TRAINMEN'S RISK.

Statistics Show that They Are Over-Estimated. It has been estimated, and in fact railroad men frequently make the remark, that the train service is about seven years. In other words, that they are either crippled up so as to render them unfit for service again in a like capacity or are killed on an average in that time. It has been found by looking over the records of one of the leading railroads entering Louisville, says the Courier-Journal, that this is untrue. During three years, on one of the busiest roads entering the city, there were only two killed and 158 injured, all of whom were brakemen except two, and they were freight conductors who had assumed the duty of brakemen, one by making a coupling and the other by assisting in unloading freight. It would seem that inexperienced men would be most apt to get injured, but the figures show differently, as indicated by the following: Eleven, or 9.56 per cent of the total number of trainmen, were injured during their first year of service; eighteen, or 12.16 per cent, were injured who had been in the service two years; fifteen, or 11.11 per cent, had been in the service three years; twenty-two, or 16.35 per cent, four years; twenty-six, or 20 per cent, five years; twenty-seven, or 21.77 per cent, six years; thirteen, or 9.63 per cent, seven years; five, or 2.90 per cent, eight years; three, or 2.47 per cent, nine years; five, or 4.16 per cent, ten years, and twelve, or 8.89 per cent, over ten years, some of whom had been in the service fifteen, eighteen and twenty-two

The Bait.

It will be noted that the largest average of injuries occurred after the employe had been in service six years and the figures given would indicate that employes as a general rule are careful up to the time when they have been in the service three to four years and then become more careless until about the eighth year of service, when the indica-tions show that they again become careful, as those who had worked over ten years have a very small comparative per cent of injuries compared with those who had worked six years. With the completion of the equipment of all bex cars with the Janes or automatic coupiers, air brakes, etc., the liability of compared to the coupiers. the liability of trainmen being injured will have been reduced to a minimum, as the record goes to show that at least two-thirds of the injuries were caused by attempting to couple automatic drawbars with a link and pin, to the old-fashioned solid or skeleton drawbar, which is very dangerous even to the most experienced railroad man. Other causes were on account of uneven drawbars, some being as much as three inches higher than others. All this will be rectified with the new law, which requires all drawbars to be of a standard height. A great many trainmen were injured by stepping upon stones or links in jumping off to throw switches, etc., quite a number by being thrown off on account of the icy condition of the tops of cars.

dition of the tops of cars.

There was one case where a brakeman was standing near the end of a car when another cut of cars struck it and he was thrown from the top of the car to the ground, alighting squarely upon his feet and "stoving him up" severely, as will be readily understood. A few were compelled to jump from the tops of cars in cases of derailment. Others had their feet mashed by attempting to shove an all-matic drawbar over a few inches to enable it to come more squarely in contact with the au omatic coupler. This is one of the serious objections to the automatic drawbar—that it will not couple readily on a curve and it is neccessary for the trainmen either to pull one of the drawbars over or shove it over with their feet.

One of the most general causes of pinched fingers was on account of the pin failing to drop all the way down into the hole when coupling with a link and pin. The brakemen in a start to see the pin a start invariably reach over to give the pin a start so it will drop into the hole, when the cars frequently roll one way or the other just a few inches and catch the pin just before it gets all the way down, causing it to tilt back and catch the fingers between pin and end sill of the car.

A few were injured by holding the grabinon on the end of car—recently added to all freight cars by an act of congress—and at-freight cars by an act of congress—and attempting to make the coupling when long lumber or bridge iron would be extending over the end of the car to be coupled to, and catch their hands between the timber and end of the car. However, this dangerous method of coupling cars together that have lading projecting over the ends of them will soon be a thing of the past, as it is becoming a general rule for all companies becoming a general rule for all companies not to permit the loading of cars in this manner. Whenever there is long timber to load the companies require the use of two are instead of one, as heretofore.

With the taking effect of the new law compelling railroads to have all cars equipped with automatic drawbars and have the drawbars of equal height from the rails, • 4:35 pm | the position of railroad brukemen will not be such a hazardous one.

Sulphur being an important element in our corporate being, its functional waste must be supplied by nutritive matter derived from our food, and in all our dietary it seems that nothing affords it more boun-tifully and in more digestible form than the tabooed onlon, and this appears to be a pos-itive, physiological requirement for the enjoyment of perfect health.

When properly cooked—either boiled, fried or sewed—it is perfectly prepared for easy digestion and assimilation, affording the chief elements of nutrition, as well as of sulphur. And when selected as a condiment at dinner, to be caten raw with meat in small bits pothing will be small bits. small bits, nothing will so well brace the stomach for its post-prandial function. The shallot, unlike the onion, has a small bulb, but long succulent stem, multiplying into large bunches, which, when chopped up and fried with bacon, and an egg or two stirred in, makes a palatable dish for an epicure. But the leek, when properly cooked, is certainly most relishable, provided the garden culture has given it suitable size and form, which can only be done by cultivating in trenches of rich earth four inches deep, so as to admit of drawing earth to the stems as they grow up solid and perfectly bleached to the length of six inches or more and an inch or more in diameter.
