Marriage Licenses. Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to the following named persons:

Early Marning Fire. Otto and Lewis Fleischer are two bachelor brothers that live together on a small piece of land in the eastern part of the city and make their living by gardening. They are painters by trade. Yesterday morning Otto arose before daylight and, lighting a lamp, he set it on the kitchen table and went out to the barn. Returning in a short time he found that the lamp had exploded and the kitchen was ablaze. He called to his brother to get up and he himself began to try to remove some of the furniture. In his attempt to do this he was overcome by heat and smoke and fell prostrate on the floor. When his brother arose he ran out of the front of the house and around to the back and not finding his brother the thought flashed woon him that he must he in the house and upon him that he must be in the house, and on investigation this proved to be the fact. He managed to rescue him, but a few more minutes in the heat and smoke would have proved fatal. The entire building and contents were destroyed. The building was in-sured for $1,000. There is good reason to believe that the house will go on record in favor of taxing mortgages. After a long discussion this afternoon the majority committee report was rejected and the minority report adopted by ps. vote of 72 to 21. At this point the dis-cussion was ended, but a number of amendments were offered which will be considered today. Not one of the amendments is adverse to the intent of the bill, all in-tended to strengthen rather than weaken the measure. The indications are that the house will pass the bill, though the conservit. It would be a radical piece of legislation and has been defeated time after time on a report signed by three democrats. HEARD LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG.

owa Woman Tells About the Famous Memorial Address. DENISON, Ia., Feb. 16.-(Special.)-Mrs Georgia McClellan of Denison was present at the dedication of the cemetery at Gettysburg, November 19, 1863, and heard Lincoln deliver the address which has become immortal. She has vivid recollection of the great event and likes to talk of it. It was a bright fall day that opened for the dedication and early in the morning people began to gather for the services. She lived upon Cemetery hill near the inclosure, and upon the Baltimore pike, the main road from the town to the cemetery. All forenoon a steady stream of people poured along the thoroughfare past the house, but Mrs. Mc-Clellan had not intended to go to the services, for she was ill and still unrecovered from the terrible experiences of the battle. About 11 o'clock Lincoln and his escort of soldiers and notables of the town came riding along on horesback and so impressed was she by the president's appearance that everything was put aside and without delay she made her way to the grounds. One of the saddest and most impressive sights of the procession was a delgation of fifty wounded soldiers from York hospital, men who had been injured in the battle but a

BABY'S COMING. Nature intended that every woman should look forward to the com-ing of her baby with joy and hope, unclouded by anxiety. Almost painanxiety. Almost pain-less parturition is quite the usual thing among uncivilized people. Even in our own country it occasionally happens with women in robust health and good condi-tion. It ought to be the rule instead of the exception; and it is a fact that a very large proportion of the usual pain and suf-fering may be avoided by looking after the mother's general health and specially strengthening the particular organs concerned in parturition. Manymothers have been brought through Many mothers have been brought through the trying time almost painlessly by the aid of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It prepares the system for delivery by imparting the organic strength and elasticity which the mother specially needs; shortens the time of labor and of confinement; promotes the secretion of abundant nourishment for the child and fortifies the entire constitution against the after period of deconstitution against the after period of de-pression and weakness. It's use should begin in the early months of gestation—the earlier the better.

Mrs. Fred Hont, of Gienville, Schenetady Co., N. Y., says: "I read about Dr. Pierce's Pavorite Prescription being so good for a woman with child, so I got two bottles last September, and December 13th, I had a twelve-pound haby girl. When I was confined I was not sick in any way. I did not suffer any pain, and when the child was born I walked into another room and went to bed. I never had an after-pain or any other pain. This is the eighth child and the largest of them all. I suffered everything that flesh could suffer with the other bables. I always had a doctor and then he could not help me very much, but this time my mother and my husband were alone with me. My baby was only seven days old when I got up and dressed and left my room and stayed up all day."

As a Serial, in Ten Instalments, February 13.

(With Illustrations.)

In this story Mr. Haggard makes new demonstration of his wonderful power in the field of pure lifts the curtain that hides the fate of nations dead and burled in the ages of which no record remains, except in the silent ruins of their Zimboe, an inland trading city that flourished in the heart of Africa 3,000 years ago, and peopled by the Phoenicians, is the scene of the story. To this city comes Prince Aziel, a grandson of King Solomon, accompanied by Isaachar, a pricet of Israel, and Metem, a Phoenician trader who brings a caravan of merchandise.

In Elissa, daughter of Sakon, king fate. King Ithobal, lord of many legions of savage warriors, is already a suitor for her hand. He sues in true barbarian fashion, seeks to carry her off by force, and is foiled in the attempt by Prince Aziel. The story unfolds itself around the feud between the Prince of Israel and the savage King Ithobal. Eliesa has given her heart to Aziel, and loaths the barbarian monarch. Isaachar, the priest, is determined that no prince of the house of David shall wed a heathen maiden, whose people worship Baal. As a result of his intrigues, Elissa is elected the high priestess of

This fixes an impassable religious guif between her and Aziel. Their passionate love seeks to surmount all barriers. Meactime, Ithobal draws his huge army of savages around the fated city, and demanding Elissa in marriage, prepares to destroy it if he is refused. How Elissa violates her outh as high priestess and prepares to fly with Aziel; how they are both discovered and threatened with death by the priests of Basl; how, to save each other, she, by her right as the high priestess of Baal, names him her husband, while he renounces his faith and offers incense to Baal; how Ithobal's horde of savages storms the walls of the city, and both Aziel and Elison fall into his power; and how, at last, Axiel escapes with his life by Elissa's feigned submission to Ithobal, she in turn escaping Ithobal by killing herself, is all told in Mr. Haggard's most fascinating manner. The awful ceremonies in the temple of Baal, the weird rites in the sacred groves of Zimboe, and the barbarous battle scenes of that faroff time, are described with all the author's mervelous wealth of imaginative resource.

It is a story that will surely rank as one of the great works of fiction of 1898.
