. At that time the name N. B. Was lington was on the list of those no would have to look for other employment, but since that time considerable pres-sure has been brought to bear and it is quite likely that Mr. Washington will stay. Judge Baxter took the initiative and wrote a let ter to the commissioners, asking that Mr. Washington be retained. This letter was presented to the other county officials and nearly all of them signed. This letter will be presented to the commissioners. It sets out that Washington has been one of the best junitors ever in the employ of the county and that his removal at this time would not only be a serious detriment, but would be a failure o recognize the loyalty of the colored voters four of the five commissioners being republicans, it is contended that the endorsement will carry considerable weight.

County Auditor Tate feels secure in his place, and while he has no assurances his friends say that he will be reappointed. They inpist that he has attended strictly to busi ness and has never astagonized any of the ambitions of the leaders of the party and that there is every reason why he should Mel Hoerner, clerk to the board, is one of the officials who can read a clear title to another term. W. S. Ackwith stands the best chance for appointment as county agent and if the republicans do not change their minds, he will secure the plum. There are a couple of other candidates for the position, but as the pins are put up at this time they are not in it for an instant. Askwith contends that during his incumbency he has saved the public many thousands of dollars weeding out unworthy pensioners upon Douglas county, and also by compelling con-tractors to furnish supplies that have met the conditions of the contracts under which

George Wright, superintendent at the county hospital, feels that he is entitled to another term and the majority of the county commissioners feel that way, too. They say that Wright's administration has been a clean one, free from scandal, and that he has run the institution in a most economical manner in addition to taking excellent care wards of the county. If Wright is reappointed, his wife will again secure th pointment of matron of the place, or at ast that is said to be the plan as formulated at this time. The other places at the county hospital have not been subjected to consideration but they will be taken up and passed upon some time during the next few days. There is an engineer, a couple of firemen, a wutchman, an interne, several nurses, attached to the positions are not large, there to not a very lively scramble for the places The reorganization of the board is not bothering the commissioners to any great extent. They concede that as four of the five members are republicans, the lone democrat carnot receive very much, uples it is handed over to him as a present. How ever, County Commissioner Hoctor is quite likely to have one good committee—probably mance—and will also have a place on several of the others. The chairmanship of the board is settled and it will go to W. I. Kierstead, the senior member. While this may not have agreed upon, there is an unwritten rule o the board, one that is as old as the board street, that the oldest member of the political party in power shall be named as chairman in the event of a reorganization. Upon his election, he names the committees for the year, who serve until a successor i

A Comparison. New remedies put forth with exaggerated claims are continually coming up; some flourish awhile as fashionable novelties, but nearly all are forgotten before the end of the third year. On the other hand, Chamber-lain's cough remedy has continually grower in favor and popularity during the past wenty-five years. Those who once use if are so much pleased with the result that they nearly always insist on having it when again in need of such a medicine. There is nothing so good for a bad cold.

The management was well pleased with the large attendance of the little ones at the lagoon yesterday. The "codles" of fun the children go: out of the ice and toboggamp was perfectly satisfactory for the extra trouble and worry in looking after them and to see that none were injured—the ice was in beautiful shape at 9 a. m., at 3 p. m. it was different, but the fun was there and the big ones and little tots minded it not; they rolled, frisked, and chased each other, and when tired went to the warming room to catch their breath, then at it again. And as for the toboggan slide "they didn't do a thing" to those poor toboggans. By 11:30 a. m. five had to be sent to the toboggan, hospital for repairs, and the remaining ones were kept whizzing down the slide in quick succession, until 1 p. m., at which time all of the attendants were given one hour's rest as they were almost ready to collapse. At 2 p. m. the rush for the slide was larger than ever, and Manager Love found it ne essary to weed out a lot of the larger boys,

MEETING OF WOMAN'S CLUB

Emerson is Taken Up as a Topic for Discussion.

NOVEL AND ENTERTAINING PROGRAM GIVEN

Proposition to Secure Headquarters for the Club at the Exposition _Other Matters of Business.

The Department of Philosophy and Ethics of the Woman's club has devoted itself for the greater part of this year to the study of Emerson under the guidance of Mrs. Mary Garard Andrews, and it gave a program illustrative of its work before the club yesterday. Miss Edna Williams, accompanied by Miss McDowell, sang the opening number, "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger, and responded to her encore by Schubert's song, "Who is Sylvia?" Mrs. Andrews then called for quotations from Emerson's writings and twelve members of the class responded with some very happily chosen selections, after which the first paper of the day was read by Mrs. Urion.

This was a carefully written paper, en-Itled "Emerson as a Man." It presented briefly the circumstances of his childhood and the character of his early training and paused to note the beginnings of spiritual interest and the season of transition which was followed by the settlement at Concord and the decades of growth and fruitage The writer then passed to an interesting comparison of Franklin and Emerson; the ideal; the one illustrating the prose of American life, the other its poetry; the power of the one limited by the bounds of common sense, while the appeal of the other is to the wider imagination; the one ready with an improved axle grease, while the other advises "hitch your wagon to a star." The other paper of the afternoon was read by Mrs. VanHorne, and it was a keen and discriminating analysis of Emerson's power as a thinker. The health and vigor of his thought in combination with a striking simplicity and directness of expression; the restful tenuer and the critical striking simplicity and combination with a striking simplicity and directness of expression; the restful temper and the spirit of repose which awakens thought and calms and refreshes at the same time, were dwelt uponly and the paper closed with Emerson's statement of his belief in immortality.

Mrs. Caldwell's contribution to the program was of convenient of the program.

was of an unusual character. It consisted of the estimates of others regarding Emer-son as a poet and prophet, and the selections from his critics were memorized and re-

Miss Edith Dumont closed the program with an arrangement for the violin of two of Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words." she was accompanied by Miss Ruth Wiley. The special guest of the afternoon was Mrs Bartruff, secretary of the Lincoln Womans club. She was introduced by the president and spoke a few words of congratulation. During the business hour a discussion upon the advisability of maintaining headquarters upon the exposition grounds brought out quite a difference of opinion. Mrs. MacMurphy thought the entire transmis-sissippi region should be conceived with such an enterprise. Mrs. Dawson thought the Omaha Woman's club should be the hostess upon such an occasion. Miss Fairbrother offered to unite with the club in maintaining headquarters which should also accomme date the Woman's Weekly. Mrs. Ford coun scled haste, as available space was fast being contracted for by others, and Mrs. Belden's motion instructing Mrs. Draper Smith, the secretary of the State Federation of clubs, to lay the matter before that body, giving them the first opportunity to estabish headquarters if they desired, was passed It was voted on motion of Miss Fair lish headquarters if they desired, was passed.

After Xmas

. . . . The clothing business is peculiar. There are stores that sell clothing before Christmas at "the lowest prices ever known to humanity" and the next day after Christmas mark it down about thirty per cent so as to back up their ads. These are the stores that get rich. For fear we would get too rich and have to go out of business we have marked everything down "after Christmas," and this morning you can buy any ten dollar suit in our entire stock for ten dollars, any fire dollar suit for five dollars and any fifteen dollar suit for fifteen one dollar bills. You can also have free and unrestricted (that's the usual word) choice of any 45 cent necktie in our stock for two dimes and a quarter and any seventy cent article in the entire building will be sold "after Christmas" for two dimes and a half dollar. AFTER XMAS

Not too late either. This store will clean house of holiday things this entire blessed week.

The remains of a holiday wreck will be swept away ere the great Trinity Chimes announce the arrival of the new born year of Ninety-Eight. The never-tos-late givers and the "Forgotten Someone" purchasers will find here a true barvest of bargains. Bargains in neckwear, bargains in gloves and handker-chiefs, hosiery, suspenders and truly a barvest of bargains in fancy articles, prepared for exclusive holiday usage, such as embroidered suspenders, neckwear in fancy boxes and other articles prepared for that occasion.

We haven't cartloads left. But a few here and there. At any rate, none is preferable. We believe in nursing no old stock. Next Christmas you may look to us for everything new and up-to-date.

Bought anything inappropriate or undesirable here! Come back and exchange for anything you wish for. Anything unsatisfactory? Come back for your money. Speaking of the generous methods of the so-called great and big stores who pretend to benefit the people, signs in those stores announce that Holiday Goods Will We believe in benefiting the people by refunding their money, which, in most instances, is a clear loss. As to simply exchanging goods, no store does that more cheer-fully than this one. We consider it our duty, otherwise
