ages on account of injuries sustained on ployes in charge of the train that passed over this account are of frequent occurrence. It had been intended that during the spring active steps should be taken to condemn the unsafe walks before the city was crowded with exposition visitors. But unless some additional appropriation is made there will be no funds to pay for the necessary preliminary inspection and the walks must be al-lowed to remain as they are. It is also feared that the early paving will also be somewhat delayed on account of the reductions in the engineering force that were necessary in order to keep the ex-penses of the department inside of the appropriation. City Engineer Rosewater says that he does not propose to rush the work of setting stakes for the paving to an extent that will make the department liable to mis-takes. It will be impossible to have all the districts ready for the contractors with the present force, and as no additions can be made without incurring an unwarranted ex-pense, work on several districts will be de-layed until the engineers can make the pre-
